VIRGINIA COURSES CHANGE OWNERSHIP

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Hampton Roads Golf Clubs LLC has acquired two courses from National Golf Operating Properties for a combined $6.75 million. One is Honey Bee Golf Club, in Virginia Beach, an 18-hole daily-fee layout established in 1989. The other is Chesapeake Golf Club, in Chesapeake, Va., also 18 holes and open since 1989. Both courses are daily-fee facilities. The properties changed hands in June, with the transaction handled by real estate broker Douglas Henkel.

KEMPERSPORTS ADDS TWO CLUBS

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — The Kansas City Parks and Recreation Department has signed a contract with KemperSports Management to operate Hodge Park Golf Course and to open the new Shoal Creek Golf Course. The two layouts are adjacent to each other and make up two of the five city golf courses. KemperSports has operated Falcon Ridge Golf Course in Lenexa, Kan., since 1997 and Independence Golf Course since 1998. Architect Steve Wollford took 180 acres of land and sculpted 18 holes over rolling terrain and through heavily wooded areas to construct Shoal Creek, the city's newest golf course. Duane Sander is the superintendent.

High Sierras: Intrawest Golf lands Coyote Moon contract

By JAY FINEGAN

TRUCKEE, Calif. — Intrawest Golf has been selected to manage the popular daily-fee Coyote Moon Golf Club here in Truckee, near Lake Tahoe in the High Sierras.

The par-72 course plays to 7,100 yards at an elevation of 6,300 feet. The layout, designed by former PGA Tour pro Brad Bell and his partner Chris Steel, rolls through 250 acres of secluded piney forests and sweeps over valleys, ravines and lakes.

The 18-hole track is rare in California, as it is a stand-alone project, built strictly for golf, not to sell building lots. Not a single house disrupts the natural environment.

Coyote Moon, which opened last year, is ranked as one of the top five new courses in California by California Golf Guide, and Intrawest hopes to make the facility even better.

Golfers are teased to play shots into greens protected by huge rock outcroppings, hit to pins 80 feet below over creeks, and nail drives over tantalizingly long lakes. Throughout the course, the challenge of shaping shots to negotiate nature's purest challenges adds to the enjoyment of playing on a unique piece of property.

"The club has a strong fan base, and is widely recognized among players as one of the top new facilities in the area," said Jeff Stipee, senior vice president of Intrawest Golf. "Our game plan is to integrate the things the club already does well with the practices and procedures that have earned Intrawest golf courses around the country sterling reputations for exceptional conditioning and guest service."

Intrawest Golf, headquartered in Scottsdale, Ariz., is a division of Intrawest Corp., a Vancouver-based firm that also operates premier ski resorts.

Branton Woods, north of New York City in the Hudson Valley region, promises to be as challenging a layout as any course, public or private, in the tri-state area. Designed by Eric Bergstol, president and founder of Empire Golf, the course cruises through woods and fields, with mountain views on many holes.

Errant golf shots 'natural as rainfall,' court rules

By JOE DEVANNEY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — In an unusual decision handed down recently, the Illinois Supreme Court formally declared it common knowledge that "golfers do not always hit their balls straight." Crooked or wild shots, the court said, are "as natural as gravity or ordinary rainfall."

And with that, the case was closed, but not before imparting some useful advice for course developers trying to forge neighborly relations with nearby homeowners.

The ruling involved a lawsuit originally filed by plaintiffs Larry and Choh-Ying Geddes, of Kane County. They believed that Mill Creek Country Club, adjacent to their property, committed intentional trespass and nuisance against them. The club was allegedly culpable because errant golf balls were continuously hit onto their land from the fifth hole.

Before reaching the state Supreme Court, the Geddes had asked the trial court, and then an appellate court, for compensatory and punitive damages from Mill Creek, a daily-fee facility in Geneva, Ill., managed by American Golf. They also had sought to enjoin the club "from causing and allowing the continual trespass of golf balls to occur."

LOCATION, LOCATION, LOCATION

The facts of the case date back to 1986, when the Geddes purchased 16.5 acres of land. At the same time, a golf club, which would eventually become Mill Creek, was being contemplated as part of a planned development in the adjacent area.

The plaintiffs, who used their property both as a residence and as a nursery/agricultural business, eventually signed a 1996 agreement with the developers. It provided for an eight-foot-high chain link fence with two 14-foot entrance gates along the common border of the properties.

One provision of the agreement stated that "the fence and gates will be installed when the golf course fairway that borders the Geddes' western property line is constructed." Other references to a "golf course" were scattered throughout the document.

2,128 LOST BALLS

The plaintiffs later argued, however, that the agreement never mentioned golf balls. They had always insisted, they said, investments include a professional soccer team, a restaurant and real estate holdings. Scott Oki is the group's chairman. Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.

Developed by Vicwood Meridian Partnership, the two courses are part of a 1,153-acre master-planned community. When completed, the project will include several residential neighborhoods, two parks, schools and a business center.
