really and truly difficult, and numbers 10 and 13 are doubly so when a west wind is blowing.

In the case of the long holes, strictly accurate second shots are the only means of getting down in par. Even long tee-shots must be placed with due care and skill, for the fairways are thoroughly well trapped. At the fifteenth hole, for instance, only a well-placed drive will open up the green.

Until the last putt is holed, the player on Winged Foot cannot let up on the strength and accuracy of his play, for right to the eighteenth green the course will be found to be a strenuous test for the best of golfers. The man who beats 295 there next June should come enviably near to the title of American Open Champion.

Meeting of Greenkeepers at Winged Foot

A PLAN is already under way to hold a meeting of greenkeepers at Winged Foot during the National Open Championship in June. While nothing official has been announced it is quite likely that President John Morley of the National Association of Greenkeepers of America will call a meeting of the Executive committee, probably on Saturday, June 29.

Winged Foot is located at Mamaroneck, N. Y. which is on Long Island Sound, about 30 miles above New York City. It is conveniently located for all the Metropolitan greenkeepers and also is but a short distance from those residing in southern New England, and eastern New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is probable that a dinner will be held at one of the famous shore resorts, which are so plentiful in that vicinity, and the meeting will be more or less a sociable get-together gathering for the boys.

During the day the greenkeepers will carefully inspect the famous Winged Foot West course where they will be able to see the play of the champions in their final rounds.
