Jaycee International Match Switched to St. Paul

Originally scheduled to play in Tulsa, Okla., competitors in the 19th Jaycee International Junior Boys Golf Championships will compete at Mendakota and Southview CC courses in South St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 3-8. Along with the championship title goes an invitation to take part in next year's Bing Crosby Pro Am tourney at Pebble Beach in Monterey, Calif. The championships are being held in St. Paul this year as part of the Jaycee Twin Cities Sports Spectacular covering tennis, track and field events as well as golf. The St. Paul tourney will draw on 25,000 junior golfers from more than 1,000 communities that have Jaycee sponsored junior golf programs.

Established in 1946, the Jaycee Junior Golf program has helped launch such circuit stars as Jack Nicklaus, Al Geiberger, Gene Littler, Doug Sanders, Tommy Jacobs, Phil Rodgers, Jack Rule, Jr. and Raymond Floyd. In 19 years it is estimated that over 400,000 youngsters have participated in the Jaycee program.

Instruction Clinics

The Jaycee program is based on carefully planned instruction clinics in which beginners have the opportunity to participate and receive fundamental training. Interest and skill in golf are promoted through these clinics plus local competition. Special tournaments are sometimes set up for first year players in order to give them a chance to win a title.

Co-sponsors with the Jaycees are the Pepsi-Cola Co., the National Golf Foundation and the Athletic Institute. A pamphlet covering the “how-to” of organizing a Jaycee Junior Golf program is available from the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce's national headquarters as well as instruction booklets for use in teaching clinics.

Ann Casey Johnstone, one of the all-time greats in women’s amateur golf, now is teaching the game at Stephens College in Missouri. She played with three Curtis Cup teams.
