Kiawah Revisited
Pete Dye's Ocean Course has been purchased at auction again, by the same buyer: VIT

TAKING A BYTE FROM CONSTRUCTION TIME
Architect Brad Benz claims he's speeding up the construction process 30 to 50 percent by using a computer-generated drafting system. The latest example is a British project known as Duke's Dene. For stories, see page 29.

Golf Course News
The Newspaper for the Golf Course Industry

A United Publication
Volume 7, Number 6
June 1995 • $4.50

USCCA to offer clubs group buying option
By Peter Blais
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A recently formed organization designed to cut costs and increase efficiency at private clubs has ruffled a few feathers among other golf associations. The main focus of the United States Country Club Association (USCCA) is a group purchasing program called the Cooperative Alliance for Purchasing (CAP), according to its founder, president and sole stockholder. CAP reportedly leverages the buying power of USCCA member clubs to provide the best possible price for products and services such as insurance, maintenance equipment and supplies, food and beverage products, office equipment, irrigation materials and equipment, golf management systems and more.

Continued on page 35

Jack Nicklaus (from right), Jack II and design associate Chris Cochran survey plans in Palm City, Fla.

Nicklaus hops aboard the public-access bandwagon
By Mark Leslie
NORTH PALM BEACH, Fla. — The Nicklaus umbrella is about to expand, adding public-access golf clubs and community development and management to its bulky portfolio.

Nicklaus is starting a network of Golden Bear Golf Communities featuring semi-private, daily-fee golf courses. First out of the gate will be Golden Bear Golf Club at Laurel Springs, north of metro Atlanta in southern Forsyth County. Ground was broken in April. Watch for future communities in Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, Tampa and Nashville, said Golden Bear Financial Services President Ira Fenton.

Continued on page 32

Sticks & Stones: Firms play the name game
By Hal Phillips
The automobile industry annually spends millions of dollars researching model names that will catch the fancy of consumers. Sometimes the money is well spent; sometimes it may as well have been flushed down the toilet. Who, for example, dreamed up the Ford Probe, a product aimed ostensibly at young women on the move? Unfortunately for Ford, marketing experts believe the name tends to remind young women of pending trips to the gynecologist.

The Probe may be the golf course superintendents' equivalent to an herbicide called Leech-Rite. While the dollar value is modest in comparison, suppliers to the golf course industry also spend a great deal of time and money on the formulation of product names. Perhaps because of their sheer number and the often thankless nature of their functions, seed varieties and turf chemicals are tops when it comes to invention. Is it coincidence that so many seed varieties share names with automobiles? "Mustang, Falcon, Dasher, Fiesta"...

Continued on page 27
Nicklaus aboard public-access train

Continued from page 1

adding that two land deals could be finalized by the end of July. "Laurel Springs will be semi-private and daily-fee," Fenton said. "Atlanta is a very good daily-fee golf market. This is a gated community, but it will have middle-market housing and families whose capital and savings are going to educate their children rather than toward $40,000 to $50,000 golf memberships."

"We feel the daily-fee market is an area of opportunity for us," said Golden Bear International Golf Development Director Clyde Measey from his office here.

While the first Golden Bear Golf Community is Laurel Springs, Nicklaus and son Jackie are building the first Golden Bear Golf Club in Stuart. Expected to open in December, it will retain the tone of the communities, operating as a semi-private and daily-fee facility, said Golden Bear spokesman Andy O'Brien.

"It will be the first of a network of golf courses — first in the United States, then internationally," O'Brien said.

Besides the Stuart facility, future Golden Bear Golf Clubs will be tied to the residential communities, Measey said. It's entirely a Golden Bear operation. Nicklaus Golf Design is designing the courses. Paragon Golf Construction, Inc. is building them and Executive Sports Inc., operating under the Golf Course Sports Management Division, will manage them. Former PGA West Director of Golf Steve Walser has been hired to head the management team.

The cornerstone of the 630-acre Laurel Springs project will be a Jack Nicklaus Signature course, which Golden Bear will design, build and manage, Fenton said. The course should be completed within 24 months. Buildout of 854 single-family homes — by a dozen hand-picked Atlanta-area builders — is expected to begin in five months and be completed in six to eight years, he said.

It will be a model for future Golden Bear Golf Communities. Property owners may elect to have privileges, like preferred starting times and favorable pricing, that non-property owners won't have, Fenton said.

"Saying the Golden Bear group has worked on the concept for two years, Fenton said a key backer is a New York investment partner. Over the next five years, the network may number 10 to 15 projects, he added.

"We forecast that each project will have one 18-hole Nicklaus course. "Project size is an important consideration," Fenton said. "In the '70s and '80s you saw massive projects and thousands of house lots. We're trying to stay small enough that we can see the beginning and end of the project and not submit ourselves to unknowns in the economy."

Important in any market is doing business with local developers with proven track records and with knowledge about approvals, zoning, government and environmental agencies, he said. "We are trying our best not to be developers. Our function is to put these deals together with the right people and make sure they are structured in a manner that makes sense, as well as coordinate the marketing aspects."

For instance, Laurel Springs Development Co. in Atlanta consists of local developers Peter Millichap, Fritz Rybert and Lamar Wakefield, who have been in business for years, Fenton said.

Golden Bear chose Atlanta, Dallas and the other cities because of economic advances, particularly "net new jobs."

In recent years, Atlanta has added in excess of 80,000 net new jobs a year," Fenton said. "It is a market that is very strong into the 21st century... "Dallas has averaged 50,000 net new jobs a year for the last few years. That brings an ongoing demand for new housing."

Fenton said Golden Bear intends to set itself apart by the prestige of Jack Nicklaus himself. "People know we deliver a quality product," he said. "Jack is a partner, not just designer, in these projects. When he puts his name on anything, people know that represents quality."

Projects Nicklaus has designed and built for other developers "have outperformed competition for absorption rates and maximizing pricing," Fenton said. "We have done two communities in the past — Wynstone in Barrington, Ill., and Country Club of the South in Atlanta. Both are high-end, healthy products with private golf courses.

"Today, we're trying to [reach] a much broader market... The average home in Laurel Springs will be $325,000 to $350,000, compared to $800,000."

Meanwhile, since only 30 percent of homebuyers in golf course communities historically play golf, there should be plenty of tee times at the Golden Bear Golf Clubs. At least initially, as the communities mature and fill up, less time will be available, Fenton conceded.

standard Golf Company
P.O. Box 68
Cedar Falls, Iowa 50613 U.S.A.
260-2638
fax 319-266-9627

Walser has been hired to head the management team.

The cornerstone of the 630-acre Laurel Springs project will be a Jack Nicklaus Signature course, which Golden Bear will design, build and manage, Fenton said. The course should be completed within 24 months. Buildout of 854 single-family homes — by a dozen hand-picked Atlanta-area builders — is expected to begin in five months and be completed in six to eight years, he said.

It will be a model for future Golden Bear Golf Communities. Property owners may elect to have privileges, like preferred starting times and favorable pricing, that non-property owners won't have, Fenton said.

"Saying the Golden Bear group has worked on the concept for two years, Fenton said a key backer is a New York investment partner. Over the next five years, the network may number 10 to 15 projects, he added.

"We forecast that each project will have one 18-hole Nicklaus course. "Project size is an important consideration," Fenton said. "In the '70s and '80s you saw massive projects and thousands of house lots. We're trying to stay small enough that we can see the beginning and end of the project and not submit ourselves to unknowns in the economy."

Important in any market is doing business with local developers with proven track records and with knowledge about approvals, zoning, government and environmental agencies, he said. "We are trying our best not to be developers. Our function is to put these deals together with the right people and make sure they are structured in a manner that makes sense, as well as coordinate the marketing aspects."

For instance, Laurel Springs Development Co. in Atlanta consists of local developers Peter Millichap, Fritz Rybert and Lamar Wakefield, who have been in business for years, Fenton said.

Golden Bear chose Atlanta, Dallas and the other cities because of economic advances, particularly "net new jobs."

In recent years, Atlanta has added in excess of 80,000 net new jobs a year," Fenton said. "It is a market that is very strong into the 21st century... "Dallas has averaged 50,000 net new jobs a year for the last few years. That brings an ongoing demand for new housing."

Fenton said Golden Bear intends to set itself apart by the prestige of Jack Nicklaus himself. "People know we deliver a quality product," he said. "Jack is a partner, not just designer, in these projects. When he puts his name on anything, people know that represents quality."

Projects Nicklaus has designed and built for other developers "have outperformed competition for absorption rates and maximizing pricing," Fenton said. "We have done two communities in the past — Wynstone in Barrington, Ill., and Country Club of the South in Atlanta. Both are high-end, healthy products with private golf courses.

"Today, we're trying to [reach] a much broader market... The average home in Laurel Springs will be $325,000 to $350,000, compared to $800,000."

Meanwhile, since only 30 percent of homebuyers in golf course communities historically play golf, there should be plenty of tee times at the Golden Bear Golf Clubs. At least initially, as the communities mature and fill up, less time will be available, Fenton conceded.

standard Golf Company
P.O. Box 68
Cedar Falls, Iowa 50613 U.S.A.
260-2638
fax 319-266-9627

Walser has been hired to head the management team.