CRICKET GROUNDSMEN HONOURED AT LORD’S

Four groundsmen were honoured recently at the home of cricket as they each received a Cricket World & Pitchcare Cricket Groundsman of the Year Award for 2008.

The awards, now in their fifth year, recognise the hard work and high standards achieved by cricket groundsmen in the recreational game and are split into four categories – ICC Europe, educational establishment, private club and local authority.

The presentations were made to the winners Ian Vautier, Phillip McCormick, Les Stephens and Graeme Flett by Head ECB Pitch Advisor Chris Wood and Director of ICC Europe, Richard Holdsworth, in the presence of sponsors and invited guests. In the morning, the winners took to their Executive Box seats to watch the Cockspur Cup Club Cricket Final between Maiden Wanderers and Kibworth and enjoyed lunch at the Lord’s Tavern. Unfortunately, the weather closed in during the afternoon and the match will be replayed, however, the winners were taken on a behind the scenes tour of the ground facilities by Chris Wood which was an experience of a lifetime.

CAMPAIGN URGES INDUSTRY TO CHECK YOUR SPRAYER

The importance of well-maintained and carefully calibrated spraying equipment is being emphasised in a new campaign by the Amenity Forum.

Launched at this year’s Saltex show, ‘Check Your Sprayer’ is aimed at everyone in the amenity sector whose job involves the spraying of pesticides.

The Amenity Forum has received sponsorship from Scotts to produce a leaflet, sticker and dedicated website to assist managers and operators in this key component of ‘Best Practice’.

The leaflet and website contain essential information on how to comply with the Code of Practice including when equipment should be checked, who should check it, what training is required and what to record.

The Knapsack Operator Checklist stickers can be affixed to their sprayer where they will serve as a reminder to check the equipment each and every time it is used.

SOUTH WEST AND SOUTH WALES REGION GOLF MANAGEMENT TROPHY

This year’s Golf Management Competitions have recently taken place in the South West and South Wales Region. The format of the competition with clubs entering a management team which includes a member of the club’s greenkeeping staff has once again proved popular, with each section event being well supported. Along with individual prizes for the members of the first, second and third placed teams the winning teams in each section received an Accuro 2000 Spread piece of machinery for their clubs. BIGGA South West and South Wales Region would like to thank Scotts Turf Professional (UK) Ltd for their continued sponsorship of this event and the clubs for their support in hosting these days.

The South West Section event was won by Chipping Sodbury Golf Club with the South Wales Section being won by Llanwern Golf Club and the South Coast by Southwood Golf Club.

GROW BRITISH TO PROTECT NATIVE SPECIES

Grow British was the message from British Wild Flower Plants (BWFPs) whose ‘Grow British’ initiative was launched at Saltex.

“Many wild flower varieties are either imported or developed from cultivated seed stock,” said BWFPs Marketing Manager, Ian Forster “and this can put our own native species under threat. I suppose the most obvious example of this is the Spanish Bluebell, which is now cross breeding with our British variety and in danger of wiping it out.”

ASKEARNISH OLD COURSE

...ALIVE AND WELL

So at last, after two years’ hard work by Gordon Irvine, Alan MacDonald and the team, Askernish Old Course, an Old Tom Morris masterpiece, is open.

When Gordon first saw the towering dunes, the magnificent views of the Atlantic Ocean, a white shell beach running along the length of the links, the heather clad moors and rugged mountains, he declared he had found The Holy Grail. Gordon persuaded Golf Course Architect Martin Ebert, of Mackenzie and Ebert, to join him in this labour of love - and Martin charged the same fee as Old Tom did back in 1891, namely £9!

This is golf in the raw and how it used to be. Askernish is not only unique in design, but also in its environment on the internationally renowned machair, a fertile stretch of dune land supporting a wealth of rare flora and fauna.

The restoration of the 18 hole course has taken less than £100,000 and is a superb example of a truly sustainable golf course, only using local organic based seaweed fertilisers, no pesticides, or irrigation system, and all materials obtained locally. Even the ladies’ tee markers are rocks gathered from the beach by Club Chairman, Ralph Thompson.

Many people have rallied round, intrigued by the romance of the project golfers have joined as life members, others have sent donations, and greenkeepers have lent their time and expertise. Elmwood College are hoping to use the course for greenkeeper training, Ransomes Jacobsen has generously contributed machinery, The Berkshire GC donated club house furniture, JHS Carpets donated a spike proof carpet for use in the new clubhouse, Maidenhead Mailing supplied all the printing, a local building company UBC donated local granite tee markers and The R&A have provided initial financial support and have since through The Golf Course Committee provided greenkeeping bursaries, and remain interested in the on going success of the project.

But this is only the beginning. The course is already attracting interest from all over the world, and the island has so many other attractions including trout and salmon fishing, wildfowling, and wonderful walking. So there is plenty to do if you visit this golfing treasure, but more help is needed to ensure the future of Askernish, and Gordon is presenting the full story at Harrogate Week 2009. Volunteers should contact Gordon Irvine, email: omegagi@hotmail.com, and sponsors or suppliers should contact Malcolm Peake, email: peakes@hotmail.co.uk

INTERNATIONAL DESIGN LECTURE

Ken Moodie, EIGCA President, was “delighted” that the EIGCA diploma students – 16 in number and from 10 countries - had the opportunity to listen to internationally renowned, Tom Doak, at this year’s Toro International Design Lecture, delivered at County Louth Golf Club, near Drogheda in Ireland.

“Tom Doak has been involved in many of the most exciting golf developments over the past few years. His minimalist approach is a welcome contrast to the mass land movements involved in some other developments,” said Ken.

Tom’s interest in the game of golf started as a boy of 10 years when he was able to play on a Geoffrey Comish designed course called Sterling Farms, just ten minutes walk from his home, for $1 a time.

He strongly believes in the benefits of networking and of travel. During his landscape architecture course at Cornell University he wrote letters to the best golf courses in the US, explaining that he wanted to be a golf course architect and would like to come and walk round and to take pictures. By age 20 Tom Doak had already visited and played such places as Merrion, Pine Valley and Oakmont.

After graduating he spent a year travelling in the British Isles. While in Scotland he caddied at St Andrews and gained much from his conversations with Walter Woods. His tour of the UK & Ireland covered 13,000 miles and 160 courses.

He now reckons that he has personally visited just about every great golf course in the world, gaining knowledge that he put to great use when writing “The Confidential Guide to Golf Courses” which was published in 1996. Indeed Tom was famous as a golf writer long before his skills as a golf course architect received recognition.

Tom worked for Pete Dye for three years after graduating and learned first hand about construction. He was taught how to run a bulldozer. “Now I have four or five of the best shapers who have ever lived working for me. They loved golf first and learned to drive the truck second – the other way round is harder.”

He illustrated his lecture with images from some of the great courses he has designed including Barnbougle Dunes, Tasmania; Cape Kidnappers, New Zealand; Renaissance Club at Archerfield, Scotland and the one which made him famous, Pacific Dunes Golf Club at Bandon, USA.

“Understanding construction is one of the keys to golf course architecture - that and the ability to visualise a topographical map in three dimensions, even when the land in question is covered in vegetation. Pete Dye once said, ‘Lots of people have opinions – only a few can get them on the ground.’”

Andy Brown, Toro Corporate Accounts Manager for Europe Middle East and Africa, said, “In Tom Doak we have someone who can really inspire the students to look at the whole business of golf course architecture and show them the way to go forward in their careers.

Hopefully they will get the opportunity to work occasionally on some outstanding pieces of land and to show what they can do.”

TURNER GROUNDCARE (CHESTER) GOLF DAY

Turner Groundscare (Chester) recently held their round of the qualifying round of this year’s John Deere Team Championship.

The event took place on August 7, at Hesketh Golf Club in Southport; the weather was glorious sunshine with 16 teams competing for the first prize of entry to the John Deere Championship event to be held at Turnberry on August 21.

The event was extremely close with the eventual winners being a team from Warrington Golf Club comprising of Paul Pearse, Duncan McPhee and Ray Bernard.

Rules and scoring were administered by BIGGA Regional Administrator, Peter Larter.

NEW NORTHERN LOCAL AUTHORITY AMENITY FORUM

A group of key Local Authorities have decided to form a regional forum and become a member of the Amenity Forum.

The Northern Local Authority Amenity Forum will have a two pronged approach. First to hold local meetings to discuss specific topics relevant to the group. Second it will have representatives on the Amenity Forum to work closely with the other members and establish a strong communication between these important groups.

One of the key objectives of the Amenity Forum is ‘Best Practice’ in the use of pesticides in amenity areas.

The decision to set up the group was made at a recent meeting arranged by Calderdale MBC with managers attending from Barnsley, Bradford, Doncaster, Kirklees, North Lincs, Oldham and Wakefield authorities.

MIDLAND SECTION IRRIGATION WORKSHOP

Twenty greenkeepers from the length and breadth of Britain converged at Gay Hill GC last month for the third and final instalment of the BIGGA Midland Section Irrigation Workshop.

Delegates were treated to expert training in the performance of golf irrigation systems from Peter Robin of Evenproducts Ltd. The training focused on common problems and how simple inputs can make your life easier.

The training also included a practical session where the working pressure of a greens sprinkler was measured during working conditions. Pressure drop was also simulated to see the exact effect on coverage across the green.

The unfortunate individual measuring the flow and getting rather wet was Gay Hill GC Course Manager, Paul Woodham. The course was packed with lots of practical information which certainly asked the question “do you actually know how much water you are applying?”

Peter added “it’s fair to say that most aging golf irrigation systems could operate much more effectively if the operators understand the hydraulics that are taking place, including sorting out a few common misconceptions.

“This can increase the system’s uniformity and in turn can reduce the problems associated with poor-performing irrigation systems”.

CLUB HAS THE FAIR WAY AT HEART

Internationally renowned Sunningdale Golf Club has attained nationally recognised Investors in People status as part of its drive to be a centre of excellence - not just for golf but for employee satisfaction too.

The Berkshire club is famous for possessing England’s finest golf course and for providing its members with the very best of traditional, discreet service. One of its tenets is that staff will anticipate and provide whatever is required – no matter how detailed the requests may be.

Sunningdale’s Secretary, Stephen Toon, put the case for the club working with Investors in People to the governing Members’ Committee after seeing its effectiveness at St Andrews in Scotland.

He said: “I had seen the benefits of Investors in People at St Andrews and suggested to the Committee that our service to members could be improved by following its guidelines. We found that while we had a high percentage of what was required for Investors in People, in terms of great leadership from the top and communication at the sharp end, we needed more structure across all the departments.

“We are proud of our staff retention, one of our greenkeepers retired recently after 50 years here. Long serving staff provide the continuity our members value, while newer arrivals bring with them fresh ideas, so creating the ideal combination. And, as a result of Investors in People, we have given everybody who works here a set of skills they didn’t have before.”

SOUTH WEST AND SOUTH WALES REGIONAL SEMINAR

This year’s annual seminar will once again be held at Cannington Centre for Land Based Studies on Thursday, November 20. The seminar theme is “The Disturbance Theory And The Thrill Of Real Golf” and is presented in association with STRI.

Presentations will be made by Henry Bechelet, Richard Windows, John Lockyer, Andy Cole, and Steve Gingell from STRI and Peter Hickling, General Manager of High Post Golf Club. The morning session will be covering The Disturbance Theory with the afternoon session based on measuring the benefits of the Disturbance Theory.

Entry for BIGGA members is £20 with non-members £30. Places for the day are limited and booking details and information will be sent to all Head Greenkeepers/Course Managers in the region.
TIMES ARE CHANGING

In this month’s article David Golding, the GTC’s Education Director, looks at how greenkeeper education has changed and the options now available...

It might have taken the GTC longer than we would have liked to change the traditional education providers to become more flexible with their delivery methods of courses and qualifications but it really is the kid in the sweet shop analogy now!

Which way do I turn? So much choice!

There are still the traditional methods of day and block release courses available and for vocational (work-based) courses it is these days which are important for tutors to deliver the knowledge and agree the plan for the learner to gain the evidence to achieve the qualification.

Vocational qualifications are all about proving competence against the National Standards and the ‘college for knowledge’ statement is important when time off work is so important.

The skills are best taught on-the-job but at all times using the National Occupational Standards (NOS).

I am sorry but once again a timely reminder to Course Managers/Head Greenkeepers - your role in vocational courses/qualifications is key to the success of the system.

The on-going involvement of Course Managers/Head Greenkeepers or their nominated on the job trainer, has without doubt improved the skills base of hundreds of craft level greenkeepers. A bold statement but feedback again this year from Sami Collins, Head of Learning & Development at BIGGA, that following the regional judging of the Toro Student of the Year competition, where a student’s boss has actively been involved with the training and assessment process, the result is there for all to see.

For the non-vocational courses such as National Certificates, Advanced National Certificates and the Certificates in Higher Education including HNC/D and Foundation Degrees, this is where there has been so much development by certain colleges.

Again traditional college options are available but add to that online learning as an increasing popular pathway to gain knowledge and the move to short courses by private providers including BIGGA is meeting employers needs as well as the personal development of the employee.

The GTC has also reviewed its traditional Approved Training Provider network and while until recent years it only included a small number of colleges, we are looking at the quality of the training provision rather than just approving say one or two colleges.

There are some excellent colleges who offer local provision and at the same time some new private companies who have excellent resources to deliver courses and we would rather them approach the GTC so we can work together to service our specialist sector with quality education and training.

The GTC will work with any organisation or company seeking to support our aims to ensure employers and greenkeepers have choice but at all times quality will be at the forefront of our criteria.

Health & Safety training is so important and between the revised HSE-GTC Guidance Notes (as shown) the wall chart and the Safety Management System developed by BIGGA and the GCMA, the information is readily available.

There are now specialist courses available to ensure golf clubs are well provided for in this crucial area of golf course maintenance and management.

Many golf clubs have improved the working conditions for their staff but we know the Environmental Officers are once again dropping in on golf clubs throughout the country so please take the opportunity to prepare for the visit using the “tools” and training available.

As the winter approaches the seminar and workshop seasons tend to take off with the Home Unions, BIGGA, STRI et al in full swing. Keep up to date on what events are on offer and when and where.

I know modern jargon can be boring but we all must record our Continual Professional Development (CPD) whether it be a formal qualification, short course, Certificate of Competence, workshop, seminar, exhibitions etc., by now I am sure you are aware of the importance of good record keeping.

We at the GTC endeavour to keep all the events available through links from our website to the various organisations and Training Provider network so please visit www.the-gtc.co.uk

The Shibaura ST318 Compact Tractor was called into action recently during the Beijing Olympics, to help prepare the Olympic Stadium playing surface for the football final.

Four days prior to the final it was felt that the playing surface was far too hard for the game to go ahead and the decision was taken to aerate overnight on Tuesday, August 18. With field athletic events due to take place the next morning, swift remedial action was called for.

Oatridge College in West Lothian has again been chosen by Kubota to launch their 2008 roadshow series, thanks to the outstanding success of a similar event two years ago.

Richard Harrison, the company’s Sales and Marketing Director said: “The location and facilities are first class. We had looked at alternative sites around Scotland but decided to revisit Oatridge as it was universally accepted by the Kubota Events Team and our Scottish dealers as the best geographical location to attract the highest number of visitors.”

The Kubota Live! Roadshow will be at the specialist landbased College near Broxburn on September 2 and will feature most of their range of 19 mini-excavators, from 850kg to 8 tonnes, plus ride-on mowers, tractors and the RTV 900 rough terrain vehicle. Entrance is free and it is not necessary to register. Visitors can simply turn up on the day, between 10am and 4pm.

The Kubota Live! Roadshow will move on from Oatridge to seven other locations in England and Wales, ending at Chepstow Racecourse in Monmouthshire on September 25.
