North Shore designed its clubhouse with the needs and finances of its membership in mind. There are no fancy frills but everything necessary for member comfort is provided.

proportions that fully a dozen members can gather around with the reminiscence of how they chipped out of the sand-trap to within six inches of the pin for a birdie. The rest of the clubhouse consists of a men’s locker room, a women’s locker room, a kitchen and a spacious veranda overlooking the golf course.

Two Men Maintain Course.

The maintenance of the course is handled by two men. All mowing is done by motor-driven mowers and all hauling with a one-ton truck. The course is so situated that it is unnecessary to water the fairways except in an unusually dry season. The water for our sprinkling system is pumped from Green Bay.

One of the factors which has contributed largely to the success of our club, in popularity as well as finances is that the reins of management are in the hands of that shrewd and well-known Scotchman, Alex Jolly. The club operates on a budget system and its officers, president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer are elected for one year. There are nine directors who are elected to serve for a period of three years, with three elected each year.

The North Shore Golf Club is making rapid strides towards the front and in a few years we fully expect to have a golf course second to none.

Small Clubs Find Man-Wife Team Best

By J. M. WATERS

FROM MY observations in recent years I am convinced there is a big field open for married couples in the combination office of professional and manager to clubs that have an average income and want all the necessary service at a minimum cost. Speaking from experience, I find a man and wife that work in harmony and understanding offer a combination that is practical, pleasing and profitable to the personnel of a club. It takes a combination of many qualities to make a success of this undertaking and it must be undertaken by men and women of more than average ability.

Women are taking special training in household economics, dietetics, hostess duties, bookkeeping and the like and fitting themselves generally to carry on the business details of club management.

The professional must be a man of character and familiar with all phases of club life which comes only through a harvest of experience. As a teacher he should be 100 per cent, distributing his attentions with the many, not the few. His interest in the club rests in each individual member and he cannot expect co-operation unless he lives up to the letter of this law.

If clubs are fortunate in securing this combination they will find it to be of mutual benefit to all concerned.
