Superintendents honored as Environmental Stewards

Winners of the third annual Environmental Steward Awards have been announced by sponsors Ciba Turf and Ornamental Products, Rain Bird, the Jacobsen Division of Textron and new sponsor Lebanon Turf Products.

The companies also announced a donation of more than $22,000 to the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) Foundation. The number of entrants increased for the second straight year, this time by more than 20 percent.

The Environmental Steward Award program was created to recognize golf course superintendents and golf courses for their work to protect and/or enhance their local environments. For example, some past winners were recognized for overall course management excellence, outstanding programs to maximize pesticide and fertilizer efficacy, and irrigation and equipment efficiency, as well as wildlife preservation and enhancement.

All entries are reviewed by an independent panel of judges selected for their expertise in environmental issues and turfgrass management.

"With the high quality of entries and increased competition, winning an Environmental Steward Award has become one of the top honors for superintendents," said Joseph Baidy, CGCS, president of the GCSAA. "We thank Ciba, Rain Bird, Jacobsen and Lebanon for their continued support of this important program."

The Award structure also accounts for donations to the GCSAA Foundation in the names of all national and regional winners: $500 each for national winners and $50 each for regional winners. In addition, all four sponsoring companies donate $5,000 to the Foundation.

The judges for this year's competition were: Dr. Lee Berndt, certified professional agronomist; Dan Farrier, irrigation planning and design specialist; Dr. Bob Robertson, North Carolina State University; and Ron Dodson, New York State Audubon Society.
