Back in 1935, things were pretty tough for the Golf Pro. Top-grade balls, then priced to sell at 75¢ retail in the Pro Shop, could be bought (and were being bought by the thousand) downtown for 59¢ and even lower.

The Pros of that era yelled bloody murder and justly so. Business was being diverted from their counters and nothing was done about it until August 1935 when...

Acushnet came up with its Pro-only policy, to give the Pro complete protection against all outside competition on every Acushnet ball at every price.

But everybody wanted to get into the act. One by one, other manufacturers saw business drifting away from them and began announcing "Pro-only" policies.

To be sure, these policies did and still do promise the Pro an exclusive "name line" of balls, but these manufacturers continue to sell similar balls under different names outside the Pro Shop.

Many Pros have seen through this, so several manufacturers, we are told, in order to get Pros to push their balls, are offering a selected few a dozen or two free balls a month.

Now we ask you — what sort of business is this? What sort of people do these manufacturers think Golf Pros are? Is this supporting the Pro? Is it protecting the Pro? We say such policies are simply taking the Pro for a sleigh-ride, for which he pays!... pays in lost sales made to his members through outside retailers.

Are you for this sort of thing or do you string along with us in the belief that an exclusive Pro policy, meaning all balls, at all prices, through the Pro Shop only and with retail profits for the Pro only, is the best thing for your business and deserves your whole-hearted support?

Are you tired of paying for the sleigh ride?
Greenkeepers are not alone in worrying about shortage of promising young men coming into the profession. . . . Pros say it's difficult to get assistants who want to really learn the business. . . . Majority of applicants for assistant jobs want to be paid for having an opportunity to spend most of the time on their own games. . . . PGA Tournament bureau working up series of "B" tournaments with $5,000 and up purses to get players not on invitation tourney lists and offset six week's absence of Ryder cup players.

Ryder Cup American pros probably will play in three British tournaments in addition to cup matches while they're in England. . . . Joe Novak, new pres., PGA, working hard with his associates on plans for pros developing star amateur competition. . . . George Lake, head of PGA junior program, to coordinate pros' junior development with junior championships of USGA, Western GA, Women's Western GA, U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, National Caddy Assn. and Hearst newspapers. . . . Idea is to get pros to enlist entries and train their proteges for these competitions.

Frank Stranahan has won more major tournaments than total tournament victories of all other members of 1947 Walker Cup U.S. team. . . . Peter Hay, beloved veteran pro at Pebble Beach scheduled for gallstone operation late in January. . . . Hay was a star performer on Harry Wissmer's broadcasts of the Bing Crosby tournament.

Randolph Scott, movie notable, is green chmn., Bel Air CC. . . . Greenkeepers in southern California wondering if they'll have some unique trouble on their courses as aftermath of snows, freezing and "most unusual" January weather. . . . Faces were red and not from the chilly blasts in Los Angeles when Angelinos heard that golfers after comfortable rounds in Boston, New York, Chicago and elsewhere in the midwest and northeast came in from their rounds to hear clubhouse radios sounding off about snow and sleet falling on LA Open Jan. 9.

Wollaston GC had field of 188 in its New Year's day tournament. . . . Jim Ukalka, Hawaiian amateur who recently turned pro at Hilo club, showing signs on the winter circuit of becoming one of the star performers. . . . George Low, first pres., PGA, still laid up with a broken hip at his home in Clearwater, Fla. . . . George is 78.

Arthur Lacey, brother of Charley, showing the lads on the tournament circuit a new sartorial note in his slacks with cuffs that can be turned under and buttoned around the ankles or higher in plus-four manner, when the going is wet. . . . Arthur also had a compact weatherproof nylon jacket that looked smart. . . . Both are products of Flight's of London. . . . The Lacey brother's father, Arthur, Sr., organized the world's first greenkeepers' association in 1910. . . . Arthur, Sr. died of bombshock in London Jan. 1944.

Ben Hogan is to be the cover picture man on the third Official Golf Guide to be issued by A. S. Barnes & Co., 44th and 6th Ave., NYC, April 1. . . . Fred Corcoran is editor. . . . Joe Mozel, Larry Lamburger, Ted Longworth and Eddie Hogan, Pacific Northwest pros, took a few days off to go for steelhead trout. . . . The boys claim this finny native of their territory is the world's wildest, fightingest fish.

Bryan Winter, pres., Winter-Dobson Co., Dallas, Tex., makers of golf playing equipment, died Jan. 16, victim of an automobile accident at Stamford, Tex. . . . Winter formerly was one of the headliners of the Texas amateur corps.

Among added starters which made Bing Crosby's party following his tournament on Monterey peninsula courses by a long way the best of the golf frolics was Jimmy Durante and his accomplices and Pat Patrick, a genuine comic who used to be a caddy at Cedar Rapids, Ia. . . . Jimmy Demaret sang "How Lucky You Are" which he dedicated to Ben Hogan. . . . Bing sang a clever parody on Buttons and Bows. . . . Crosby wrote the parody as illustrating the experience of Jackie Burke on the tournament circuit. . . . One of its lines ran "I break par with quite a few blows but I wind up with buttons and bows." . . . Charley Kimmel, ranking artist of the scoreboard-keepers, scored with members of Crosby's radio orchestra as well as with Bing's guests by his number on his one-string cigarbox violin.

There were more than 1050 requests for invitations to Bing's tournament. . . . That's the trouble with being one of the country's most popular guys and holding a tournament. . . . Only 196 could be accommodated. . . . Although Maurie Luxford had the field moving smoothly and fast, with exception of one tedious foursome, some players couldn't finish before dark. . . . One wealthy amateur gave his pro partner a $1,000 check although the team didn't finish in the prize list. . . . Next year the Crosby tournament field probably will be cut to Bing's distress, because it's now too big for play on three tough courses.

Jackie Burke claims his club, Metropolis CC (NY Met dist.), puts on finest and most complete annual event for entertainment of hospitalized veterans. . . . The boys are brought in ambulances to Metropolis and royally entertained. . . . Since Maurice Luxford became a director of the Western GA, number of California clubs belonging to the Western has increased from 3 to 43.

Medinah CC to have illustrated lessons by leading entries as a feature of its National Open program. . . . This gives the Open souvenir program considerable added value as a golf instruction book. . . . We suggested some time ago that PGA tournament bureau supply illustrations and script of the clinic sessions as material for tournament programs. . . . Tournament program circulation isn't what it used to be and sales of programs at tournaments are sagging so much advertisers are reluctant to kick in. . . . For better turf everywhere

Aerifiers are now being used in 43 of the 48 states. Aerifiers are used on fairways, greens and tees. Are used on light soil and heavy soil. On bentgrass, blue-grass and Bermuda turf. Wherever turf is grown, there is a need for the Aerifier.

Good soil structure isn’t a permanent condition. Regular cultivation is needed to maintain it. Level surfaces are more easily maintained with the Aerifier. Redistribution of soil corrects corrugated fairways. Smaller diameter spoons bring up enough soil to top-dress a green.

The use of the Aerifier to break up the organic layer of grass stems and roots is necessary for most turf. The Aerifier also helps to distribute desirable grasses over the fairways.

Use of the Aerifier enables water, fertilizer and lime to get down into the soil. The loosened soil makes a good seedbed. Small areas may be perforated with the Aerifier before planting stolons.

Greenkeeping Superintendents throughout the country report to us the many different uses they find for the Aerifier. For regular maintenance and for special jobs — use the Aerifier.

IMPROVE FAIRWAYS
as you mow
AT NO EXTRA COST

Roseman Combination Rough and Fairway Mowers Available in 3, 5 and 7 gangs.

Roseman Hollow Roller-drive combination rough and fairway mowers will prove of definite benefit to your course.

The light rolling action of Roseman Hollow Roller Mowers improves fairway playing surfaces with each mowing.

Have you ever "improved" a lie by gently pressing around the ball with your foot? That same gentle "improving" action is applied to your entire course each time you mow with Roseman Hollow Roller Mowers.

Tufts of grass and other irregularities are gently leveled.

Surface runners and nodes of Centipede, St. Augustine, Bermuda, Bent and other grasses are kept in close contact with the soil where they have the opportunity to promote a thicker, denser turf growth.
