Paul Eldredge

Eldredge Joining Rainmaker

COLUMBIA, Md. — Paul Eldredge, who retired in December as president of Wadsworth Golf Construction Co., will join The Rainmaker Group, a golf course and residential development concern, as a principal. Eldredge will serve part-time as executive vice president, assuming business development and project management responsibilities on both golf and residential projects. He worked 37 years for Wadsworth and was involved in building more than 500 golf courses around the country. "After nearly 40 years in construction, I wanted to take a broader role in development," Eldredge said.

Sasser Joins Weitz

NORTH PALM BEACH, Fla. — Weitz Golf International has hired Warren T. "Tommy" Sasser as vice president of marketing. Sasser’s primary responsibility will be to direct the company’s golf course construction marketing efforts. Prior to joining Weitz Golf, Sasser was president of Golf Development Consultants. Sasser is on the board of directors of the Golf Course Builders Association of America, and is a member of the National Golf Foundation, Golf Course Superintendents Association of America, Urban Land Institute and Society of American Foresters.

Phelps Lands Vail Job

VAIL, Colo. — The Eagle-Vail Metro District has received $3.5 million of bond financing for improvements to the Eagle-Vail golf course. The golf course design firm of Richard M. Phelps, Ltd. has been asked to plan construction, I wanted to take a broader role in development," Eldredge said.

Texas making dream come true for kids, amateurs — themselves

By FRANCES G. TRIMBLE

Corby Robertson and Chris Gilbert are two friends and veterans of the University of Texas football wars who, as college juniors, dreamed of opening a summer sports camp for kids. Camp Olympia, where children gain new athletic skills in a natural environment, opened in 1968 with 86 campers. The camp, which has always featured an introduction to golf, now serves over 8,000 youngsters each summer. The camp’s success does not mean that Robertson and Gilbert gave up dreaming.

Recently the two announced their latest vision:

- Whispering Pines Golf Club, 18-holes built on “a very special” 400-acre tract of land about 90 miles north of Houston, in Trinity County, Texas, next door to Camp Olympia.
- World Health & Golf Association, a not-for-profit corporation whose beneficiaries are the world-renowned Texas Medical Center Institutions and a First Tee Program for 5,000 fifth-graders.

Nancy Lopez aims for name in 2nd career: design

In her rookie season on the LPGA, in 1977-78, Nancy Lopez won nine tournaments, including five in a row and setting a standard for winning that has not been equaled since. Elected into the LPGA Hall of Fame in 1987 at the age of 30, she is still active on the Tour, but has set her sights on a new challenge—golf course design. Working with her agent, IMG, she has launched Nancy Lopez Course Design and is already awaiting contracts for two projects. In the meantime, she has been selected to receive the prestigious Old Tom Morris Award in February from the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America. Editor Mark Leslie found her during one of her few quiet moments at home in Albany, Ga., where she lives with her husband, former Major League player Bob Trebus, three dogs and three cats. GCN: Part of the Old Tom Morris Award is to acknowledge your helping to "mold the welfare of the game." How do you feel you have done that? Lopez: It’s difficult for me to talk about myself, but character and sportsmanship have always been important to me. You can always be a good player, but if you’re a jerk it’s not worth it; you’ve not accomplished what you should have because golf is a gentleman’s sport. It is a game that tests you, that builds your character. I’ve always totally respected...
Renovation seminars

Continued from page 31
March 17); and Los Angeles (Riviera Country Club, April 12).

ASGCA President John LaFoy will headline each event and will be joined at each venue by a panel of ASGCA architects. Among those slated to speak are past presidents Ed Seay (Chicago), Mike Hardzan (New York), and Arthur Hills (Atlanta).

"Remodeling University is a must for anyone seeking to understand the basics of the remodeling process," said LaFoy. "Whether it's keeping up with technology or the competition, most clubs will consider a remodeling project ... in the next few years. While there are no universal solutions with golf courses, Remodeling University will help public and private course representatives ask the right questions in this process."

The accredited panel at each venue will discuss many remodeling and restoration issues such as the basics of remodeling; budgeting and planning; and the roles and responsibilities of the golf course architect, superintendent and green committee.

"Remodeling University is working with the Chicago District Golf Association, Georgia State Golf Association, Metropolitan Golf Association and Southern California Golf Association to co-sponsor and stage the events.

People may get registration forms from the ASGCA, 221 North LaSalle St., Suite 3600, Chicago, Ill. 60601, or register online from the ASGCA web site at www.golfdesign.org. For additional information, contact Tony Hourston at 312-372-7090, or via e-mail at asgca@selz.com.

Tillinghast Assn.

Continued from page 31

be featured on the association's web page: http://tillinghast.net. Along with those entries will be articles written by members.

"When we visit Tillinghast courses we will write about them and invite others to write as well," Trebus said. "A lot of people are restoring Tillinghast courses and writing about their projects."

By word of mouth, the association already has more than 70 members, Trebus said. Richard Wolfe is the vice president and Stuart, his son, vice president of research.

They are planning their first meeting for sometime this fall at either Shawnee Country Club in Pennsylvania or Bethpage State Park in New York. Shawnee was Tillinghast's first design and Bethpage's three courses were among his last.

"When we visit Tillinghast courses we will write about them and invite others to write as well," Trebus said. "A lot of people are restoring Tillinghast courses and writing about their projects."

By word of mouth, the association already has more than 70 members, Trebus said. Richard Wolfe is the vice president and Stuart, his son, vice president of research.

They are planning their first meeting for sometime this fall at either Shawnee Country Club in Pennsylvania or Bethpage State Park in New York. Shawnee was Tillinghast's first design and Bethpage's three courses were among his last.

Asked what he most admires about Tillinghast, Trebus said: "He was a real traditionalist. He was not gimmicky at all. He rewarded for a good shot and penalized for a bad shot, but not severely. Tillinghast courses have wide fairways with entranceways to the green. You stray and you're hitting over trouble to the green. He knew how to use trees — for the game, not as markers... And he used bunkers for strategic golf."

Membership is tied to the two books TreeWolf Productions has published on Tillinghast. A third book, "Gleanings by the Wayside," is due out by the end of 2000 or early 2001.

"Growing the association just seems to be happening," Trebus said. "We developed this web site. People are telling other people and they are asking to join. If you own both books you get a free membership. If not, you buy them."

To join, people should contact e-mail: btrebus@bellatlantic.net.

Texans & youths

Continued from previous page

by golf may seem far-fetched at first blush. However, the two have proven track records with ventures where everyone seems to win. One is Camp Olympia. Another is Davenport Ranch in Austin, Texas, where Robertson and his sister Beth Robertson Morian built high-end housing, Austin Country Club's excellent Pete Dye course, and Wild Basin, a nature preserve created with donated land. For three generations, the Robertson family has supported the Texas Medical Center's programs for international health care, teaching programs, and research.

Additional information is available by calling Angela Atkins, Vice President for Development at (713) 751-7568.