Golf trends analyzed in new NGF publications

The National Golf Foundation has introduced the first three in a series of specialized research publications called Market Reports.

Trends in the Golf Industry, Golf Travel, and Stand-Alone Golf Ranges in the U.S. offer insights into a specific aspect or segment of the U.S. golf industry. Collectively, the reports provide a comprehensive overview of current trends in both golf supply and golf demand. They range from 14 to 20 pages in length.

Not only will these smaller, single-subject reports be more useful and affordable to many in the golf industry. They allow us to take a more focused approach in unveiling the wealth of data collected over the past year, said Michael Russell, NGF's senior research director.

Trends in the Golf Industry describes national trends in golf's growth from 1986 to 1990 in terms of the number of golfers, rounds played, and golf courses supply and development.

Golf Travel combines material from several NGF surveys regarding the golf travel habits of American golfers. Traveling golfers are profiled by age group, income and gender. Also discussed is how often they travel, leading travel destinations, and the estimated size of the golf travel market.

Stand-Alone Golf Ranges in the U.S. offers a unique look at the status of range operation and management. It profiles recently surveyed off-course ranges and includes information on tee stations, lighting, practice areas, seasonality, pricing and more.

Three other Market Reports are soon to be added to the series and include:

- America's Attitudes Toward Golf in Their Communities
- Women in Golf
- The Consumer's Cost of Golf
- The Experience at Kiokele and The Challenge of Manele
