Books Reviews

SECRETS OF WINNING GOLF MATCHES. Published by Golf Capital Publishers, Golf, Ill., Price $5.

A fellow named Lon Ramsey tells "12 Winning Golf Discoveries." It's psychological stuff. Winning Golf Discovery No. 6 is: "A troubled player can often get back on his game by systematically checking it and paying no attention to suggestions." Ramsey recommends a winning golf idea of going to a pro for lessons.

Thomas, one of the more successful young British pros and whoever worked with him as the professional writer on this job, can take bows for producing a book that makes an interesting instruction story. It is a sound book for any beginner: youngster or grown-up.

The photographs and drawings by the noted British golfing artist, George Houghton, say a lot in complementing the text. The pattern of the book is more advanced than the somewhat kindergarten treatment of American books on juvenile golf instruction but not above the head of a reasonably intelligent teen-age golfer.

Release Report on Washington Junior Interclub League

Report of the third year operation, covering 1958, for the Interclub Junior Golf League of Washington, D. C., has recently been released. In a foreward written by the late Gen. Floyd L. Parks, it is pointed out that the league was expanded from four to 12 teams last year and the number of participants was increased from 37 to 102. Girls were used by five teams in the league in 1958.

Teams were composed of six players, two of whom compete in the 16-17 group, two in the 14-15 division, and two in the under 14 category. Scores were computed on the basis of one point for an individual basis, one point for best ball and ½ point for a tie match. Nine points are thus at stake in a dual match and 18 in a round robin. Division championships were won by teams representing Bethesda, Kenwood and Manor.

The Washington Interclub league is operating again this year.
