Generations of Success

Past · Present · Future.

A solid foundation was firmly established in 1955 with the birth of Penncross. The Penn Bent family continued to grow, thanks to the introduction of the Penn A's & G's and Seaside II, followed by Penneagle II & PennLinks II. The legacy continues with the recent arrival of Crystal BlueLinks. Just like family, each new variety owes its best qualities to the generation that came before. The Penn Bent family from Tee-2-Green continues to revolutionize the industry, and remains trusted by superintendents around the world.
FEATURES

Superintendent profile

22 PRACTICAL ABOUT BEING GREEN
Dan Dinelli improves North Shore Country Club's environmental standing.

COVER STORY: Course management

26 RETHINKING YOUR OPERATION
Top agronomic officers seek efficiencies as costs rise and budgets remain flat.

Turfgrass management

36 STARVED BY SODIUM
Superintendents mitigate salt levels with amendments, cultural practices and equipment.

Product focus: Wildlife control

44 INTO THE WILD
Todd Voss shares his approach for controlling nuisance wildlife at Double Eagle Golf Course.

RESEARCH

40 SURFACE WATER QUALITY
Long-term monitoring determines the magnitude of nutrient loss in runoff related to development.
The cooling properties of turf are so effective that temperatures over turf surfaces on a sunny day will be 10 to 14 degrees cooler than over concrete or asphalt.
When it comes to support, we have the rubber to meet the road.
We don't just pay lip service to the idea of great service. We have equipment distributors who have been in the game for decades. A parts network you could set a clock by.

And now, dozens of Stores-On-Wheels® and Golf Sales Reps. Who supply agronomic goods and know-how straight to your course. With the full resources of John Deere Landscapes to back them up.

It's one thing to promise support. We actually deliver.
DO YOUR PART

At Golf 20/20’s annual forum last month, Joe Steranka, CEO of the PGA of America, left attendees with a thought-provoking question about growing the game: “If not us, who?”

The golf industry – the World Golf Foundation, the PGA of America, the PGA Tour, the Golf Channel, and equipment companies on the business and consumer sides of the industry, to name a few – knows it needs to reinvigorate the game. That’s why, at the eighth Golf 20/20 forum, industry big-wigs put their minds together and presented a player development program called Get Golf Ready in 5 Days.

You’ve probably heard this before. The Play Golf America program the PGA of America launched several years ago is one that comes to mind. The Get Golf Ready organizers spent time explaining how this program is different from other programs launched in the past. In short, the program centers on a five-lesson package for the suggested price of $99, plus an introduction to the rules and etiquette of the game. The World Golf Foundation will provide a $1,000 stipend to participating facilities. (For more details, read the news story, “A course for action,” at golfcourseindustry.com/acourseforaction.)

They’ve put thought into the program and have addressed the two biggest concerns facility operators have – retention and accountability. They have plans to keep new entrants to the game coming back to golf after their initial involvement with the Get Golf Ready program. Industry executives are serious about raising money to get this program up and running quickly. At press time, they’ve raised $2.2 million, on their way to a goal of $4 million in three years and $7 million in five.

Joe Barrow, CEO of The First Tee, was the best speaker at Golf 20/20 because he was the most passionate and inspiring. He sparked a fire in the eyes of attendees, explaining how important this player development program is. He’s driving the fund-raising efforts. It’s clear he wants companies to donate money to the cause, but he’s also confident about being held accountable for the money that’s raised and how it’s spent. The return on investment for this program won’t happen for a while. Nonetheless, the investment is needed to help develop a base for the next generation of players, which is the future of your business.

Collectively, these organizations will make an impact on the industry that won’t be seen or felt for years to come. But, they’re acting now. They need to. They don’t have much choice. The game, and the business, need a growth spurt.

However, the faction of industry executives can only do so much. The other faction is you – the people managing individual facilities throughout the country. Do you have a successful player development program at your facility? If you do, how effective are you at retaining new golfers? Is this an area of the business that’s receiving the effort and attention it needs? Are all of the facility’s employees and friends and family encouraged to golf? Jim Singerling, CEO of the CMAA, estimates 70 percent of employees at private clubs don’t golf. That’s about 190,000 people, or a quarter of Get Ready Golf’s goal to develop 700,000 new golfers by 2013.

Superintendents might say player development isn’t part of their job description, but the bottom line is that everybody at a facility needs to have the same mindset about constantly mining new golfers, getting them started and keeping them playing. This mentality will complement what the big boys are doing on a grander, national scale. Actually, if you think about it, your involvement is more important than the big boys’ efforts because you’re the ones executing their plan.

Top industry organizations are doing their part to grow the game. You have to do yours, too. Growing the game is a business-threatening issue industry leaders are taking seriously. How seriously are you taking it?
Liquid Fence® animal repellents.

From the nation's number-one selling Deer & Rabbit Repellent to guaranteed effective Mole and Goose Repellents - Liquid Fence products will do for you what they've done for millions of satisfied customers... really work!

The Liquid Fence® Company

Call (800) 923-3623  www.liquidfence.com  pro@liquidfence.com
Need for optimism
I just got around to reading Pat Jones’ October column, “Bummed out,” on page 66. Talk about timing. Right after reading it, I had a meeting with my golf operations chairman that covered the very need for optimism and aggressive posturing now while the market (industry) is down. The column makes such good points that I took a copy of it to him for our meeting.

Mike Brown, CGCS
Starmount Forest Country Club
Greensboro, N.C.

Right on
Cheers to John Walsh and GCI. His recent editorial, “Lose the ego,” (on page 6 in the October issue) hit the nail right on the head.

Paul DiBattista
Regional sales manager
Professional Turf Products
Belle Vernon, Pa.

Slow play
When I read Donn Hess’ letter to the editor, “Slow play,” on page 8 in the October issue, two things occurred to me that might help his, and others’, slow-play issues. From our experience at Province Lake, rethinking and rebuilding our sets of tees to fit our players and then insisting they play the right sets of tees kept our round times to about 4.5 hours, even on days that we had 220 to 240 people on the course. Our play actually had lower round times when we went from eight- to nine-minute tee time intervals. One of the courses in our area did even better with 10-minute times.

Arthur Little
Former owner
Province Lake Golf
Parsonsfield, Maine

Hard work pays off
Heather Wood’s article, “Climbing the ‘corporate’ ladder,” (http://www.golfcourseindustry.com/corporateladder) was a great article. I feel the same as Bill Davis does. Work hard. It does pay off. I wish some of the younger folks would listen to the old guys.

Bob Littleton
General manager
Elk River POA
Banner Elk, N.C.

Clarification
Golf course superintendent James Brown and his assistant Larry Wilk apply Pond Champs black dye at Purgatory Golf Course in Noblesville, Ind. The product information was unclear in the article “Limbo on the lakes” on page 68 in the August issue.