PGA ANNUAL MEETING

The PGA of America will consider resolutions which have been proposed in advance for changes in its constitution during the association’s 50th annual meeting Oct. 31-Nov. 4 at Palm Beach Towers, Palm Beach, Fla.

Also on the agenda will be the election and installation of officers and new members of the PGA Executive Committee; disposition of “old and new business” matters before the association, and reading of reports by the officers, committee chairmen and department heads.

The Executive Committee will meet at the Palm Beach Towers during the preceding weekend, starting Oct. 28.

sons. Let the head pro hire and fire his assistants. National or PGA local boards do not accept criticism or listen to the pros’ gripes. The driving range non-PGA pros should not be allowed to sell PGA top pro-line equipment and chisel in on equipment prices and lessons.”

“Promotions should be directed more to the club professional. Emphasize that the club pro is the backbone of golf and that they have to put up with members buying so-called discounted equipment.”

“Contact new people in golf and get them to join. I was never contacted, and still am not a member because of not knowing what PGA section I am in.”

“We are no longer golf pros. We are businessmen. Stop harping about teaching and lessons. None of us has time for this any more—leave it to the assistant. Get this over to the membership in a diplomatic way.”

“I believe they are starting to program now. However a capable business manager is necessary to handle TV and the tournaments. We need someone to visit the different sections to give advice and tell the pros how to operate shops efficiently, both for themselves and their members.”

“I am superintendent as well as pro at my club. As far as I can see, there is not much advantage in joining the PGA. What can it do for me, and why does it cost so much to belong? I have been a pro for eight years.”

PGA DO MORE?

"More direct mail letters sent to clubs explaining the value of a qualified PGA pro. How important it is for him to make a respectable living, explain how history has shown where clubs take over, interest in the game dies. Get TV sponsors to plug the home pro more. After all, he does a big percentage of the work. Explain how many employees it would take to cover the 14 or better hours a pro puts in a day, seven days per week. It ain't much fun sometimes, but I like it because I never did anything else."

"The PGA should not allow its members to have anything to do with endorsement of equipment not sold through the pro shop. It should run and manage an educational advertising program to promote sales in the pro shop."

"Bar pro line sales to any pro not owning shop. Too many pros let the club make the profit from the pro shop."

"I don't think that the PGA should allow any of their tournaments to be played at a club where the professional does not have the shop concession."

"Home professionals and touring professionals should offer their services to all PGA efforts rather than having the average member feel that the PGA should do something for the individual."

"Establish salary levels for all jobs based on memberships, traffic, overhead."

"Each section of the PGA should do all it can to help keep the clubs from taking over the pro shop operations. Minimum contracts should be controlled by the PGA so a professional cannot..."
be permitted to take a job for practically nothing, which many do."

"The PGA should be returned to bulk memberships. The older and wiser heads could re-establish good public relations. Get out of the competitive golf business and truly promote golf."

"Further pro-only items in pro shops and don't allow PGA membership to people like Nicklaus who advertise for TV discount houses."

"Club pros should have more voice in national PGA meetings than touring pros. Keep pro lines in pro shops instead of sport shops."

"Put some beef in the job situation, i.e.: blackball all clubs with non-PGA pros or managers. Make the PGA like a union and enforce the rules so that the PGA and employers can benefit."

"Seek out young professionals and invite them to join their section."

"The PGA is not in a position at present to tell a club whom it can hire. However, at least on a local level, through its code of ethics it can enforce certain conditions."

"I think the biggest thing should be in the field of discount stores' getting pro-line equipment. I don't feel that the manufacturers are aware of the gravity of this problem."

"Make better contracts with clubs seeking qualified pros. Attempt to upgrade contracts. More and better public relations between the golf pro and the amateur. Improve training programs for assistant."

"Set up standard contracts for PGA pros to follow."

Billy Casper’s acceptance of the Radix Trophy for lowest scoring in 1965, at a small luncheon at the Oak Park (Ill.) Mahon, in commenting on association with his buddy, the late Harry Radix, said that Harry Radix introduced him to golf about 1919, when McMahon started out at Lincoln Park at 4 a.m. with a brassie, a mashie, a niblick, a putter and three balls for $1.05. Radix left an estate of $2 million, a considerable amount of which was earmarked for bequests in golf, figure-skating, and to employees at the Chicago Athletic Assn.

By the ratings you hear in locker-rooms of private and fee courses all over the country the golf TV programs still are: Shell’s Wonderful World of Golf, No. One . . . The Masters, second . . . The Open, third . . . The others are “who cares?” except when some boo-boo has a cheap golf ball on a commercial of a PGA co-sponsored tournament.

USGA gave women’s golf a boost with its sponsorship of the telecast of USGA Women’s National Open at Hazeltine National GC, Minneapolis . . . Gallery wasn’t as good as the golf . . . Sandra Spuzich, winner, was a PE teacher from Indianapolis . . . She went to Tommy Armour for finishing school and the Great Armour worked on her approaching until Sandra was near the screaming-memies . . . Then her short game won her the Woman’s Open.

High probability that Hazeltine National GC, a design of Robert Trent Jones, will be National Open site in 1969 . . . It’s Baltusrol in 1967 and Oak Hill in Rochester in 1968 . . . When Jack Nicklaus was griping about the USGA having the hands of a time clock goosing him in an annoying way because of slow play at Olympic’s Lakeside course during this year’s Open I recalled the 1956 National Open at Oak Hill when Doc Middlecoff (with the possible exception of Bobby Locke) slowest of all golfers in the modern era was slipping until the USGA told him to speed it up, which he did and won... Hogan also was dragging along until officially accelerated after which he almost won, finishing in a tie with Julius Boros, the fine player who wastes the least time... Boros and Hogan had 282 and Middlecoff, 281... Some wise veterans have voiced the opinion that if Nicklaus gave himself less time to miss putts he would be indisputably the greatest of all today’s male golfers... Almost as dominant among the gentlemen as Mickey Wright among the girls... Nicklaus seemed to be putting a bit faster in winning the British Open.

Gabrial Mitterbach goes from Kenwood Club, Cincinnati, to become manager at Columbia Hills CC (Cleveland dist.)... Mal Johnson now at Shady Hollow CC, Massillon, O... Seth Eames now pro-manager, Chestnut Ridge GC, Blairsville, O... Harold Firstman from Carlton Oaks CC, San Diego, Calif. to pro-manager post at Alexandria (Minn.) GC... Jack Shelton who went from pro job at Goose Creek CC, Baytown, Tex., to become pro at Houston (Tex.) CC this spring did a face-lifting job on the shop.

Style combined with top performance is what the Devere-Locke factory people are claiming for their PMR series of 32" and 38" rotary mowers, manufactured in Racine, Wisconsin by Locke Manufacturing Companies, Inc. The PMR mowers are now styled with safety hoods that cover the transmission belts and add to the safety as well as appearance of these rotaries. The PMR is a "big" medium-sized rotary mower because it will also plow snow or clean driveways. The 9 hp power unit that drives the 38- and 32-inch mowers also powers attachments, such as a snowplow and snow blower. These rotary mowers feature close side-trim on both sides of the cutting unit. The PMR is equipped with reverse transmission.

Turf-King is a concentrated liquid plant food which, it is claimed, actually improves grass root growth. Grass grows greener, stays healthier and brighter and top grass grows faster because the product penetrates deep in the soil to reach plant roots, according to Chemsearch, adding that it is a labor saver; it can be blended and applied with water emulsifiable insecticides for combined fertilizing and insect control. For more information write to National Chemsearch Corporation, P.O. Box 217, Irving, Texas.

West Point Products Corporation, West Point, Pennsylvania, announces the new T-3 truck. The three-wheeled, gas-powered vehicle is available with either a 6 hp or 8 hp engine. It carries a workman to and from work areas at speeds up to 10 mph eliminating walking time between greens or tees or to and from any work areas.
