

Persons with "CGCS" after their names are "CERTIFIED GOLF COURSE SUPERINTENDENTS" by the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America.

To earn the title of "Certified Golf Course Superintendent" the individual must demonstrate significant experience in golf course management, and, in addition, prove academic capabilities by passing a comprehensive written examination covering every facet of the profession.

Attaining Certified status is no minor accomplishment. Successful completion of the Certification process indicates the individual's willingness to be judged by the standards of his fellow professionals and assume a position of leadership in the game of golf.

Those members that have attained the right to "CGCS" after their names in the Golf Course Superintendents Association of Northern California and the years attained are:
