Communication is a BIG Part of My Job

By David Court, CGCS

Communication with members, staff and upper management is a big part of my role at Black Diamond. My job is a BIG Part of

David Court, CGCS

Communication with members, staff and upper management is a big part of my role at Black Diamond. Member News and e-mail blasts are quite common. We let the membership know about aerification and overseeding schedules as well as the course closing schedules. With the frequent possibilities of frost – something we didn’t have in South Florida – we will announce starting-time changes and the shift to shotgun starts a day ahead of time so the members can plan.

All department heads and assistants have e-mail addresses so they can be contacted by members. I often find myself answering questions by e-mail or if necessary, the old-fashioned way, telephone. If a topic requires more attention we will put the message out on Member News.

I make myself available several times during the week. If work schedules permit, I play in a Thursday Scramble with the men. My wife, Janet, and I are invited to dinner for Trivia night, Name the Tune night, and, yes, even Bingo. We love the fact that we are able to participate with the members at their events and outside outings. A calendar of events is also published for members in the monthly newsletter to which all department heads contribute articles. This is my opportunity to get the word out about our Audubon Certification progress, effluent water updates and when we can expect the beginning or completion of any projects.

Communication is one of the most important aspects of our jobs. We do it all day long without even realizing it. Just stopping to talk with a member of the club or the crew can make a big difference with people on all levels.

I never consider my position as a golf course superintendent to be a job but more of an adventure, especially on a good day when you only have to work half days: 5:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. Did I mention that it helps to have support and communication on the home front as well?

Effective Communication is Vital for Success

By Kevin Sunderman

Effective communication among a superintendent, senior management and the membership is vital to the success and survival of both superintendent and club.

The first step is to establish and maintain a healthy communication line among the superintendent, general manager and greens chairman. This is done as needed with safety meetings and during frost delays and rain events. We try to take advantage of these down times and present information to the staff and discuss any issues that have come up. Some of the issues are those that I hear about through the members. This is also a good time to present the Employee of the Month award for them to be recognized by their peers.

Communication with the senior staff is done at our Wednesday meetings. Upcoming events are discussed including tournaments, weddings and outside outings. A calendar of events is also published for members in the monthly newsletter to which all department heads contribute articles. This is my opportunity to get the word out about our Audubon Certification progress, effluent water updates and when we can expect the beginning or completion of any projects.

Communication is one of the most important aspects of our jobs. We do it all day long without even realizing it. Just stopping to talk with a member of the club or the crew can make a big difference with people on all levels.

I never consider my position as a golf course superintendent to be a job but more of an adventure, especially on a good day when you only have to work half days: 5:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. Did I mention that it helps to have support and communication on the home front as well?

Communication with the senior staff is done at our Wednesday meetings. Upcoming events are discussed including tournaments, weddings and outside outings. A calendar of events is also published for members in the monthly newsletter to which all department heads contribute articles. This is my opportunity to get the word out about our Audubon Certification progress, effluent water updates and when we can expect the beginning or completion of any projects.

Communication is one of the most important aspects of our jobs. We do it all day long without even realizing it. Just stopping to talk with a member of the club or the crew can make a big difference with people on all levels.

I never consider my position as a golf course superintendent to be a job but more of an adventure, especially on a good day when you only have to work half days: 5:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. Did I mention that it helps to have support and communication on the home front as well?

At the end of the day, relay any important information to your general manager and/or your greens chairman. Some days won’t require any communication. Others might require 30 minutes or more depending on the situation.

Serious matters are often best discussed face-to-face, and don’t wait until the end of the day. Make sure, however, always to send a follow-up e-mail on important matters to create some sort of documentation. Documentation can help you remember the specifics of previous issues. Also, documentation is insurance for those unfortunate CYA situations.

Anticipate situations. Relay answers/explanations to questions that haven’t been asked. For example, if a mower has left a hydraulic leak all over No.14 fairway, let management know about it right away. When they are questioned, they have an answer. Managers and board members hate nothing more than being caught off guard.

Second, good communication between the golf professional and the superintendent is necessary for coordinating both golf and maintenance activities. After a series of “surprise shotguns,” I finally coordinated weekly meetings with the head professional. These meetings only require 15-20 minutes to review the upcoming calendar. They ensure the greens aren’t being verticut the morning of the ladies’ invitational and they allow the golf shop to know when the golf course will be fertilized.

In fact, a meeting can make it easier to get time blocked for course work because the golf shop can plan ahead when making tee-times. It might be a good idea for the general manager to sit in on these meetings so he knows what has been scheduled.

Finally, communication to the general membership leaves everyone feeling informed and confident that you know what’s going on with the golf course. This can be done several ways. Face-to-face contact in the golf shop and on the golf course is not always fun but usually very effective.