PHOTO: Raymond Floyd

PINMAN/FLOYD PICKED GREAT EXUMA ISLAND, Bahamas — Bland Pittman and Raymond Floyd will design an 18-hole golf course as a cornerstone of a 518-acre luxury resort community which will be built here beginning this summer. The Bahama Club, Ltd. of Coral Gables, Fla., is developing the project, which is being designed by Randy & Babcock International and master-planned by Pittman Poe & Associates. Ritz-Carlton oceanfront hotel is also a centerpiece of the project.

COUNTY, HICKMAN HILLS ENTER PACT DUTCHESS COUNTY, N.Y. — The Duchess County Economic Development Corp. (EDC) has entered into an agreement with Hickman Hills Corp. for construction of an 18-hole golf course to be financed with EDC bonds. HMJ Corp., active in the golf world for 30 years, advised Hickman and structured the bond financing. Designed by Lee Trevino, the course should be under construction this spring and open for limited play in mid-season 1996.

GOLFDATA CREATES NEW SERVICES ROCKVILLE, Md. — GolfData International, Inc. has initiated a new high-tech information retrieval service—a fax-back system that offers “instant access to key golf market intelligence” it believes is crucial to business planning and development. The service includes golfer demographic profiles, consumer spending information, market data and financial statistics. CEO Scott Marlowe said the firm is also introducing GOLFFax, a newsletter. More information is available from GolfData at 15012 Red Clover Drive, Rockville, Md. 20853.

LAGREE JOINS BARBARON CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. — Black Diamond Ranch General Manager and Vice President Terrill A. LaGree has left to join Barbarian, Inc. as vice president and equal stockholder. LaGree is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin with a degree in landscape architecture.

FOSTER PROMOTES SCHAUPETER ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Arthur Schaupeter has been promoted to lead design associate with Keith Foster Golf Course Design here. Jason Hollow, a landscape architecture graduate of West Virginia University, has joined the design staff.

Designer Crenshaw takes little time to savor his second Masters victory

GOLDEN MILE RESORT, Fla. — With his second Masters victory tucked snug in his bank of “memories to keep,” the question in the golf development world is, what effect might it have on Ben Crenshaw’s course design career?

When Hale Irwin won the U.S. Open in 1990, his course design business soared. On the Wednesday after Crenshaw donned the Masters’ green blazer, his design partner Bill Coore reported that his Austin office had been deluged with congratulatory calls.

“It’s not that we expect that some people who were considering us may be swayed now,” Coore said, “but it’s too early to tell. We try to keep a separation between Ben’s playing career and what we do. But, obviously, there’s carryover.”

That night, Coore and Crenshaw were on a plane enroute to Tembagapura, Indonesia, where they face some unique “life situations.”

Impressed by Crenshaw and Coore’s golf course design at Barton Creek in Austin, Texas, as well as Crenshaw’s victory at their own Freeport-McMoRan Classic last year, Freeport-McMoRan officials hired the design team to craft an 18-hole track for their mining crews in Tembagapura.

With a complete community built around its copper and gold mine, Freeport-McMoRan decided a golf course would be fitting, as a respite for its employees and visitors from abroad, Crenshaw said.

“It will provide play for the miners and for the Americans, Australians and others who come from elsewhere who are involved in the operation,” Crenshaw said. The facility will be geared more toward being recreational than money-making, he added.

Clearing of the site began last fall, and Crenshaw, taking a break from the PGA Tour, said, “We hope to start grassing in the summer and try to have an opening in the fall.”

Building the course in concert with Freeport-McMoRan’s engineering team, Coore and Crenshaw will import their own shapers to fine-tune their design. “Their equipment is there and if we remove the cobwebs. A fresh outlook and a deeper appreciation full of life in general would surely result.

The adventure had started with a trans-Atlantic flight to London and a continuation to New Delhi, the capital of India. From there it was just an hour and a half to the top of the world. We landed here in exotic Katmandu. The name of Nepal’s capital had intrigued me ever since my first geography lesson on Asia. Actually, the place is a bit of a disappointment. There are no cats in sight; instead, it is loaded with dogs. I suppose if it was called Dogmandu no one would go there.

On the way from the airport I got blurry-eyed from a speeding taxi view of a small red flag in a vacant field but immediately banished the words “golf course” from my mind. I had made a sacred vow to stay away from golf courses.

Two days later, after visiting five temples and three museums, I succumbed to the group, hired a rickshaw and headed for the Royal Nepal golf Club. It was noon time on a warm, sunny day in November when I climbed a fence to have a closer look at the grass. Imagine my surprise when the first green I came to was not green at all, but black, since the putting surface was made from used oil and sand. Greens such as these I had not seen since the ’60s in Saskatchewan. The trees were small, elevated and rectangular. They had recently been top

GOLFDATA CREATES NEW SERVICES
ROCKVILLE, Md. — GolfData International, Inc. has initiated a new high-tech information retrieval service—a fax-back system that offers “instant access to key golf market intelligence” it believes is crucial to business planning and development. The service includes golfer demographic profiles, consumer spending information, market data and financial statistics. CEO Scott Marlowe said the firm is also introducing GOLFFax, an online newsletter. More information is available from GolfData at 15012 Red Clover Drive, Rockville, Md. 20853.

LAGREE JOINS BARBARON
CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. — Black Diamond Ranch General Manager and Vice President Terrill A. LaGree has left to join Barbarian, Inc. as vice president and equal stockholder. LaGree is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin with a degree in landscape architecture.

FOSTER PROMOTES SCHAUPETER
ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Arthur Schaupeter has been promoted to lead design associate with Keith Foster Golf Course Design here. Jason Hollow, a landscape architecture graduate of West Virginia University, has joined the design staff.