DEVELOPMENT & RENOVATION

Bunker renovation protects Pelican Hill’s ‘Fazio look’

BY ANDREW OVERBECK
NEWPORT BEACH, Calif.—Work is underway here at Pelican Hill Golf Club to renovate all 125 bunkers and protect Tom Fazio’s original design. Director of agronomy Steve Thomas is overseeing the renovation, which began in late January.

“Over the last 12 years the bunkers have lost the ‘Fazio look,’” said Thomas. “We wanted to maintain the character of the original design and get back the fat bunker lip. ‘We will make some architectural changes by expanding some bunkers and making others smaller,’” he added. “We will also improve drainage and put in a higher-quality sand.”

The Irvine Co., which owns and manages the 36-hole club, decided to shut the South Course down entirely and shift play to the North Course while renovation work took place. When the South Course re-opens in March, work will commence on the North Course.

“That is one of the benefits to being 36 holes,” said Thomas. “The Irvine Co. decided it was a good time of year to go ahead and close a course, because it is typically our rainy season when play is lower.”

The company brought in two builders, Jessup, Md.-based McDonald & Sons and La Quinta, Calif.-based Peerless Golf Inc. to

Raynor’s Mountain Lake reborn

BY DEREK RICE
LAKE WALES, Fla.—Grow-in is completed and play has resumed on Mountain Lake Golf Course, where architect Brian Silva restored the course to its original 1916 Seth Raynor design.

Over the years, many of the greens and bunkers, which had been squared, had softened into more rounded or amorphous shapes, said Dorothy Blackwell, director of member relations for Mountain Lake.

“Our members voted last year to restore the course to

Developers learn from Dark Horse experience

BY DOUG SAUNDERS
AUBURN, Calif.—Last year, the latest entry into the crowded Northern California golf market, Dark Horse Golf Club, opened for play, culminating a 13-year struggle to bring a quality public golf venue to the Sierra foothill region. The developers, Ed Fralick and his son Chad, are heartened to see the tee sheets begin to fill up with players after spending so much time, energy and money wading through permitting meetings, EIRs and mitigations to bring the 7,218-yard Keith Foster-designed layout online.

The rambling track flows over 420 acres of land that are defined by dramatic elevation changes, a series of natural wetlands and thick stands of mature oak trees.

Foster was fortunate to be given free rein of the entire 1,045 acres in order to find the best layout for the course. This was an opportunity that few architects ever get and Foster searched for the best routing to capture the prominent natural features to complement the course.

This is the Fralicks’ first foray into golf course development but they didn’t come into the field without some background. Their years as successful custom homebuilders and housing developers in the Sacramento area gave them the confidence to take on the challenge. But they discovered that while there are many similarities in golf construction and home construction, there are also striking

Openings decline for second consecutive year

BY ANDREW OVERBECK
JUPITER, Fla.—For the second consecutive year, golf course openings in the United States slowed, according to the National Golf Foundation’s (NGF) Golf Facilities in the U.S. Report. The NGF said the report may signal that construction is coming back in line with demand. In 2002, approximately 240 golf courses, measured as 18-hole equivalents, opened. This number is down 13 percent over 2001 and down 36 percent from 2000, which was the 15-year peak. However, there is some good news to be gleaned from the report. The NGF predicts development will stabilize in 2003, based on the number of courses already under construction that are expected to open this year.
