Stu White, pro at Ogden (Ut.) muny El Monte course, reports record play shows city's need of a third course. White says present courses bring business into community from outlying area. Biggest year yet for exhibitions. Hogan, Nelson and trick-shooters Kirkwood and Paul Hahn getting about all the bookings they can handle. Snead, Mangrum and other tournament circuit pros also in demand for time they take off from the circuit. Clubs that don't want tournaments want to see headliners. Gallery draw generally profitable for exhibition clubs.

Oscar Fraley, United Press sports columnist, jolted PGA by writing "The current tournament at Oakmont will go down into the already tattered history book of the Professional Golfers' Assn. as the most mishandled of them all." Delay in getting scores was a major point of complaint. Fraley said "Results of the matches have been kept virtually as secret as the inharmonious inner councils of the PGA." Cause of score information delay was explained by PGA as due to failure of sponsors to provide required equipment. Fraley's blunt criticism probably will turn out good for PGA in reminding of necessity of complete preparation and check-up on tournament arrangements by PGA tournament staff and officials. Until the PGA has enough personnel and first class organization plan it'll have the worry of wondering who'll bid for its championship. The problem is much tougher than that of the USGA, which announces sites of its major championships two years in advance, because PGA championships require heavy financial guarantees from sponsors.

Despite operating flaws, some bad weather and the usual "upsets" knocking out gallery magnets early, Sports Editor Al Abrams, head of Dapper Dan organization which sponsored the 1951 PGA championship, said the event brought a good net profit to Dapper Dan charities. Oakmont again stood up as a magnificent test of shot-making and as example of superb maintenance. Rough for the PGA is cut shorter than for the USGA National Open and Amateur so the PGA didn't have Oakmont as tough as it'll be for the 1953 National Open. Pros agreed that there isn't a better test of golf for the entire 18 holes than Oakmont provides. Elimination of traps that only caught the 12 handicap-and-up members saved maintenance expense but didn't reduce accuracy demanded of the pro experts. And what pleasant golf atmosphere there is about the old Oakmont clubhouse.

There wasn't any surprise at Snead's victory in the PGA. The surprising thing about Sam is why, with his swing, he doesn't win them all. Marty Furgol looked good in the second round when he lost to Snead in 3 extra holes. Marty's protest against Snead's blowing an insect off Snead's ball on the 15th green, by a stretch of the imagination, might have come under Rule 10 (4) prohibiting cleaning a ball. That was a fine point Furgol finally decided to skip. Marty's later win of the Western Open again showed Marty as a fine player who will go a long way when he gets his temperament trained.

Walter Burkemo going to the PGA finals was a far and pleasant change from a few years ago when Walter's back was so badly damaged by combat injuries some thought he might be a hopeless cripple. Jack Burke showed well at Oakmont in going as far as Snead. Some critics used to say Jack, Jr., wouldn't do well on real championship courses but his performances at Pebble Beach and Oakmont refute them. Ellie Vines had tough going at Oakmont with an ailing back that threatened to compel his withdrawal. After winning from Phil Friel, 3 and 2, in the first round, Vines beat Picard, 1 up; Bradley, 2 and 1, and Bulla, 1 up, before losing to Burkemo on the 37th of the semi-finals. Three of Burkemo's matches (against Toby Lyons, Chick Harbert and Vines) were extra hole affairs. Walter beat Dick Shoemaker 2 and 1, and the little veteran Reggie Myles, 1 up.

Chick Harbert, canny businessman among tournament pros, has bought himself a winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla. He's also bought a restaurant and bar there. Lately pros have been saying finest swing of the younger players is that of Joe Kirkwood, Jr. Maybe his victory in the Milwaukee Blue Ribbon tournament will give Joe, Jr. more confidence in his short game. Good to see so many of the pros' sons doing very well in pro and amateur competition. There are, among sons who...

MILORGANITE IS USED YEAR AFTER YEAR BY PARK RIDGE COUNTRY CLUB

Bert Rost, the able Superintendent at Park Ridge Country Club, Park Ridge, Illinois, has done an outstanding job of maintenance since he took charge. He uses Milorganite regularly on greens, tees, and fairways.

Graham Gardiner, before him, was an ardent Milorganite booster also.

Park Ridge has used Milorganite year after year for more than twenty years. Exceptionally fine turf on greens, tees, and fairways is a tribute to the skill of these two men and the grass producing qualities of Milorganite.

The services of our staff agronomists and Soil Testing Laboratory are available, with limitations, for the asking. For further information write to:

Pabst Scores with Tourney

Pabst beer’s Blue Ribbon tournament at North Hills CC, Milwaukee, was definite promotional success for the brewing outfit. The $20,000 purse plus expense of excellent promotion was comfortably offset by good gate for initial event. Association with country club atmosphere and market was especially good in view of adverse public reaction to Blue Ribbon’s television programs getting the product associated with unappetizing fights. Reputable brewery sponsorship is OK with PGA tournament bureau but whisky sponsorship is unacceptable. Kefauver committee condemnation of big whisky interests as team-mates of organized mobsters makes the whisky money undesirable for golf tournament purses. Seagram’s connection with Canadian Open is an exception that couldn’t prevail in the U.S. Whiskey interests are having other embarrassing difficulties with golf clubs due to treating club managers about the same as B girls who hustle drinks in dives.
