Runyan and His Specialists

retail level, he feels the experience was worthwhile.

"I saw what a large part display can mean in retail sales," he says. "Jewelry shops that glamorized their merchandise had the largest sales."

Runyan carries an inventory of from $17,500 to $25,000. About 40 percent of this is in golf equipment.

He does not keep any regular pro shop hours himself. His wife helps at times and two fulltime assistants, Taylor and Mike Butler, run it at other times.

Don't Have to Be Golfers

Runyan is unusual in that he does not feel it necessary for shop assistants to be expert golfers, or to even play golf.

"I do think it is a good idea for them to know something of the tradition of golf, the famous players of the past, the great tournaments, etc.," he says.

One guarantee Runyan asked of the La Jolla directors in taking the pro shop was that the club would handle the billing and guarantee payment of bills by members. He sends the club office a memo on the first of every month as to the amount owed by a member. The member can see the itemized bill at the golf shop.

"It is impossible for the club pro to have to assume personal responsibility for payments to his suppliers unless he has guaranteed payment from the club. After all, the club can suspend a member for non-payment of obligations but the pro has no such power," Runyan says.
