Stossel: Gov't should do less policing, more educating public

By MARK LESLIE

SAN FRANCISCO — Putting the blame squarely on government regulations and a willing accomplice, the media, John Stossel told an International Golf Course Conference and Show audience that the marketplace ought to be allowed to do the regulating in this country.

The ABC-TV consumer reporter joined panelists Dr. Kimberly Erusha of the U.S. Golf Association (USGA), who called on golf course superintendents to get people into the regulating in this country.

Ron Dodson of the Audubon Society of New York State, who urged superintendents to "reach out positively and not negatively" to the public as a major factor in the regulating process.

Paulette Pyle of Oregonians for Food and Agriculture. Those companies that want to help people will get around the rules, change what’s going on in our profession," said Wallace, who attended his first meeting the day after the election.

"Our focus will be on the superintendent's professional image, the environment and membership services in the coming year," he predicted.
