Semi-retirement suits former super Bidwell

Semi-retirement has been kind to Warren Bidwell, one of the true "legends" of the turf industry. Bidwell checkerboards the world, singing the praises of bentgrasses in general and the "Penn" varieties in particular since his retirement from golf course superintendent-ing 10 years ago.

"The greatest thing to happen to the golf industry is the use of bentgrass for greens farther south all the time," Bidwell observes. "However, if a superintendent in the South is foolish enough to over-fertilize bentgrass greens, he (or she) will have some problems."

Bidwell—the deliberate, opinionated ex-superintendent at Congressional Country Club in the Washington, D.C. area—never formally studied turf.

"I'm a non-college person," he says. "Short course to short course is the closest I've been to academia. But continued on page 22

RIDE A WALKER

Discover Fast, Competitive, Profitable Mowing

Most commercial mowing operations are using walk-behind mowers because they have concluded no rider mower is compact or maneuverable enough to mow landscaped areas. Now maintenance operators all across the country are discovering the compact, maneuverable Mid-Size Walker Mower fits their job and saves labor (usually cuts labor 1/2). The labor saving Walker looks good whether your business is trying to produce profit or is operating on a budget. Write or call for a free brochure. Ask for a demonstration.

most of the superintendents today are college-educated young people, which is great for the industry. I saw that trend start 15 to 20 years ago."

Bidwell, whose father was a cemetery manager, began formally working in the green industry way back in the mid-1930s with the Fort Mitchell (Ky.) Club. Since signing to promote TwinGreen grasses in 1973, he has traveled to Japan, Australia and New Zealand, Morocco and South Africa. More than half-a-century in the turf business has led to friendships with such immortals as Tom Mascaro (who used a Bidwell course to test a new invention called a turf aerator), former GCSAA president Norman Kramer, educator and researcher H. Burton Musser, and Frank Murphy, general chairman of the 1976 PGA Championship. "My semi-retirement was kind of a planned event," says Bidwell. "I tried to totally retire three years ago, but it didn't work too well. I'm gradually trying to totally retire again, by choice."

One of the trends Bidwell doesn't especially care for (and at this point in his life, he knows he need not mask feelings or mince words) is how golf course superintendents are treated by clubs. "There is a lack of understanding on the part of golf course officials," he notes. "The superintendent is not totally prepared to meet any problem. This is a corporate approach to life: total disregard for any type of reasoning. Golf course officials must be educated."
