Environmental Golf purchases Sandpiper

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Environmental Golf has acquired Sandpiper Golf Course through an alliance between Environmental Golf, Golf Trust of America, Inc. and The Santa Barbara Club Resort and Spa. Golf Trust of America has purchased the property and Environmental Golf and The Santa Barbara Club Resort and Spa have entered into a long-term lease.

Sandpiper Golf Course is situated on the Santa Barbara coastline with commanding views of the Pacific Ocean and Santa Ynez Mountains. Designed by William Bell in 1972, Sandpiper is one of only four oceanfront golf courses along the coast of California.

"We believe the opportunity of combining Sandpiper Golf Course with our existing, neighboring golf course, Glen Annie Golf Club, will provide a unique destination of golf for players of all skill levels. It is our ultimate intention to provide a world-class golf experience in Santa Barbara," said Mike Dingman, EG's Director of golf.

Rinzetti takes on new position

By PETER BLAIS

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Wykagyl Golf Course's Stephen Rinzetti isn't the general manager. His successor, the director of sports and facilities, putting him in charge of everything to do with sports at Wykagyl — golf, bowling, paddle tennis, tennis, pool and outings.

"I never wanted to be a general manager," Rinzetti said. "I'm not interested in food and beverage. I'm not interested in being at the club for the New Year's Eve party or Thanksgiving Day dinner. I'd rather be home with my family [including wife, Angela and two boys aged 18 and 1 month]. The general manager and food and beverage manager have to be there... My goal was to be in a position that I had more control of what I was responsible for, putting out a quality product."

His position allows him to do just that. This year, for instance, Rinzetti decreased the number of outings from 20 to 15 while increasing the fee to outing organizers. The result will be that outing revenue remains the same, but the quality of the course will improve for members because there will be less outside play.

Rinzetti's major goal was to become an agronomist with the U.S. Golf Association. He received a degree in agronomy in 1987 and did his internship at Quaker Ridge. "I often joke that I got my bachelor's degree from Rhode Island and my master's from [Quaker Ridge Superintendent] Tony Savone," Rinzetti said. "He's been at Quaker Ridge 25 years."

Rinzetti spent 2 1/2 years as Savone's assistant before moving on to head superintendent at Burning Tree Club in Greenwich, Conn., at age 23. "There were a lot of qualified people interviewing for that job," Rinzetti said. "I just said the right thing to the right guy."

After three years at Burning Tree, Wykagyl came calling. Wykagyl, host of mid-July's LPGA JAL (Japan Air Lines) Big Apple Classic, fulfilled one of Rinzetti's major goals, to be the head man at a professional tournament venue. "It gave me the opportunity to display what I could do on a national screen," he said. It also allowed him to stay in touch with other professionals in the golf industry, including GOLF magazine, which is the presenting sponsor; JAL, which sent him to Japan to see how courses were maintained there last year; and the LPGA, whose members series he did on Wykagyl weeks before the event.

Rinzetti has always taken a pro-active stance at his courses. "I always figured the more I knew about the total operation the more valuable I'd be to that club and the more marketable I'd be if I had to move on."

So he involved himself in clubhouse construction projects, pool activities and golf outings. "I made it known that I wanted to be invited to those activities. After awhile it became a matter of routine for others to ask me if I wanted to get involved in this or that or to ask my opinion. It made me more valuable to the club because I had a grasp of the entire operation. That allowed me to understand the financials of the club, the more I understood about the value of outings, increased play, the economic impact of the pro."

Contrary to what many believe, most superintendents welcome golfers to their courses and input from the club pro. "Why would a great chef cook a wonderful dish..."
