ATLANTA — The golf industry will descend on Atlanta for the 74th Golf Course Superintendents Association of America International Golf Course Conference and Show at the Georgia World Congress Center Feb 10 to 15.

Attendance at the show has surpassed 20,000 in each of the past seven years. Last year in Orlando, 726 exhibitors filled 272,600 square feet of space. While organizers said the Atlanta show will be a bit smaller than Orlando, a location that is always a top draw, there will be plenty of activity this year.

In addition to electing new officers and directors at the annual meeting, Feb. 14, members will vote on a proposed dues increase and whether to amend the GCSAA’s articles of incorporation. The association is seeking a change in the articles to make it easier for the board of directors to reach a decision on a possible relocation of the GCSAA’s headquarters (see Point/Counterpoint on page 4). Other activities at this year’s show include:

- The Opening Session Feb. 12, with a keynote address by former Ohio congressman John R. Kasich, who served nine terms and is now a business leader and author of the New York Times bestseller “Courage Is Contagious.”
- The Golf General Session Feb. 13, will feature a talk by Captain Al Haynes, who will discuss how luck, communication, preparation, execution and cooperation saved the lives of 184 people aboard the plane he piloted in a 1989 crash-landing.

More information on the Atlanta show can be found at www.golfcourseshow.com.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Since the February temperatures in Hot’lanta are anything but hot, the 2003 GCSAA Golf Championship is heading south to the beach where six Hilton Head Island-area courses will play host to the event.

Participants will experience the best in Low Country golf when activities tee off Feb. 7 and 8, with registration and practice rounds. The four-ball event will take place Feb. 9, with and the Championship will be held Feb. 10 and 11.

GCSAA set to descend on Atlanta

MONA: CHANGES ON TAP FOR SHOW

that the GCSAA is going forward with its initiatives more to further the status of the organization instead of serving the needs of its members?

Mona: Being a responsive, dynamic organization carries with it some pros and cons. When we do things like PDI and Golf Supermarket and potential relocation we know that it won’t be popular with all of our members.

As leaders we felt like our higher calling is to move the organization and profession where we think it should go and to position our members better. So I couldn’t disagree more with that statement. Providing the best possible future for our members is the underlying reason of every goal that we have.

GCN: How would moving the GCSAA to a warmer-weather city help achieve the association’s goals?

Mona: Would a different location with surrounding amenities such as a golf course, hotel and conference center in a golf-centric location help us achieve our goals and vision? That is the question that we don’t know the answer to right now, and that is why we are engaging in the process of considering other headquarters sites.

We have narrowed it to eight cities: Phoenix, Dallas/Fort Worth, Houston, Atlanta, Charlotte, Jacksonville, Orlando, and Miami/Fort Lauderdale.

GCN: Given the budget shortfalls and investment losses, is now the right time to consider moving the association?

Mona: The money spent so far has been to a consulting firm and to this point the expenses have been minimal. Our consultants will talk to chambers of commerce, local government officials and developers who are building golf facilities to assess interest and talk about incentives, etc.

Financially, we will have to be in a different place than we are now. We would have to get rid of the building in Lawrence and consider staff turnover and the fact that moving an organization of this size is not cheap.

GCN: How important is amending the articles of incorporation to the relocation decision?

Mona: If our members vote (at the show in Atlanta) to amend the articles it would create a higher degree of flexibility for our board to make that decision. But, could it be done without a change? Yes it could, but it just makes it more problematic. If we were closing in on a deal and had to delay a decision because we had to wait for the annual meeting or call for a special meeting, that creates some challenges.

GCN: Also on the ballot in Atlanta is the proposed dues increase. How do you justify a 20 percent increase in dues?

Mona: It is 20 percent over one year, but we haven’t raised dues in five years so it is more like four percent, which is consistent with the economy. We have reduced our expenses by $3 million in the last two years, but we need an increase to do everything we want to do. Our revenues have decreased because conference and show exhibitors and attendees are off a bit, advertising is down in Golf Course Management and we have suffered investment losses.

GCN: Without the increase what would be cut out?

Mona: Any expansion plans would have to be put on hold. We would not be able to run a public awareness campaign for superintendents.

GCN: What changes are on tap for future shows?

Mona: We are behind projections right now. We are trailing on education and seminars, attendees and exhibitors. But it is not an alarming amount. If we get the normal pick-up between now and the show, we will be fine. But it will be smaller than Orlando.

GNC: What changes are on tap for future shows?

Mona: We are agreed in principal to combine shows with the National Golf Course Owners Association because we feel like the audience they represent is a critical one for the long-term success of our show. It is not that many more attendees, but exhibitors are happy because it cuts out one trade show and brings together another key member of the purchasing decision. We would team up on that as early as 2005.

We will also change our location anchors. We like Orlando and San Diego as anchors and then we would rotate between New Orleans, Anaheim and Las Vegas for the next five years.
