Ritz-Carlton barrels into course management with high-end clubs

ATLANTA — There’s a new player in the competitive field of golf course management, and this one comes loaded with cachet: the Ritz-Carlton Hotel Company, headquartered here.

For now, the company has only three courses in its portfolio, but that will grow to at least 17 over the next few years, as the number of Ritz-Carlton hotels grows.

Waterhouse, a Ritz-Carlton vice president, said he hopes to bring to the courses the same levels of quality and service that distinguish the company’s famous hotels. “We believe we’ll be the benchmark in the industry,” he said. “By extending the Ritz-Carlton imprint of excellence to managing existing and new golf facilities, we have an opportunity to make an impact on the market and deliver a product with a difference.”

Waterhouse plans to employ a three-pronged growth strategy. First, his division will manage courses affiliated with Ritz-Carlton hotel and resort properties. It also will enter into management agreements with independent, top-caliber country clubs. And, third, it will look to develop an interest in courses not yet built. “We’ll work with residential developers who have an interest in having a golf club to enhance their residential community,” he said.

WHITE WITCH IN JAMAICA

In the first case, an example is the White Witch Course at the Ritz-Carlton, at Rose Hall, Jamaica, which opened in June. It sits near the company’s new 428-room resort, 10 minutes from Montego Bay.

The White Witch, designed by architects Robert von Hagge and Rick Baril, companies, provided 1,600 acres of land, located on a portion of the historic Big Sky Ranch, and commissioned Dye to create two 18-hole public golf courses.

Supers in Southeast coping with drought

HILTON HEAD, S.C. — How bad is it? Here in the southeast corner of South Carolina, only 10.3 inches of rain had fallen as of mid-July. A normal year would have brought 36 inches by Independence Day. And that’s after a dismal 1999, when the area came in 10 inches below normal.

“We’re real dry,” said Steve Wright, superintendent at the Long Cove Club, a private, 18-hole, Pete Dye facility here on Hilton Head Island. “The greens are fine but the green banks are burnt. The edges are bad. We have effluent and water from the lagoon, where we trap rainwater. But now the..."

in house for PGA with Hunt being joined by golf architect Marcus Blackburn. With ideal growing conditions for the Bermudagrass, around 1,000 acres available on the estate and the top specification for USGA greens, Hunt and Blackburn believe that they have delivered "the goods."

"The Bermudagrass course winds along beaches, around coral peninsulas, through mangroves and down to a hidden lagoon," said Hunt, clearly enthusiastic about the picturesque layout.

A 200-room Hilton Hotel is due for a July opening, with another hotel to start construction later this year. All 120 condominiums and 85 villas of the first phase have been sold, and work on a third nine holes will start within the next few months, including at least 100 more villas.

Elsewhere in Tobago, the Mount Irvine Golf Club — formerly a 'Top 100' course in the world, according to Shell — is in the process of being refurbished, giving Tobago Plantations "good company," said Hunt."

Dye's Lost Canyons to open in fall

Under the supervision of PGA Tour star Fred Couples, both courses are scheduled to open this fall.

"It's the property that will make this course so special. I have never in my life seen a property like this one," Dye said. "Pebble Beach has the Pacific Ocean, and you can't duplicate that kind of ambiance, but this place will have unmatched views of up to 20 and 30 miles from some points."

The two tracks will feature distinctive golf architect concepts. The Shadow Course will follow the terrain of the rolling canyon floor, and the Sky Course will run along the ridgelines of the canyon. As Dye explained, "The golf courses are both totally connected. It's all self-contained. From a gallery point of view, you can put all of Los Angeles out here."

"There was no need to try to trick up anything at Lost Canyons," Dye added. "The ambiance and the challenge are already here. You just have to make it as playable as possible. If they held a Tour event here, you would have players shooting 64 or 65, but there's also going to be a few 82s thrown in there, too."

Both courses will measure about 7,000 yards from the back tees, and the daily fees will range from $115 to $135, with reduced rates for seniors. Included in the fee will be a forrefather, who will greet players on arrival and provide them with information that includes strategy from any of the five tees, direction and club selection. The crowning jewel in the center of it all will be an 11,000-square-foot ranch-style clubhouse, including a pro shop, executive conference rooms and a bar.

Dye, who has designed eight of the top 20 ranked modern courses in the United States, believes that his new creation will move to the top of the list.

"Lost Canyons should be among the best courses I've designed because of the topography," he said. He believes that golf should be accepted more in its natural state, and that is the case here.

"There are no fast greens in Ireland or Scotland. They all have different mixtures of grasses and the sand in the bunkers. I really don't agree with courses that are so artificial that if there is a blade of grass out of place, there's something wrong. Lost Canyons is such a great place to build a golf course because everything is so natural.

You don't have to try to wiggle in a bunker; all we're trying to do is combine a golf course with what's already here."

"I think this is a great thing for people in L.A. who just see buildings and cars," he said. "We're so close to 20 million people here and you don't see a soul — nothing but hills and greens."

Lost Canyons represents Landmark National's debut in Los Angeles. The company currently has golf properties under development in Houston and Padre Island, Texas and in Maryland, Mississippi and Ireland.
