RAIN BIRD®

Why we'll get our workers

BY RON HALL / Editor-in-Chief

Immigrant workers fuel the Green Industry's expansion that should run at least another 10 years barring some unforeseen economic jolt. We can be confident of this growth because of the more than 80-plus million baby boomers. They possess the greatest buying power of any generation in history. Their homes, in most cases, represent their single largest investments. Their rallying cry is, "Make my life easier."

The H-2B seasonal guest worker program provides the nutrient manpower that our industry requires to feed this demand. As the program stands, we're in a tug o' war with dozens of other U.S. industries for the 66,000 seasonal immigrant workers.

No better now

Although all of us yelped this past March when the government unexpectedly stopped processing H-2B petitions (the visa cap had been reached), the situation appears no better now. The 2005 H-2B quota will likely be filled early, which will leave many U.S. employers with more work than workers to perform it.

The other group of immigrants complicating our lawmakers' task in coming up with an immigration plan that's acceptable to a spectrum of political interests is the estimated 8-10 million so-called "illegals." They don't possess proper U.S. work authorization and have willingly put themselves in a no-man's land.

For whatever reason, our government hasn't made a concerted effort to deal with them. Instead, it's attempted to stem the flow at our southern border, with only modest results.

The question: Should we be concerned about the continued availability of these workers? Either the H-2B or the illegal workers? (Let's not be naïve; we employ many of these workers, too.)

The answer: In the short-term, you bet. In the long-term, no. We'll get our employees. Here's why.

Immigrant labor a necessity

The fact is that our economy must have a continuing supply of immigrant labor to keep it healthy and growing. There aren't enough young U.S.-born workers to meet the economy's needs. Demographers say that the number of Gen-Xers that follows the Baby Boomers is too small to drive our economy. Our government realizes this.

That's why the "illegals" working here will eventually be legalized. Is this an acceptable solution to our immigration and security dilemma? Absolutely not. But as a practical matter, what else can be done?

As for H-2B, I expect the 109th Congress convening in January to expand the guest worker program. Or, rework and rename it, but to the same purpose. It probably won't happen in time for next season. It will take several weeks to sniff the wind and establish a pecking order before getting down to work.

Don't sit on your thumbs, though. Let your Senators and your U.S. Representative know about H-2B's importance to your company and your industry. E-mail them, write them or call them. Be persistent. Help them make the right decision.

Contact Ron at 440/891-2636 or e-mail at rhall@advanstar.com

The question is not if we'll get the immigrant workers we need, but when.

ALCA/PLCAA merger hot topic at GIE

BY JASON STAHL / Managing Editor

CHARLOTTE, NC — What's in a name? Apparently a lot, judging from the seemingly endless number of individuals at the recent Green Industry Expo who badgered insiders about what the name for the new association formed by the merger of the Associated Landscape Contractors of America (ALCA) and the Professional Lawn Care Association of America (PLCAA) would be.

The merger has been the hot topic of conversation ever since it was announced earlier this year that the two associations were in merger talks. Last September, more than 90% of members voted to finalize it. Most agreed that the consolidation would provide a stronger voice and increased lobbying capabilities for the new organization, as well as expanded member benefits and services.

At ALCA's Sales Symposium in late July, president Kurt Kluznik updated members on the plan for realignment. He stated the following key points:

▶ Seven PLCAA board members will be added to the ALCA board and other committee chairmen and participants will become part of the appropriate ALCA KRAs (Key Results Areas)

▶ two more KRAs will be added: GIE Show and Legislative Day on the Hill
▶ Next year (2005) the officers will be: President — Dan Foley; President Elect — John Gibson; Secretary/Treasurer — Maria Candler; Immediate Past President(s) — Jim Campanella & Kurt Kluznik

▶ ALCA is hiring a marketing firm to develop a new name that reflects the "new era"
▶ Certification will be developed in two lawn care categories

▶ Challenges for the integration: 1) Retain PLCAA members, 2) Deal with pesticide regulations effectively, 3) Help PLCAA members integrate into the ALCA

"This has not been a controversial program. It's been so smooth it's boring."

— Kurt Kluznik

"culture", 4) Meet the needs of the "Lawn Care Specialty Group" which will be formed to be similar to those for interior, exterior, design/build.

Kluznik mingled with more than a few of the 1,700 attendees ALCA hosted at its Green Industry Conference and came away pleased with the feedback on the big merger.

"Most of the comments were all positive. This has not been a controversial program. It's been so smooth it's boring," Kluznik, now immediate past president, said. "From a leadership standpoint, we've been functioning as one in committee meetings and board meetings."

Kluznik was also pleased with the educational portion of the show, stating that all of the speakers were high-caliber and the conferences top-notch. "There were so many good talks going on at once," he said. "Hopefully next year we will have not just cassettes available but CDs as well with all the handouts and Power Point presentations on them."

As far as the mystery name of the new association goes, Kluznik said it should be finalized by mid-December, an early Christmas present for those who can't take the suspense. At the outset, a branding company was hired to do research on names and designs, and 200 names were created. That list was narrowed down to six, then three.

"The name is a very important part of this," says PLCAA's immediate past president Jim Campanella. "But if members aren't happy with the name we ultimately choose, they'll wait to see our work and what this new association can accomplish for the membership. That's most important."

Campanella also felt the mood at the GIE was overwhelmingly positive and walked away from his post with good feelings.

"Everyone thought it was the right thing, and all the past PLCAA presidents were talking to me about the benefits and how bigger is better when it comes to fighting legislative issues," he said. "We need to be more organized and unified, and this is a great first step to bringing in more Green Industry associations." LJM

And, as these photos attest, there was plenty of opportunity to check out the latest landscape and construction equipment and mingle with old friends and make plenty of new ones.

1 A signature finish

Exmark's new Navigator out-front riding mower, designed for use on high-end residential accounts, comes available in 42- or 48-in. cutting widths and features a large-diameter blower fan that works with a unique baffle design to maximize vacuuming performance and cutting efficiency. A standard integrated collection system deposits clippings into a 9-bushel (76-gallon) collection hopper. A standard fill sensor audibly alerts the operator when the hopper is full. The ergonomic positioning of Exmark's new FeatherTouch control system places the operator in precise control of the mower. Choose from either a 20- or 27-hp Kohler Command SP V-twin engine.

2 Tough trimmers

Shindaiwa introduces two new hedge trimmers, the HT2510 and DH2510. Powered by a high-torque 1.1-hp 24.5cc displacement engine, they're especially designed for the commercial market. Both the HT2510 and DH2510 models feature new chrome-plated, self-adjusting blades and, according to Shindaiwa, have the highest blade speed in the industry. A unique cross between 2-cycle and 4-cycle engines, the 4-cycle HT2510 and DH2510 hedge trimmers combine the best of both worlds: the light weight, high torque, multi-position characteristics, and great throttle response of the 2-cycle, and the low noise, improved fuel economy, and dramatically reduced exhaust gas emissions of a 4-cycle.

3 Roll out the green

BlueYellow's innovative turf establishment system features premium seed and fertilizer in a biodegradable roll. The installer simply rolls out the BlueYellow over the prepared soil — it's seed, fertilizer and mulch all in one application. Turf stakes should be used to hold the mat in place until thoroughly watered. BlueYellow will adhere to the soil when watered in, retaining moisture and reducing watering frequency during grow-in. Once germination begins, new seedlings grow through the cellulose matting. As the matting biodegrades, it continues to offer protection. Upon completion, there is nothing to remove.

4 Intruder alert

The Tattletale Portable Alarm System protects businesses and equipment from theft, vandalism or fire. The wireless system works regardless of whether a phone line or power has been cut. Just plug it in, and, since it's portable, you can move it from job site to job site. Long-range wireless sensors allow Tattletale to work indoors or outdoors. Accessories include a smoke detector, glass break detector, indoor motion detector, outdoor motion detector, Rattlesnake outdoor vibration sensor, door/window sensor, key fob and the LOOP. The LOOP works like a bicycle lock — wrap it around a riding mower and any attempt to cut the cable sends an instant signal to the alarm unit.

5 Rrrrr. Meet the Predator

Bob-Cat's new Predator-Pro series of zero-turn riding mowers brings more power and speed to commercial cutting. The Generac overhead valve gas engines generate the highest hp available in a vertical shaft engine, an increase of five hp over previous engine offerings in the ZT-200 Series, resulting in a 2-mph boost in ground speed, up to a top speed of 11 mph. Available in three models: 26-hp Generac engine with 52-in. deck, 31-hp with 61-in. deck, and 33-hp with a 72-in. deck. The Predator-Pro is constructed with operator comfort as a priority. The seat features high-back, vinyl-covered, foam-padded full suspension with an operator weight adjustment feature to smooth out the ride.

6 Squeeze it through

Cub Cadet Commercial's new Z-Wing 48 zero-turn riding mower can get to places other riding mowers can't. With the flick of a switch, the operator can trigger an electrical mechanical-lift that folds up the sides of the deck to a 90-degree angle and allow the Z-Wing to fit through a 36-in. wide gate opening. Compared to the Cub Cadet Commercial M-48 Tank, the new Z-Wing saves 42% more space, which translates into more room on the trailer or in the garage...without sacrificing the efficiency of a large 48-in. deck.

7 The pressure's off

Bobcat Company's new MT55 mini track loader features more horsepower and a wider track for lower ground pressure, enabling landscapers to get their jobs done faster with less turf disturbance. The MT55 is just 41.5 in. wide, and its wider tracks lower ground pressure to 4.1 psi. It also features a turf-friendly lug track that distributes the operating weight of the 2,679-lb. loader over a larger area. The MT55 also has a 550-lb. rated operating capacity. In addition, this mini track loader works with 18 different attachments easily with 12 gpm of auxiliary hydraulic flow and a 2,900 psi hydraulic system.

8 Ridin' smooth

Husqvarna's new 4x4 utility vehicle series makes working off-road to transport materials and tools easy. The SureFoot 4x4 system automatically sends power to the tires with the most traction as the driving conditions demand. Three models are available: the HUV4220, HUV4420, and HUV4420-D. Each is equipped with a 15.1 cu. ft. steel bed with a load capacity of 1,050 lbs. The UV4220 has a 400cc, 13-hp Kawasaki engine; the HUV4420 a 614cc, 20-hp engine; and the HUV4420-D a Kubota 719cc 20-hp diesel engine.

Chemical beat: the old is new again

Unique formulations for proven a.i.'s revealed a bigger crop of new T&O products than those of us at the '04 GIE expected.

BY RON HALL / Editor-in-Chief

While the flow of new chemistry to the turf & ornamental market has slowed due to costs and more stringent regulatory pressure, it hasn't stopped, as evidenced by activity at the recent Green Industry Expo.

Product partnerships dominated the news as Dow AgroSciences and Nufarm Turf combined for one press conference and launch, and a joint effort by FMC Corporation and Bayer Environmental Sciences resulted in another major announcement. In both cases, familiar and proven active ingredients have been formulated into new products that solve specific problems on turfgrass. The news didn't stop there. Other companies rolled out new chemical products, but with less fanfare at their trade show booths.

Dupont targets fire ants

For example, DuPont Professional Products actively promoted its new Advion Fire Ant Bait (with the active indoxacarb), which it claims controls imported red fire ants within 24 to 72 hours after application.

The product received EPA approval in late August. Advion's mode of action is unique — the metabolic activation of indoxacarb by developing larvae within the colony. Once the metabolite is distributed to other members of the colony, including the queen, control quickly follows. The product is available in 25-lb. and 2-lb. jugs.

Doug Obermann, turf and ornamental manager, was equally busy explaining the unique characteristics of PBI Gordon's new Azatrol insecticide, labeled for flowers, trees, shrubs and plants. With a certified organic formulation, this product fits well into IPM programs, Obermann told LM. Its action is unique. It works as an anti-feedant, an IGR and also as an anti-ovipository and repellent. While it doesn't provide the quick knockdown of a contact insecticide, it gives results comparable to these standards by 21 days after treatment. It does not harm beneficial insect populations, Obermann said.

Also, at the booth, Surge, a new broadleaf herbicide for turf, was getting a lot of attention, partly because of its flashy, hi-tech blue label. Again, the Kansas City-based company continues to promote the speed at this product begins showing control. This water-based amine option for weed control, contains sulfentrazone with 2,4-D, MCPP and dicamba. The company says that applications of Surge can be made at temperatures up to 90 degrees F.

Merit/Talstar combo

But, the big news at the GIE, at least in terms of broad-spectrum turf insect control, was the announcement of the FMC/Bayer ES partnership in the development of its new Allectus G insecticide.

Dr. Nate Royalty, Bayer ES, said that formulation science gets much of the credit for new product launches.

Bayer representatives hailed the development of Allectus G — containing the actives imidacloprid (Bayer's Merit) and bifenthrin (FMC's Talstar) — as a breakthrough in that represents a product that controls turf pests both above and below the surface. These include all major white grub species, as well as pests such as billbug larvae, annual bluegrass weevil larvae, mole crickets, chinch bugs, cutworms, sod webworms, fire ants and others.

"Customers asked us to develop a single-product solution to multiple pest problems. Allectus answers that request," said Dr. Mike Ruizzo, business manager, neonicotinoids at Bayer. "Bayer and FMC have essentially created a new product category. There is nothing else like on the market."

Partnerships among the speciality chemical players was the big news, but some new chemistry is planned.

In announcing the launch, Dr. Nate Royalty, Bayer ES product development manager, lauded the formulation scientists at both Bayer and FMC for their success in combining the active ingredients (bifenthrin and imidacloprid) of two of the industry's most popular insecticides into a single product in just a little over a year.

A sprayable concentrate form of Allectus is under EPA review, and the insecticide is also being readied for incorporation with turf fertilizer.

Also, at that early morning press conference, Bayer's Dan Carrouthers reported that sales of TopChoice, the company's fire ant product, had increased 30 percent from

Doug Obermann

Scott Eicher

2004 over 2003, and that 750 lawn service companies had registered and become certified TopChoice operators.

FMC to ramp up presence

Speaking of FMC, GIE attendees also learned of Stingray, a new herbicide labeled for control of aquatic weeds, including water lettuce, water hyacinth, watermeal and Salvinia molesta.

The active ingredient in Stingray is carfentrazone, the same active as in the company's turf & ornamental herbicide Quick-silver. FMC's Don Claus said Stingray, classified by the U.S. EPA as a reduced risk pesticide, is being launched in the Florida market first.

FMC Corporation's Speciality Product Business has been very public about its intention to become more active in the turf & ornamental market. On the horizon is a new insecticide, flonicamid, for the nursery, landscape and greenhouse markets. (It has received registration for greenhouse.) The product is the result of an agreement with Ishihara Sangyo Kaisha (ISK).

The company is also partnering with Dow AgroSciences to develop several new products, which the companies will brand under both the FMC and Dow brands.

Dow/Nufarm share the 'Spotlight'

Dow AgroSciences LLC and Nufarm Turf and Speciality jointly promoted the launch of Escalade and Escalade Low Odor herbicides at their joint press conference. The products contain Dow Agro-Sciences' Spotlight (active fluoxypry), a post-emergent control for clover, dandelion, oxalis and ground ivy. Dow and Nufarm kicked off the product introductions with about 250 lawn care professionals at a special GIE reception.

"The key idea here is partnership and finding ways to meet customer needs," said Scott Eicher, senior product manager for Dow AgroSciences, who is responsible for Spotlight marketing. "In this industry, it is becoming much more difficult to bring new proprietary products to market.

"By working closely with our channel partners, customers will see new brands becoming available," he added. Dow AgroSciences works with many formulators and distributors but has not jointly marketed a product in recent years.

Another new product from that particular partnership is Triplet Low Odor, a three-way herbicide for broadleaf control. This highly refined formulation of 2,4-D TIPA reduces the initial odor with little to no lingering smell, according to the company.

Arvesta becomes a player

Landscape Management, at the GIE, learned of a new neonicotinoid insecticide being lined up for the commercial turfgrass market. It could be available as early as this spring. That's what the folks at Arvesta Corp., based in San Francisco, are hoping as they await product registration.

The company says extensive field testing has shown the product to provide excellent control of a broad range of insect pests — white grubs, billbugs, sod webworms, chinch bug, mole crickets and cutworms, to name a few.

Arvesta is an operating unit of Arysta LifeScience Corporation, Tokyo, and reported sales of $760 million in 2003. Arvesta is recognized in the U.S. market with products such as Captan fungicide, Everest and Select herbicides and Orthene insecticides, among others. LM

9 steps to effective training

You don't need to have a Ph.D. to design a successful training program, but you do need to have a point person to make it happen. These 9 steps will get you there

“Six years ago, I was miserable,” recalls Jim McCutcheon, president of Highgrove Partners Inc., Atlanta. “I thought our quality was down, morale was low, and we weren't as profitable as we should be. I spent all my time putting out fires.”

Once McCutcheon analyzed why the situation suffered, he said it became ‘abundantly clear’ that training was needed desperately. “We felt training was important but it wasn't part of the culture,” he says. “We weren't giving it the time it needed and our systems and policies were antiquated, so it had no credibility with employees.”

The remedy, McCutcheon found, was to make training a focus of the organization, then make it workable. “It doesn't have to be a difficult process,” he notes.

“Too many contractors are frustrated by training because they don't know where to start.”

For Highgrove, starting anew took a few key steps:

1 Learn from others.

McCutcheon's experience with ALCA networking led him to visit other landscape firms and explore what works for them. McCutcheon's model was based on the training at Cagwin & Dorward in Novato, CA. “We can retool these ideas for our culture,” he remembered thinking.

2 Choose a champion.

The key point McCutcheon learned from Wayne Richards at Cagwin & Dorward was to give authority for training to a ‘champion.’ When he returned from visiting Richards, McCutcheon asked one of his key managers to take on this role.

3 Prioritize training needs.

Together, McCutcheon and his manager prioritized Highgrove's training needs: field crew members, supervisors/managers, then lead managers. Once focused on crew training, they needed to set aside time to define what the training should cover and how it would be presented. They developed a system of job grades within positions and built a series of concepts employees need to master to move up through the ranks. This involved some time and effort as the team focused on specifics.

4 Get specific. “We assume people know what to do and what is expected of them,” McCutcheon says, “but we actually have to get specific.” He and his manager developed a training program using various training materials available and the company's own standards and methods. Most materials are very specific, step-by-step processes to learn.

5 Understand learning styles. "It took us about six months to build our training program, test it and make revisions," McCutcheon says. "We also realized that all people don't learn the same way, so we built our courses with a combination of written materials, demonstrations and tests," he notes. In some cases, demonstrations are one-on-one or for the whole team.

6 Stick with it. Finding time for training is easier than we think, McCutcheon says. High-

These employees get crew members ready each morning with stretching exercises, then ask one to ring a cowbell as a fun way to start each work day.

grove holds four Saturday training days (two are paid and two are voluntary) for crew members where several skills are presented. The firm also integrates training concepts into tailgate talks. Employees can study on their own time. High-

New kid on the block

A new resource for industry training is the Green Industry Hub, an online learning center that combines basic business management courses, industry-specific courses and a variety of networking and learning opportunities designed to benefit both owners and employees. Five free courses are now available. Premium subscribers can buy individual seat licenses for employees to study on their time, and immediately get access to 44 different online courses. Each month, new industry specific courses are added, based on ALCA's certification curriculum. The Hub is sponsored by ALCA and Landscape Management, and powered by ez2master.com. grove also developed Spanish language training for its Hispanic workers, having materials translated and providing ample on-site demonstrations.

7 Test and expand. Once Phase 1 was tested and established, Highgrove started Phase 2 — training the trainers. The team developed facilitators' manuals that give each location's designated trainer all the information and resources he or she needs to operate the site's training program. Phase 3 involves higher levels of management training on topics such as the basics of responsibility, sales and customer service topics, financial basics and related topics.

8 Track progress. McCutcheon noted that it's very hard to tie training investment directly to the bottom line but instinctively feels his firm has made huge progress with customer retention, employee retention, work quality and profitability because of its training efforts. Highgrove does survey employees and consistently gets requests for more training, which McCutcheon takes as a good sign that they like what they get. "We're teaching them how to be better at what they do."

9 Stay flexible and focused. "We still look for new ways to do things," he maintains. "We've used video series, role playing, professional training facilitators like Jim Paluch, ALCA materials and other sources." Now that training is so engrained in Highgrove's culture, it's easier to stay focused, with better results for the firm.

"Formerly, the pain was so bad I was willing to make the investment in training," says McCutcheon. "I knew if we were to grow past the point where I touched all the operations, we would need to invest in our employees." LJM

I DESIGNED THE BODY, BUT MY ISUZU CREW CAB MAKES IT WORK.

Jay Boyce, owner of Boyce Landscape Inc., knew just what he wanted to make the perfect landscape truck, but he needed a very special truck chassis to complete the picture.

As Jay puts it, "The body I designed had a place for everything, but to make it work, I needed a truck that could handle the load and carry a six man crew as well. (Legally, with seat belts.) My clients are very upscale, so the truck had to look good on the job. I also wanted a very tight turning radius, so drivers could maneuver in narrow areas. And finally, it had to be dependable, because down-time is a killer in this business. My Isuzu dealer had just the right truck, the Isuzu crew cab."

IMPROVE HEARING

My wife said I had a hearing problem. So I got the incredibly quiet four-stroke trimmer by Honda. A whole day of trimming and I can still hear as clear as a bell. My wife says my selective hearing's gotten worse, but I don't listen.

Honda four-stroke trimmers don't whine like most trimmers, they use unmixed gas, are incredibly fuel-efficient and virtually smoke-free. Plus this year, they have more power and weigh 16% less than our original 22cc model. You've gotta love the sound of that. For more information, call 800.426.7701 or visit www.honda.com.

ON THE SURFACE, IT'S A BEAST.

PRESENTING THE FEROCIOUS NEW CHEVY™ KODIAK™ 4x4.

Mountainous trails. Backwoods paths. Washed-out roads. They're no match for the new Chevy 4x4. Factory built with a fully integrated 4x4 system and a turning diameter that's 11.5' shorter than the competition,* this beast is an off-road warrior. Capable of punishing just about anything foolish enough to get in its way. The new Chevy Kodiak C4500/C5500 4x4. It thrives in hostile work environments. Call 1-800-TO-CHEVY or visit us at www.chevrolet.com.

CHEVY TRUCKS  KODIAK

*Based on comparison of 2005 Chevy Kodiak C4500/C5500 4WD with 84" CA to 2004 Ford F-450/F-550 4WD with 84" CA. Shown with equipment from an independent supplier. See the owner's manual for information on alterations and warranties.

GRASSHOPPER MOWERS CUT YOUR MAINTENANCE TIME BY 80%

Can your
do that?

With only five grease points – instead of the 16-30 found on most commercial mowers – lubrication is a snap. And Grasshoppers can run two to five times longer between transmission fluid and filter changes. All this “no excuse” serviceability adds up to increased “up time” – and that keeps you on time!

What Makes Walker Different?

For almost 25 years, the Walker Mower has stood apart from the competition as a unique option for productive, high quality mowing. So, what makes the Walker different? This 3-part ad series takes a detailed look at the finer points of the one-of-a-kind Walker Mower.

1st in a Series of 3

Compact Overall Size

From the beginning, the Walker was designed to be compact in width, length and height—this contributes to getting the job done fast by allowing the mower to get into tight spaces, efficiently do the work and make a quick exit with no lost motion. Compact height also provides a low center of gravity resulting in stable operation, even on slopes. The beauty of Walker's compact design is that the same tractor using a 36" deck in tight spaces can also be fitted with a 74" deck to reach up and mow larger areas—a definitive, rare breed in zero-turn mowing.

Sound Engineering

Simply put, the Walker Mower was designed to do a job and not just fill a market. No product studies were used and teams of engineers were not part of the inception. The innovative, time-tested design of the Walker is the result of years of improvement by listening to customers and implementing various industry advancements. Key to this elegant design has been discipline and staying true to the original idea—the current Walker chassis is within inches of the original overall size, even with larger, more advanced engines. Simple, practical construction of the Walker has made it a distinguished original.

Smart Water Solutions

Science City at Union Station · Kansas City, Missouri

“Mixed-use developments with heavily traveled public spaces would be wise to engage an ASIC Professional Member. They make the critical difference in developing sustainable and innovative water management solutions. I don’t know who else could design an environmentally friendly bio-swales drainage network for a 1,000-car parking lot like the one we designed for the nation’s second largest train station.”

ANDY SCOTT

Executive Director • Union Station Assistance Corporation

Professional members of the American Society of Irrigation Consultants have passed an extensive peer review and qualification process.

Working with an ASIC member gives you the confidence that a highly-qualified irrigation consultant is on the job, helping to protect your interests and your investment
