The ninth green of the Caro course shows how the layout provides for good conditioning at low maintenance expense. Eighty per cent of the business is from the golfers, but the convenient location from the city makes it fairly good business in the evening, for they can dine and dance. The place has an automatic phonograph that plays twelve records.

The interior of the "Wigwam" is of rustic design, the walls are solid white birch bark, the back bar is of birch poles, chairs are birch bar finish with a hand-painted landscape picture of different design on the back of each chair. The tables are made of birch poles with a birch bark top covered with plate glass. Our fences, sand boxes and all settees are rustic, also the pros' house. We have two large rustic bridges, one in particular which spans a ravine 50 feet wide and 25 feet above water. This bridge is located at the edge of the river.

The greens are of Washington bent and are practically perfect. The fairways as stated are of sandy soil but we have a wonderful catch of fescue and blue grass on them. We did considerable top-dressing with barn-yard fertilizer and clay and it is my opinion that sandy soil is superior to any other for fairways.

This is a semi-public course. The club was formed and run in this way.

On June 1, 1927, I circulated an agreement in our city with the understanding that if 40 signers were secured at $75.00 annual dues each, I would agree to construct a nine hole course on the present site and open not later than May 30, 1928. I committed myself in this agreement to refund the money collected if I failed to open on that date for any reason of mine. I fulfilled my agreement to give these members nine holes of golf I gave them locker, shower, and clubhouse privileges. The result was I sold about 125 resident and non-resident memberships before the season was over.

We were open in exactly four and a half months, green fees practically paid for the upkeep of the course during the season. That left the membership dues for interest on the investment, taxes, construction, etc. I didn't have a greenkeeper and was disappointed on our professional but secured a pro later in the season. I took complete charge of the greens myself and want to say with the aid of the green section and GOLFDOM articles I got along exceptionally fine. From this experience I do not believe three men are necessary for all nine hole courses, as two handle this course, including watering.

Our membership dues range as follows. (1) resident, $75.00, which includes a man, his wife and children from 15 to 21 years; a locker, shower, and full privileges of the clubhouse for entertaining are included. (2) individual membership for single men at $45.00; this does not include locker or showers. (3) non-resident members are on a zoned system according to distance and range from $25.00 to $45.00. We make no distinction between a single or married man in the case of their membership. Green fees are $1.50 Sundays and holidays and $1.00 week days. We have student rates of 20 plays for $17.50, good any day.

Our fences, sand boxes and all settees are rustic, also the pros' house. We have two large rustic bridges, one in particular which spans a ravine 50 feet wide and 25 feet above water. This bridge is located at the edge of the river.

The greens are of Washington bent and are practically perfect. The fairways as stated are of sandy soil but we have a wonderful catch of fescue and blue grass on them. We did considerable top-dressing with barn-yard fertilizer and clay and it is my opinion that sandy soil is superior to any other for fairways.

Our membership dues range as follows. (1) resident, $75.00, which includes a man, his wife and children from 15 to 21 years; a locker, shower, and full privileges of the clubhouse for entertaining are included. (2) individual membership for single men at $45.00; this does not include locker or showers. (3) non-resident members are on a zoned system according to distance and range from $25.00 to $45.00. We make no distinction between a single or married man in the case of their membership. Green fees are $1.50 Sundays and holidays and $1.00 week days. We have student rates of 20 plays for $17.50, good any day.

I might state we can show net earnings of about 15 per cent on the investment.

Greenkeepers Hold Local Exhibitions

September 9 the Midwest Greenkeepers' association held its annual outdoor equipment demonstration at Sunset Valley, Highland Park (Ill.). The event was well attended by equipment men and about 40 greenkeepers. Various standard items of golf course equipment and supplies were demonstrated.

On the same date the New England Service Bureau and Greenkeepers' club of New England staged their annual outdoor exhibition. A two-hour discussion on golf course maintenance problems featured the luncheon intermission in the demonstration program. September 8 the New Englanders representing some 20 clubs met at the Charles River C. C. experimental plots. Dr. John Monteth, Jr. of the Green Section and F. H. Wilson, Jr., greenkeeper for the club, explained the work and pointed out the results at the station.