LIVING A MILLION-DOLLAR DREAM

BY JERRY POLING

ST. JAMES, Minn. — In 1992 at age 55, Bob Lewis Jr. had planned to retire early on disability from his job as corporate meeting planner with Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance in St. Paul.

He had a bad heart condition, suffering from heart failure, and he was living with a total of 85,000 miles a year around the world, he was looking forward to relaxing at his Apple Valley, Minn., home with his wife.

Then came that lunch break at work in April 1992 when he remembered to check his lottery ticket. One by one, all his Powerball numbers matched. He had won $12.5 million, payable in 20 annual instalments of $625,000 ($455,000 after taxes). Suddenly he was a millionaire on paper and could laugh at the world: "I tell people I'm on a fixed income: I only get one check a year," Lewis said.

Contrary to what many people might have done, Lewis didn't act like a kid who had just found a $100 bill at an amusement park. He kept working for another year, as planned. Three years later in 1995, after pondering his options he made an informed decision on how to use some of his windfall. He decided to buy a golf course.

Lewis previously did not have visions of owning a course, unlike many golfers. He loved the game and was an average player by his own admission, but had quit years earlier because of his back. Except for organizing corporate golf events, the game had slipped out of his life.

A close family friend, Mike Luckraft, had become a golf pro in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area and suggested that Lewis look into buying a course. Lewis had been hoping to find a seasonal business that would allow him to work part time.

With Luckraft as an adviser, Lewis looked at several courses before hearing about a struggling 9-hole course in St. James, Minn. (pop. 5,000) about 75 miles south of the Twin Cities. They saw many possibilities. The low-budget Watonwan Country Club in St. James wasn't much to look at, but that didn't bother Lewis. First, he saw a nice piece of land. The Watonwan River ran through the course, which had lovely trees.

So why did he choose a highly competitive and sometimes frustrating business? Lewis said he made a sound business decision and a good investment — and for the second time had a little "luck" on his side.

FGS BUILDING ON FIRST CONTRACT

BY DEREK RICE

HERSHEY, Pa. — Freedom Golf Services (FGS), which was founded by former Gotham Golf Group vice president Allen Dupuy in January, has signed its first management contract.

FGS will take over day-to-day operations of Crockett's Ridge Golf Club in Kingsport, Tenn. This includes a scheduled closure begun in May to allow for an extensive course renovation to improve playability and turf conditions.

The deal, Dupuy said, is the first of what could be many that FGS closes this year. "We have an additional three to five properties with whom we are having discussions," Dupuy said. "Our goal over the next 12 months is to acquire three to four properties with any combination of management, lease or purchase."

Dupuy said the service FGS is seeing the most demand for is its golf course consulting or full-service management, which he said is understandable. "We feel our brand can be directly attributed to the fluctuations in the nation's economy," Dupuy said.

That's not to say there aren't lease or purchase options out there for FGS, Dupuy said. "We've received as well, albeit to a lesser degree, inquiries from parties seeking to lease or sell their respective courses," he said.

The economy, Dupuy said, was one of the main factors that led him to found FGS. He said he saw an opportunity to get involved with some good properties at good prices. At Crockett's Ridge, FGS hired Chris Waller as general manager and Raymond Perez superintendent, both of whom have a proven record of success. "We feel like we've got a lot of key people in place," Dupuy said. "We're going forward, and Dupuy said FGS has some clear objectives in mind as it grows.

"The vision for FGS is not to become the largest management firm or course operator in the nation," he said. "We simply try to operate each of our golf properties as if they were our own private venture, and therefore we never lose sight of the primary objective — driving bottom-line net cash flow while being cognizant not to injure customer service."

FSG unveils management system

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Troon Golf has developed and introduced a revenue management system that allows each Troon facility to manage tee time inventory and maximize revenues. The Troon Golf Revenue Management Program incorporates a proprietary demand-pricing process that is available at any Troon facility.

The system was developed in consultation with Sherri Kimes, professor at the Cornell University School of Hotel Management. Kimes' research suggests golf facilities adopt yield-management philosophies similar to the hospitality industry. A pilot at one of Troon's daily fee facilities showed what the company calls a significant increase in revenue.

Guy Sugden will serve as Troon's revenue manager and will work directly with reservation agents and operations officers at each of the company's facilities to implement the system.
