years in a row. Most consumers will respond to your inquiries if you phrase them well enough. By listening to them, you may find that you can determine the best possible new service offering.

One word of caution. Two or three people may respond that they would like a new service. That doesn’t make up a customer base. Don’t take what a few people say for what a large group says. If you do, you may find that in fact you don’t have a true base for the sale of your new service, but rather have a very few people who are interested in your offerings.

After you’ve gone through profiling your current customer base, determining why you are going to offer a new service, determining what that new service is going to be, and making sure that you have some input from your customers on how well they will accept your new offering, you can ask the final marketing/advertising question:

6. How is your company going to reach the current customer base in order to let them know of your new offering? The basic consideration is whether to use your current advertising mechanism to advertise your new service. Will you use new mailers? Will you include your new service offerings with the invoice? Should you consider these new services as service extensions or will they be completely new offerings? Every answer given to each of these questions will help determine your advertising/communication strategy.

Summary
It’s next to impossible to give answers to the above questions unless you consider each of them from a single company point of view. No one single way of introducing new services to your current customer base is correct. It depends on your current customers, the types of services you are going to offer, and how you have reached your customers in the past.

By considering all of the above questions, you should have a better planning system for marketing new services to your current customer base.

Two or three people may respond that they would like a new service. That doesn’t make up a customer base.

SoilMoist PLUS

- Stores water and adds fertilizer.
- Helps control overwatering.
- Fewer waterings needed.
- Reduces soil compacting

SOIL MOIST PLUS works unlike any other product to time release both water and fertilizer into the soil. It absorbs excess water with an action similar to that of a sponge. When the surrounding soil becomes dry, the product discharges the water and fertilizer into the soil as needed. Available in bulk containers with or without fertilizer for commercial application. Write or call for free fact sheet.
