load this information to the computer to adjust the daily watering times. However, before we allow the computer to do this, we check the current radar and the forecast map to ensure that rain is not imminent. Even though the irrigation system is hooked into a rain sensor, if the computer has already begun to run the nightly irrigation schedule the water that was applied might have been unnecessary.

I think the moral of the story, or the lesson I have learned, is that things are not always black and white. If you look hard enough into something you will find many functions or uses that are not always evident at first glance. We have a tough job that isn’t getting any easier and every tool that we can utilize to help us accomplish our duties is of benefit to us.

Professionalism, Part II —
Is Your Image a True Reflection?

Do you consider your professional work responsibilities comparable to that of an airline pilot or a judge? If you answered “yes” then I like your attitude. If you said “no” then we’ve got something to discuss. Do think they are superior to you?

Just why do we look up to the profession of an airline pilot? When we see the pilot and flight crew walking to our gate, don’t you expect to see a certain “image” in the pilot? A crisp neat uniform, confident attitude, walking tall, in command. How would you feel if instead you saw an unshaven, staggering, bleary eyed individual with alcohol on his breath. Would you be inclined to board the plane?

Professionalism has to come from the top. If you lead by example, that professionalism will trickle down to the most inexperienced person on your staff. Professionalism to the utmost is what every golfer expects of you whether you like it or not. What do they see? Is your image a true reflection of a professional?

Professionalism, Part II —
The Assistant’s Role in Golf Course Operations

In recent times, the image and responsibilities of the golf course superintendent have greatly changed. In the early years, they were thought of as greenskeepers with little or no formal education. Today, many golf course superintendents hold a specialized degree in turfgrass management and are recognized as golf course managers. As challenges and opportunities for the modern golf course superintendent have changed, so has the role of the assistant.

Today, many golf course superintendents are busy with committee meetings, budget tracking and preparation, as well as dealing with numerous government regulations. For these reasons, a superintendent places greater responsibility on the assistant superintendent.

It is the assistant who carries on the day-to-day tasks of the golf course. He or she works directly with the golf course crew in scheduling, training and ensuring assignments are completed properly, efficiently and safely. Self-confidence in his or her abilities to supervise the golf course staff and deal independently with a variety of issues, without daily guidance from the superintendent, is necessary.

An assistant superintendent must display strong work ethics through hard work, honesty and dependability because he or she is a positive role model for the crew. The assistant must also project a professional image to other club employees as well as to the club’s membership.
