playing season lasts. Advanced pro merchants have broken away from the old idea of easing up on club-and bag-selling efforts after the middle of June. They have added thousands of dollars to annual volume of business done at their shops by keeping briskly at selling.

(5) Making a national concerted pro-shop sales drive, thus establishing each shop in the golfers' minds, as a smartly-operated, individually managed, unit of the biggest retail outlet of high-grade golf goods.

Successful pros to whom the plan was submitted in detail prior to its general release, promptly grabbed it. In addition to planning to dispose of the slow-moving stock they already have, they have shopped around and picked up close-outs of manufacturers, and intend to put on the Birdie Special sale so that it will electrify the golfing public with its bargains. They consider that it will get a jump on store competition by six months, and will bring into the pro cash drawer a goodly amount of profit to carry them through the winter.

Sale Will Boost
Fall Play

These professionals also figure that the timing of the Birdie Special sale will promote golf play during September and far into October, weather permitting, because a fellow with new clubs is bound to play more golf.

It is believed by the most prosperous pros that the Birdie Special plan, while ideally designed to help pros who need a lot of sales push in their shops near the season's close, won't be used extensively by the unfortunates.

"It calls for some thinking and some work to use the plan in making sales. It has to be magic that will work while the dead pro sleeps to make a hit with the boys who need the Birdie Special sale the most," a prominent PGA official commented.

That may be. Nobody can help those who won't help themselves. However PROmotion is confident that the employment of the Birdie Special sales material will be so extensive and active that it will make the period Aug. 27-Sept. 5 the most profitable 10 days of the year in the shops of energetic pro businessmen.

Early response to the plan, in the form of pro orders of the free sales-aids indicates that the Birdie Special campaign will be an outstanding success.

Pros who haven't ordered their free material on the post card supplied with the folder describing the Birdie Special plan, are advised to get busy at once because the fullest success of the plan at each pro-shop depends on getting the campaign started not later than August 15.

And if the folder has been misplaced, write immediately to PROmotion, 14 East Jackson Blvd., Chicago, for samples of the available free material.

Three-Cornered Match—This year's session of the annual three-cornered team match between 144 players representing the Westlink, Meadowlark and Sim Park courses of Wichita, Kan. in which 16 men from each course played in competition at the three courses entered in the tournament, was won by Westlink with its 48-man team averaging 83 13/24 strokes. Sim Park was second with an 85 7/48 average, and nosed out Meadowlark's team average of 85 15/16.

At match play the results were: Westlink, 81 1/2; Sim Park, 70; and Meadowlark, 63.

The winning average was approximately two strokes lower than Westlink winning average last year. Sim Park team averaged 5 strokes better this year than in the initial event.

The event concluded with a banquet during which the owners and pros of the second and third teams had to wear women's attire. The event again was one of the most widely discussed on the Wichita sports calendar.
