32 was ample for one instructor, also that an hour a week was the proper instruction period.

The popularity of the course was attested by the fact that 30 of the original 32 played in the tournament. The nippers competed in three classes: 9 years of age, 10 and 11, and 12. The most glowing testimonials for the project came from the lads’ parents, most of them golfers.

The following company men served as instructors: Phil Gould, George Graham, Charles Griswold, Willoby Belcher, Tom Ronaghan, John Gavin, Joe Matrazzo and W. R. Treadway.

Liberal use was made of instruction films and pamphlets provided by the National Golf Foundation. With the project now firmly established, the Horton Bristol Company will turn it over to a local service club for a permanent fixture.

Horton Bristol manufacturers the “Cadet” set of clubs for the extremely young golfer and the slightly long and heavier “Cadet, Jr.”, model. A “Cadet, Sr.” set is contemplated. The clubs are not toys, they are as precisely constructed as famous lines for adult golfers manufactured by the company.

As the trophies were presented at the end of the tournament, each winner was accorded a tremendous burst of applause from the assemblage. The boys, obviously, have learned one great lesson — how to lose a golf tournament graciously.

Survey Shows College & Univ. Courses Valued at 10 Million

Valuation of golf course and clubhouse facilities at the nation’s colleges and universities is more than $10,000,000 according to a survey just completed by the National Golf Foundation for the school year 1950-1951. Statistics show 103 schools now have their own courses. Of this number 25 have been built or acquired since the close of World War II, as many as there were altogether at the end of the first quarter of the century. Ohio State boasts the largest plant with its 36-hole layout. The completion of a second 18 at Purdue University in 1950 puts this school in the same class. The addition of another nine at the University of Minnesota and a new 18-hole course at the University of Illinois gives those schools plants with 27 holes. "Liqua-Vita as a greens fertilizer has been used on our course for the past several years. We apply it with the fungicide, thereby saving all labor cost. We are well pleased with its performance on our greens as to color, texture and root-action."

Why You Should Buy Golf Clubs in a "Pro" Shop

By Frank Donovan, Golf Professional

Q. First what kind of golfers buy their clubs in a "pro" shop, owned and operated by a professional golfer?
A. You'll find that all kinds of golfers are patrons of the pro shops, but you will ALWAYS find that the BEST golfers, in any club, community or state, are regular customers of the pro shop.

Q. But do I need the help of a "pro" in selecting clubs for my own game?
A. Yes. For every golfer, there is a particular club which is "just right" in length, right in weight right in flexibility and RIGHT in the "swinging weight." You wouldn't buy shoes by mail because you might not get a perfect "fit." For the same reason, you should buy golf clubs from an expert, a shop where you can fully test the "swinging weight" and feel.

Q. But I'm not a very good golfer. Won't just "any old club" be good enough for me?
A. Chances are you need the right club even more than the good golfer does. Remember, every golfer wants to shoot the best game he can. You'd get more fun out of golf if you could improve your present score by even a few strokes.

Q. But if the shop clubs cost more than the clubs I buy elsewhere?
A. No, they do not. Pro shop clubs cost no more than comparable grades of so-called "commercial clubs." Most golf pros do not have a high rent or expensive overhead; they give you the benefit of a lower mark-up. They carry good clubs in every price range.

Q. Do I get anything extra for my money in a pro shop?
A. Yes, you certainly do. The golf pro will show you the proper grip, the proper stance and the proper swing. He'll keep a friendly eye on your progress. He wants to see your game improve, so that you will like golf. He does not regard the sale as "finished" when you buy clubs; he wants to see you get the best possible results. And in addition, as a member of his trade association, he is always working for the benefit of golf and golfers. The fact that YOU are enjoying golf today is the result of the efforts of professional golfers for many years.

Q. Then when I buy my golf clubs in a pro shop, I'm helping both my own game and the game of golf itself?
A. You certainly are. Your own game will benefit; you will save money through buying the "right" clubs the first time. And the game of golf itself will benefit through the interest and activity of the professional golfer.
