Gene that limits plant growth discovered

By ANDREW OVERBECK
SAN DIEGO — A team of genetic scientists at the Salk Institute lead by Dr. Joanne Chory have discovered the gene that controls plant height by limiting the activity of a growth hormone. The scientists have been successful in transferring the gene to tobacco plants and experiments are underway with rice. If they can get it to work in corn or rice, then the chances of its working in turf go from promising to highly possible.

In the popular press, the discovery of the growth gene has garnered headlines touting the possibility of "no-mow" turf, prompting joy among homeowners who believe they will

Century’s Top Supers: Sherwood Moore, Warren Bidwell

By PETER BLAIS

Warren Bidwell and Sherwood Moore were the most influential superintendents of the 1900s, according to a Golf Course News survey of past Golf Course Superintendents Association of America (GCSAA) presidents, former Canadian Golf Superintendents Association presidents and current GCSAA chapter presidents.

Bidwell — a 64-year GCSAA member, national director and Distinguished Service Award winner — received the most votes among deceased nominees.

He was followed, in order, by Colonel John Morley and Chester Mendenhall (tied for second), Joe Valentine, Leo Feser, Arthur Snyder, Harold Stodola, Bill Lyons, Marshall Farnham and Tom Johnson.

Moore — a longtime GCSAA member who served as

New openings eclipse 500

By MARK LESLIE

JUPITER, Fla. — The golf boom of the 1990s has continued into 2000 — in a record-eclipsing way. Some 509 golf courses came on line in the United States in 1999, according to the National Golf Foundation (NGF). At the same time, the pipeline continues to be full. At the end of the year, 946 courses were under construction and 908 were in planning. This compared to the end of 1998 when 1,069 were under construction and 708 were
