South Coast

Firstly, many apologies for the lack of Section notes for the last couple of months. The problem has now been rectified and normal service has been resumed. As you read this many of you will have played in the winter tournament at Barton-on-Sea and been to the Section AGM. I know your committee work extremely hard on your behalf trying to make the Section a success, so it would be nice to see more people supporting the coming events.

We, as greenkeepers, are always busy but please would you put time aside to attend Section events. As the New Year approaches our minds turn to BTME. For those who have not made the journey to Harrogate then I can thoroughly recommend it. It truly is a week not to miss as the learning experience continues. Paula Humphries can be contacted for those interested in the South West coach trip, which is excellent value for money.

As a Section we must congratulate Adi Archer and his team at Broadstone Golf Club for their success in winning the BIGGA Environment competition this year. We were fortunate to have Broadstone Golf Club this summer and were able to see how much hard work they have put in to their heathland restoration project over the past years. They are indeed a credit to our section and to all greenkeepers. Lastly, it just leaves me to wish all members a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from your committee.

Alex McCombie

South Wales

It is with great sadness that I have to inform the members of the recent sudden passing away of Paul Robinson, former Head Greenkeeper of the Pyle & Kenfig Golf Club. Paul had been retired from the club that he devoted his entire working life to, for only 10 weeks.

Paul was a well respected father figure of the greenkeeping fraternity in South Wales and was renowned for his wit and sense of humour. Just being in his company was fun itself.

He was an ardent supporter of BIGGA and was the treasurer of the Section for over 14 years. It is said that Paul took only one holiday in his entire working life, many years ago, to Malta for a week! From then on in he took his holiday entitlement in half days as he couldn't bear to be away from the course that he tended to and cared for so very much.

A lovely gentleman, generous and humorous, he will be sadly missed.

The final of the Rigby Taylor Matchplay Doubles Competition was held recently at the Royal Porthcawl Golf Club, where Daryl Brain and Steve Mills took on Jamie and Herbie Probert.

The match was a tight affair with the conditions making for an exciting finale to the competition. The high winds eventually overcame the drying rain and the sun shone for the remainder of the match, which saw Jamie and Herbie triumph on the 16th green.

The golf course was in excellent condition and those who weren't playing but who supported the match were lucky enough to be treated to what's what and what's happening to the course in time for the British Amateur Championships next year, from Course Manager David Ward.

Our sincere thanks to Roy Barker and Dave Carvey, our Rigby Taylor representatives, for organising the day and for their splendid hospitality. A truly enjoyable day was had by all!

Congratulations to Kerry Jones, of Garnant Park Golf Club. Kerry who has been the Head Greenkeeper of the club for four years was recently promoted to Golf Manager at the course.

Congratulations also to Huw Morgan of the Wildernesse Golf Club, near Sevenoaks in Kent. Welshman Huw recently won the Toro sponsored Excellence in Greenkeeping award to add to his list of achievements.

Don't forget to book your place at the Winter Tournament/AGM/Christmas dinner, at the Pyle & Kenfig Golf Club on Wednesday, December 12. Teeing Off is from 10.00am, the AGM is 3pm and the Christmas feast is served at 5.30pm. Numbers will be limited.

Peter Lacey

Northern Ireland

The AGM will have been held at Rockmount Golf Club on November 29. The structure of the new committee for 2002 will be detailed in the January magazine notes.

I would like to congratulate Alan Strachan, Course Manager at Royal Co Down Golf Club on winning the Irish final of the Excellence in Greenkeeping Award which is sponsored by Toro and Lely Ireland. Alan will go forward to compete in the Great Britain Finals later this autumn.

Our three members who travelled over to the National Championship at Royal Birkdale at the beginning of October enjoyed the experience immensely and would like to thank BIGGA for organising the event.

Noel Crawford, Andrew Wray and Michael Feeney came in with reasonable scores in the difficult conditions but didn't feature in the prizes this year. Greenmount College in Antrim moved their annual prize day from June to September because of the Foot & Mouth crisis. This year, congratulations go to Jane Beattie on becoming the top student on the NVQ Level II course. Jane is the first female greenkeeper to complete the NVQ course at Greenmount College.

Another training option, which is now offered to greenkeepers in Northern Ireland, is the fast track Level II & Level III Greenkeeping courses, run by Myerscough College in Preston. The two courses are currently taking place at Malone Golf Club in Belfast. The advantage of the fast track system is that each level can be completed in nine months with classroom attendance reduced to six to eight days. The College Tutor presenting both courses, is Owen Mullins from Dublin. Owen is a final year student at Myerscough, completing a degree course in Turf Science. If anyone would like further particulars on the fast track NVQ's ring Bernhard at Myerscough College on 01995642205.

Lastly, I would like to welcome William Black from Tandragee Golf Club to the Section this month.

Sandy McDivot takes a positive look at the current economic climate

This month I would like, if I may, to comment upon the long-term job security outlook for we keepers of fine turf. I believe this to be a timely exercise seeing as the world economy appears to be in nose-dive mode at the present time. So making the assumption that we have not made any serious tactical errors recently, such as head butting the Lady Captain, or engaging in something other than social intercourse with the Chairman of Green's wife, what is the likelihood of us being voted off as the weakest link. I would say that there are only three potential reasons for such a predicament. The first is incompetence, the second, golf course change of use and the third, a general public shift away from golf to other activities.

The first of these is somewhat irrelevant and should be highly unlikely given that nearly all greenkeepers of dubious abilities have thankfully vanished to other industries, such as the health service or politics. Many moons ago I once worked for a Head Greenkeeper who knew nothing about turf or indeed any other subject and who would only sporadically turn up to work in order to hurl some foul mouthed abuse at us long suffering assistants before falling into a nearby bunker in a drunken stupor. He was to greenkeeping what Prince Philip is to foreign relations. Yet remarkably he remained in the same position for some six years before all the greens started to take on the characteristics of evil smelling brown porridge and the committee had to reluctantly dispense with his services. Even to this day, one hears comments from old members of that far off committee stating that this man was the finest greenkeeper the club had ever had, but I disregard such declarations as sad hazy romantic yearnings for the past, combined with acute senile dementia.

So what of the second cause for job loss, that of golf course change of use. Well given the current profit margins available in agriculture, I think the chances of courses reverting back to farmland are somewhat unlikely. But as more and more courses are proprietary owned and the industry becomes proportionally more competitive, then courses could start to be developed into other potentially more lucrative schemes, such as housing construction or equestrian sports facilities. In fact, all too often courses are undergoing such change of use. This I understand was brought about by negative marker forces, cash flow uncertainties, questionable location and the fact that the course in question was cp. This I hasten to add, was no fault of the Course Manager but a result of chronic under funding together with employment of a course designer that looked like he had gained his qualifications at catering college.

An unfortunate case, but one that is by no means exceptional.

But what of the other potential threat to our livelihood. What are the chances of the game simply going out of fashion and thereby necessitating golf course closure on the grounds that no one would be seen dead playing the game? Preposterous you may say, but wait, years ago the game of billiards was all the rage. Great halls housing dozens of tables were to be found in every town but who on earth plays the game now. More recently the sport of squash appears to be on a life support mechanism. Even as we speak, sports centres across the land are knocking down the intervening squash court walls and filling the resultant void with trendy new exercise machines.

However, it is my humble opinion that on this front we have little to fear. The game of golf seems assured to grow in popularity for the foreseeable future and as a result we greenkeepers will be in ever-increasing demand with resultant theoretical wage increases to boot. The main threat to the growth of the game is expense but as skilled Course Managers are able to maintain their courses to a high standard within tight budgetary controls, I see no problem here. Yes there are courses that cost ludicrous sums to maintain, but because they are in the minority and usually of championship standard, even they have a steady stream of affluent masochists ready to cough up the folding stuff in anticipation of five hours of ball searching torture. And if they don't, then the course simply reverses back to the more profitable uses.

So how can I be so sure that more and more people will take up the game. Well with so many new courses on the scene, waiting lists have all but disappeared and anyone can obtain membership without having to spend several years in obsessional grovelling mode in an effort to get the dreaded interview. Then there is the fact that the game is starting to come to terms with its elitist image problems of the past. The social and due I say it, ethnic barriers, have quite correctly departed from the game.

Tiger Woods may have complained of experiencing prejudice towards him in his formative years but that was far away. I remember recently listening to a radio interview of a young black professional golfer who had spent his junior golfing days playing at that well-known course near Reading, Calcot Park. The interviewer repeatedly brought up Tiger's past troubles in an effort to get the young golfer to dish the dirt on golf clubs in this country, but eventually this line of questioning was abruptly brought to a halt when the golfer stated that it may have happened to Tiger but he personally had never received anything other than total encouragement from the gollers of the Berkshire club, or indeed any other golfing venue.

Then there is the subject of role models that have taken to the game. What a huge benefit they have been. Certainly Tiger is one of the very best recruitment vehicles we could ever have asked for. Then there is Prince Andrew, he likes nothing better than... to play a round. The fact is the sport is appealing to people from the most unlikely walks of life. Alice Cooper for instance, the boa constrictor loving 70's rock icon of domestic fowl oral decapitation notoriety, has so devoted his life to the game that he has managed to get down to 4 handicap. Smokey Robinson, former soul singer has created his own miracle by replacing his drug addiction with golf addiction. Robbie Williams the womanising, beer drinking rock star rebel that the youth of the day so admire for his moral standards, plays to a 14 handicap. Likewise that other figurehead of high ethics and gentlemanly behaviour, Chris Evans. Then what about the England football squad. Rumour has it that half of them play golf to single figure handicaps and seeing as they thrashed Germany 5:1, we have living proof that mastery in the art of golf brings with it the total co-ordination so requisite in the lesser sport of football.

With even the communist republic of Cuba embarking on a golf course construction programme, we can assume that the great game has received full social acceptance throughout the world. But will the public keep playing once they have taken it up?

Well here we have another couple of tricks up our sleeve. For one thing golf is a game that can be played right up to the moment of death of mind and body. Indeed many of the members at the great links of Sludgecombe appear already to have progressed to at least stage one of this condition, if not both. The other weapon in our armoury is that for some reason the game is highly addictive. I do not know the time explanation for this phenomenon but once people get going they simply cannot stop. I have a friend who has been playing once every two weeks for several years and has yet to score lower than 50 over par. He hates the game with a passion. It destroys him both physically and mentally every time he plays. Yet can he give it up? No he cannot.

Because hidden within the depths of shanks, duffs, twitches and air shots, there is always an effortless stroke that sends the ball soaring towards the target. It is this shot that transports him briefly to his own personal Nirvana and this shot that brings him back for further punishment. Desmond Morris would probably have put the brief exultation of this experience down to our hunter instinct that years to see projectile sent to target, as it was when our very survival depended on a well executed launch of the spear towards quadruped. Sigmund Freud would probably have us believe it is all down to childhood sexual repression and back this peculiar theory up with references to our utilisation of equipment such as balls, shafts and holes etc. Either way, of all sports, few can match golf in getting the participant to those levels of emotion that explore the boundaries of incontinence. I remember the birth of my son, Dexter, the heir to the McDivot estate (an Austin Montego estate to be precise). Complications set in and towards the end of the 12-hour ordeal there were four doctors and two midwives, each with worried looks on their faces, engaged in a tug of war exercise in an attempt to get the little blighter out. Now that was worrying, but I have to say the tension levels for me did not quite match that experienced when faced with a tricky down hill four foot left to righter for the 20 pence greener. Still I have to say, the elation of actually seeing the little lad pop out was at least equal to that of slotting a 12 footer, for a birdie on the last.

Of course I play little golf these days, due to Mrs McDivot's grave concern that it could lead to me experiencing temporary enjoyment, but I still fully understand the levels of emotion that the game can inflict on the innocent. So there you have it. Conscientious, learned professionals that we are, we have little to fear as regards us swelling the Job Centre queues. Just study hard, engage in friendly banter with the members, blame the odd brown patch on a mutant nematode and never take a fortnight's holiday in June.
Another much travelled month took in Germany and Scotland and many points in between. The German trip was to Dortmund as the guest of the German Greenkeepers Association at their annual conference and exhibition. As you would expect it was a superbly organised event with top quality speakers and instantaneous translation of the papers. Among those speakers was Bruce Williams, a Past President of the GCSSA who has a retractable roof, but in this case think the turf was up to it.

One point that was made was that the Bundesliga is very much a greenkeepers' occasion to him as I always feel that with Claus he is so friendly that he makes me feel welcome even in my own country. One of his members and BTME, while Peter Boyd, as was delighted to learn that Pauline were extremely busy making their families a Happy Christmas and a wonderful and prosperous New Year.

Clive Osgood, Chairman
