Our contacts with the Iowa Greenkeepers Ass'n have led to numerous inquiries from golf clubs as to what can be done to rehabilitate run-down greens. The experience gained last year, as recited above, is offered for what it may be worth. We recognize, of course, in some cases greens will need restolonizing. We also had some experience in this last year. On the whole, though, if a green has a scattering of live bent grass, it can be brought back into good condition more easily by a program similar to the one described above than by restolonizing, and much more cheaply.

Prefering to Meet Our Postwar Competition

★ UNDOUBTEDLY GOLF, like many other sports, is in for a tremendous boom and like any other group of professional men pro's should be prepared to meet the situation.

There isn't any doubt that with the expansion of golf, it will attract the vigorous and smart efforts of merchandisers who will be competing for the professional business, and of course our problems will be to develop weapons to combat any type of competition that will arise.

As far as competition, that will never be eliminated, and shouldn't, because after all, competition is the American and democratic way of living. Our weapons are going to be improvements in pro personnel, pro business, pro education, pro-club relations, pro-manufacturers' relations, instructions and advertising.

The PGA has already started its educational and teaching program and though the surface hasn't even been scratched I know that this program will be definitely enlarged upon and this unquestionably will improve the standards of our profession.

I believe that our Association should seek the aid and service of a high-class professional man to carry out the work of its educational program. In this work, of course, should be included pro business, pro-club relations, and civic and community relations. This man should be employed somewhat in the same capacities as our Tournament Bureau chairman.

He should visit all sections and conduct clinics. We have held a few of these clinics in our section with very favorable results. This man could organize and systemize this educational work and ex-
