Summit Golf adds to growing portfolio

By ANDREW OVERBECK

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Seizing upon the turmoil in the golf course business, Summit Golf Group has added three new management contracts so far in 2002, bringing its growing portfolio to five courses. The company anticipates having 15 management agreements in place by the end of the year.

"The golf business is struggling and when that happens it benefits good operators like Summit Golf. When times are lean you have to watch costs. Clubs will have to evaluate Summit Golf specializes in turn around deals, and the three it just signed are no different.

Experts urge clubs to tackle turnover problems

By DAVID HUBBARD

By 2006, the hospitality industry will need to add 20 million more workers to cover the anticipated growth — the highest projected for all major industries over the next 10 years.

The search for new employees to effectively handle the growth illuminates another issue, how to manage existing employee turnover rates.

Speaking at the National Golf Course Owners Association Conference (NGCOA) in Phoenix in January, human resources specialists, John Sibbald, president of John Sibbald & Associates, an executive search firm based in St. Louis, Mo., and Catherine Gustafson, Ph.D., University of South Carolina, cited the more significant problems and offered a few solutions.

"Reducing turnover is critical as the losses can be enormous and are both tangible and intangible," said Gustafson. "Left unchecked, it can cause the loss of consistency and uniformity in the delivery of a business' products and services, the potential for poor customer service, lost sales, a lowered perception of managerial effectiveness, as well as the time lost in filling vacant positions."

When the employee turnover rate becomes inordinate to the normal flow of workers in and out of a facility, Sibbald encourages business owners and managers to take a more

Intrawest acquires Hawaii's Big Island Country Club

By ANDREW OVERBECK

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Intrawest Golf has completed its first acquisition in two years with the purchase of Big Island Country Club in Kaiula-Kona, Hawaii. The deal includes a Pete and Perry Dye designed 18-hole golf course and all developed and undeveloped real estate around the course.

Although the golf and tourism markets have been volatile of late in Hawaii, Intrawest is confident that its acquisition of Big Island Country Club will be successful.

"It has the same season as Arizona where we have a number of courses," said marketing manager Ben Keilholtz. "Once you get to May you depend on local traffic, and I think the course is well positioned with locals."

Keilholtz said that while tourism numbers are down, the project should pay off in the long-term.

"It is not the best of markets right now, but it will pick back up," he said. "If we had gone in at the peak of the market, there might have been some concerns. But to get a return on this asset should be a fairly attainable number."

GM, superintendent team up to buy LaCita CC

By JOEL JOYNER

TITUSVILLE, Fla. — Owner and club manager Jim Musick and owner and director of grounds Dale Quinn joined forces to make a dream come true last November by purchasing their own private golf facility here at LaCita Country Club.

The two first met in 1991 while working at the Woodlake Country Club in Pinehurst, N.C. "I was the assistant golf professional and Dale was the course superintendent at the time," said Musick. "We've been looking for a facility with the right opportunity since 1997. I, personally, have probably looked at over 100 golf courses in Florida, South Carolina and North Carolina."

The course was built in 1984 and designed by Lee Trevino and Ron Garl. The club is about a 40 minute drive west from downtown Orlando and sits just across from Cape Canaveral. The two managing partners knew from the start that they wanted a private facility. "We had made offers on three clubs that were unsuccessful," Musick said. "A friend told me about LaCita when I was working for American Golf over in Jacksonville."
