CARBON CAPTURING TURF

A new breed of slow growing carbon capturing turf has been launched in joint venture by Inturf, Paynes Turf and Rigby Taylor.

In addition to its ability to lock up carbon dioxide, Carbon Capture Turf grows at a slower rate than other grass varieties, thus reducing maintenance costs and producing fewer clippings. Supplies of the new turf are available from this spring.

“Turf is already playing an important part in the designed landscape by providing the green open spaces which many people, especially city dwellers, long for,” says Brian Robinson, Director of New Research for Rigby Taylor.

What’s your number?

Our regular and random profile of an industry figure continues with this month’s lucky number...

Name: Tim Merrell
Company: The Grass Group
Position: Managing Director
How long have you been in the industry?
21 years
How did you get into it?
By accident of course! I am an agronomist by qualification and farming was going to be my life.

What other jobs have you done?
I worked for Velcourt Farm Management, then in France and onto Alberta, in Canada, before coming back to be a Farm Manager in the Loire Valley in France for four years before setting up the business.

What do you like about your current job?
The variety, both in the people I meet, the places I get to visit and being outdoors. I always knew I didn’t want to be stuck in an office!

What changes have you seen during your time in the industry?
I believe the whole industry has grown and become much more professional. Competition on both sides of the industry has meant suppliers have to innovate and the professional users have had to stay on their toes. At a time when all budgets are restricted those involved have to know what they are doing and why they are doing it. If you don’t you will be found out and you won’t survive very long.

What do you like to do in your spare time?
It seems to be a rare commodity! The expanding business and a family keep me pretty tied up. If I get a chance I sneek off and depending on the season I’ll go coarse fishing or shooting.

Where do you see yourself in 10 years time?
Still working to keep my wife and three daughters in the business to which they have become accustomed!

Who do you consider to be your best friends in the industry?
The Dutch guys from Trilo and Paul Trowman

What do you consider to be your lucky number?

Sanli Building Business Across The Irish Sea

Outdoor power equipment specialist Sanli is continuing to spread its wings with the appointment of new sales and service dealers in Ireland.

Now responsible for looking after domestic and professional customers in Southern Ireland is Dublin Grass Machinery, based at Castletownlee, Dublin. The company, which has a number of sub-dealers located primarily in the Irish Republic’s Leinster province secured a deal to supply Sanli products to the existing and prospective dealers’ staff at a special, horticultural machinery show staged at Punchestown Racecourse.

Organised by Irish garden machinery distributors, the indoor event represented the first public showing of Sanli outdoor power equipment in the Dublin area. Moving northwards, newly-appointed Sanli dealers for Northern Ireland, Ground Control, attended a series of open evenings held to give domestic and professional machinery users a preview of some of the new products heading their way for the 2011 season.

A division of Johnston Gilpin of Lisburn, City Down, Ground Control has an excellent reputation for pre- and after-sales customer support, attributes that will help Sanli establish a strong and loyal customer base in the north of Ireland.

Kubota Makes the Difference

“Our award-winning pitch is all thanks to our Kubota ride-on mowers” – that’s the message from Glen Bellis, Manager of Haertfeld United. The Middlesex-based club purchased a Kubota G21 ride-on mower and quickly scooped the title of Best Pitch in the Spartan Premier Division before going on to win the Steps 5 and 6 National Award category in the FA’s 2010 Groundsman of the Year Awards.

The accolades came after the club’s committee took the decision of cancelling the existing groundcare contract in order to maintain the two pitches quickly and efficiently without marking the turf.

To be honest, we weren’t happy with our pitch, so we decided to buy the Kubota and maintain it ourselves. Our aim was to improve pitch quality so our teams could enjoy better facilities and game play – we never dreamed that we’d go on to win two awards within two years of
