Says:

HERE has been some response to last month's plea that membership dues be paid promptly and that new members be received both in the Association and in the Death Benefit Fund. To receive a prompt response, at this time of the year when the greenkeeper is entirely engrossed in his work, is certainly encouraging.

* * *

Now, we have some advance enthusiasm to tell you about. A number of our greenkeepers have noted on their membership bill which they returned with their check, "WILL SEE YOU IN CHICAGO IN 1933." Each time we receive a check enclosed with such a message, we are spurred on to new efforts in this work of the Association. Perhaps there would have been a great many more notations of this kind if all our members had been aware of the time and location of next year's Convention and Show.

At the New York meeting in January of this year, the members of the Executive Board agreed upon Chicago as the city for the Greenkeepers' Annual Convention and Show in 1933. In accordance with this decision, on March 5, President John Morley and the writer met in Chicago with Vice President John MacGregor, Edward B. Dearie, Jr., and Alex Binnie, to begin preparations for next year. The result of this meeting was that next year's Convention Headquarters will be at Hotel Sherman. We found this hotel most suitable for our needs, both because of the comfort and convenience offered the greenkeeper and also because this hotel offers adequate space for the show. January 31, February 1, 2, and 3 were the days set for this Annual Convention.

With the above information fresh in mind, we hope that when you return your bill for dues together with your check, you will also write, "Will see you in Chicago in 1933." If you do this, then in November when the NAGA Executive Board meets here in Cleveland, we will be able to offer the encouraging news that YOU too will be in Chicago January 31 to February 3, 1933.

At the November meeting, the Executive Board will complete arrangements for the annual meeting as well as review the work accomplished in the past months.
