SPOTTLIGHT: RUNNING AWAY
Seth Strickland ran away with the GCSCA golf championship by shooting three rounds of 68, while long-time FGCSA Association Manager Marie Roberts ran away to Las Vegas to begin retirement. Architect Steve Snyers and FGTA Executive Director Casey Pace spoke at the annual Central Florida GCSCA Research Symposium.

COVER STORY: TIMQUAMUA COUNTRY CLUB
Nestled on the banks of the St. Johns River a few miles south of downtown Jacksonville, Timquamua has maintained its classic Donald Ross design for 85 years. Now members are investing heavily in its upgrade so that superintendent Chris Neff can maintain the design with modern equipment.

HANDS ON: MAKING DO WITH LESS
If you are on a golf course in the South Florida Water Management District and have a Consumptive Use Permit to pump ground or surface water for your irrigation, you have been forced to reduce your monthly consumption by 45 percent under the current Phase 3 Emergency Drought Order.

INDUSTRY ANNOUNCES: DEALING WITH WATER RESTRICTIONS
In the USGA Update, agronomists John Foij and Todd Lowie discuss the various levels (or phases) of restrictions, what you have to do and how best to cope with doing what’s required.

STEWARDSHIP: ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDS
More than 120 Florida Golf Courses have been certified as environmental sanctuaries by Audubon International. They are listed in Stewardship, along with 11 certified environmental stewards who stand ready to assist any golf course work toward certification. Many are in the process.
