

A GOLFER'S BIBLE

A ball striking a tree while in flight shall be deemed not to have struck a tree unless the player making the stroke declares that it was deliberately aimed for. In this case, play shall cease momentarily while his partners congratulate him on his marksmanship. But if the player attests in good faith that it was in no sense his intention to strike the tree, then it is obviously a piece of bad luck that has no place in a scientific game. No penalty shall accrue to the player, who is therefore permitted to estimate the distance his ball would have traveled, and to play the ball from that position.

A GOLFER'S BIBLE

"A ball rolling or lying near a bunker or sand trap may be played if the player feels he is in need of practice, no strokes other than the first one made in the bunker shall be counted against said player. Should the ball fail to emerge after the making of the first stroke, the faulty design of the bunker is deemed amply demonstrated and the skill of the player should not be penalized for a defect in construction over which he has no control.

"In arriving at a judgement whether or not ground is under repair, for the purpose of lifting a ball unpleasantly situated without penalty, the player shall toss a coin. If it falls, the ground may be deemed under repair."
