Robert Trent Jones Jr. exceeds expectations with Golf by Design

By Mark Leslie

It was a long time coming, but Robert Trent Jones' new book was worth the wait. Jones, whose dad dizzled golf course design aficionados a couple of years ago with "Golf's Magnificent Challenge," provides a unique twist both on design and play.

Impossible? No way.

In what may be the best-written golf coffee-table book in some time, Jones sheds his designer's sketch pad and doffs his player's thinking cap in this memorable reading and viewing treasure, "Golf by Design — How To Lower Your Score By Reading the Features of a Course."

"No two courses or rounds are so alike that you can attack them with exactly the same game plan," writes Jones, who worked on this book for several years. "For me, the constantly changing conditions and the never-ending variety of holes define the essence of the game."

Indeed, Jones relates architect-equals-defender and golfer-equals-attacker in terms of chess, pool, and air & land strikes in warfare.

"A well-defended golf hole is a giant chessboard where the designer has created a system of defenses" — sometimes obvious like waste bunkers, sometimes camouflaged, to sabotage the golfer's game, he writes.

Jones loads his book with hints for the golfer — from the view of a designer who is himself a pretty darn good golfer.

A couple of out-takes:

• "Your first lesson in course mastery is to be aware of the significant natural factors that should influence how you approach a course."

• "Visualize a hole as a series of planes without grass, trees and water. That's the designer's view when he lays out a hole."

• "Tailer your shot-making abilities to the course. You mentally take control of your stroke of your club. He tries to tantalize you into reading it for yourself. Ah-h, sweet success."

"Golf by Design" costs $25 and is published by Little, Brown and Co. of Boston, New York, Toronto and London.

Environmental Guidelines for Golf Course Maintenance Facilities

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — A free booklet entitled "Environmental Guidelines for Golf Course Maintenance Facilities" is being offered by RGF Environmental Systems, Inc.

RGF is making the booklet available "to give superintendents guidelines on reducing the risk of contaminants entering the environment and possible fines resulting from such actions."

It covers Environmental Protection Agency laws, maintenance shop housekeeping, mix-and-load operations, storm-water run-off, managing hazardous waste on site and pollution solutions.

Copies may be obtained by writing RGF at 3875 Fiscal Court, West Palm Beach, Fla. 33404; telephone 800-842-7771 or 407-848-1826.

RGF is involved in design, engineering, manufacturing and sales of pollution prevention equipment.
Mike Waldron leaves LPGA post to replace Mona at Georgia SGA

Mike Waldron, who had served as director of tournament services for the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA), has taken over as executive director of the Georgia State Golf Association (GSGA).

Waldron replaces Steve Mona, who was named president and chief executive officer of the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) late last year.

A native of Atlanta, Waldron has been a member of the GCSAA’s Board of Directors since 1978 and a member of the GSGA executive committee from 1988-90.

Prior to joining the LPGA staff, Waldron began his career in the golf industry as manager of regional affairs for the United States Golf Association.

construction," said Elizabeth Hart, National Club Association vice president and government liaison.

Hart noted that California not only mandates the 2-to-1 construction ratio but also requires a place for women to lie down. Men’s rooms have no couches.

In fact, I feel these states have not gone far enough! Why not? Well, have you ever seen a woman go to the ladies’ room alone? Ever? No, it’s an unwritten law (though our beloved government may mandate it some day) that women go in pairs. Enter that into the equation and what do you get? The ratio should rightfully be 4-1 in Florida, 6-2 in Minnesota.

That would cost still more, but who cares? Certainly not our government, which seems more and more bent on placing its thumb squarely on the populace in every corner of our lives... Even the restrooms.

You’ve heard of NIMBYs (Not in My Back Yards), but what about NIMPF (Not in My Picture Frame)? World-renowned golf photographer Tony Roberts lamented: "Rules are the worst thing that ever happened to golf. A hazard is a hazard."

Credit where it’s due, kind of. Remember the quotation about attitude in my March commentary? Superintendent Peter Leuzinger read it aloud during his talk at the GCSAA conference in Dallas, but didn’t know its author. To the rescue came Roger Smith of Ridgefield Country Club in Kingsport, Tenn., who called to tell us the quote comes from Tim Lautzenheiser. Smith discovered it a couple of years ago, had it blown up poster-size and framed in his office. Now — who in the world is Tim Lautzenheiser?

Dogged pursuit: Spotting our March story on border collies (see followup on page 34), Certified Golf Course Superintendent Thomas Dale of Radnor Valley Country Club in Villanova, Pa., told us he has used a border collie to keep geese off his course for 10 years. Samson recently died of cancer. His 8-month-old successor, Divots, is expected to take over the task this year.
