Carl M. Freeman launches e-commerce venture

By ANDREW OVERBECK

POTOMAC, Md. — Following its investment in tee time provider Teetimes.com, Carl M. Freeman Associates has launched Carl M. Freeman Golf Solutions (CMF Golf Solutions), a company focused on developing Internet-based golf course management technology.

While the company is entering a market that is ripe with competition, CMF Golf Solutions has taken a different approach to e-commerce by serving the needs of the golfer, the golf course, and manufacturers and distributors. The key to setting its venture apart, according to Danny Stovall, chief executive officer of the company, is its 40 percent stake in Teetimes.com that gives CMF Golf Solutions management and board control over the company.

“We are going to merge the two companies to form one end-to-end service provider for the golf course industry,” he said. “Teetimes.com is on 120 courses in the Mid-Atlantic states and that is just the beginning of our network into the golf course. Our focus is actually more on the golf course than it is on the golfer, but Teetimes.com is a way to gain entry to golf courses.

“We are working on the development business-to-business exchange that will allow golf course pro shops and maintenance facilities to interact with manufacturers and distributors,” said Stovall.

Right now we are developing the tee times management and yield management software.”

CMF Golf Solutions has partnered with Cambridge-based C-Bridge, an integrator of strategies and technology, to build the server network necessary to power the system. The company is now working on beta testing at four courses and will roll out the course management services by the end of the year.

The challenge for CMF Golf Solutions will be signing on vendors. “The whole industry is in turmoil because companies don’t know which Internet system to latch on to,” said Stovall.

However, Stovall believes that Teetimes.com will give the company the traction it needs to gain credibility with manufacturers. “Already having a system in place gives us a network we can build from,” he said.

To this point, CMF Golf Solutions has been funded internally, but Stovall expects that as the scope and reach of the company expands, outside investors will be needed.

COMPETITION AND CONSOLIDATION

However, unique and broad-reaching CMF Golf Solutions’ e-commerce strategy is, the company faces stiff competition in a marketplace that is full to the “Since we set things up over here we have quadrupled sales and now we are increasing the product range,” said Philip Threadgold, executive vice president of Redexim Charterhouse.

Threadgold said that the company will distribute the Pro-Seed line through both its network of 47 distributors and through Pro-Seed’s existing North American distributors. “We will be meeting with Pro-Seed’s current distributors and we hope to continue those agreements wherever possible,” he said.
