To my pals
the professionals
who fit and sell clubs

You and I have discussed many an hour, day and night, the problems of club design and construction to help all golfers hit the ball better and with greater consistency.

Out of those talks and my own research has come what I am convinced is the most valuable new idea in clubmaking.

I've signed with Ted Woolley, president of Golfcraft, to produce these advanced clubs. We've been working on them for months and tests with experts and ordinary players have demonstrated that we've definitely scored a great innovation in golf club design.

Ted, as you know, has successfully gone through all the stages of a first-class businessman pro's career from fine bench clubmaking to heading a rapidly growing golf club company with a great modern plant. Together we are sure we've worked out what you and your members want and need.

These new clubs will be sold "pro-only", at moderate prices considering increased precision, material and expert manufacturing costs.

Details of the new pro-only line which bears my name will be sent you in a short time. I know we can make money together and greatly help the games of your members who want the best in golf clubs.

And thanks for all the help you've given me.

P.S.: My thanks especially to pro friends who sent in orders for so many sets of my new irons and woods when the word got around about some of the principles of the clubs. L. M.
