EPA, Syngenta agree to phase out diazinon

BY JASON STAHL
GREENSBORO, NC — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Syngenta Crop Protection USA have agreed on a four-year phase out of diazinon, an insecticide used to control insects and grubs.

The announcement comes six months after the voluntary cancellation of another insecticide, Dursban, by the EPA and Dow AgroSciences. Both insecticides were under review as a result of the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996 which toughened pesticide laws.

"So far, the loss of Dursban and diazinon hasn't hit us ... I think it will have more impact on do-it-yourselfers."
— Robertson

"If the product that was in the gun sites was something used daily, I'm sure no one would say it was no big deal," Andrews says. "Farmers and golf course superintendents can still use this stuff, so I wonder if the EPA is targeting people who they feel won't fight back. I think we need to a better job of defending our use of these products."

"So far, the loss of Dursban and diazinon hasn't hit us where it hurts because we haven't been using them for a long time anyway. I think it will have more of an impact on do-it-yourselfers," Robertson says. "Still, there's no question this is all a big concern for us. But I'm more interested in what they will allow in the future and what good products they will allow us to keep. As long as we have new and improved chemistries that are available to us, I think we'll be okay."

Bob Andrews, owner of The Greenskeeper, Carmel, IN, echoed Robertson's concerns and doesn't believe the EPA's actions have any less impact simply because Dursban and diazinon were in limited use.

Mulch up to 700% faster!

The revolutionary FINN Bark Blower aim-and-shoot mulching technique pays you back fast

Switch from Dursban Longer Residual and Guaranteed.

“Hey, who turned off the lights?”

Talstar® insecticides can be used just about anywhere you use Dursban.*

Talstar® insecticides are the replacement for Dursban. But unlike Dursban, they are guaranteed to provide long-lasting performance against a broad spectrum of insects, or your money back. And you can use Talstar® insecticides on lawns and landscape ornamentals, for perimeters and just about anywhere else you’d use Dursban.

Talstar® insecticides are formulated with the active ingredient, bifenthrin, a low-dose pyrethroid, which contains no alpha-cyano group. That means they are also less likely to cause the skin irritation experienced with other pyrethroids, and won’t cause throat irritation. Plus, they’re easy to handle and at label rates, are odor-free.

Feds finally fund turfgrass scientist at USDA
BELTSVILLE, MD — The USDA will, sometime early in 2001, fund its first full-time turfgrass research scientist since Jack Murray’s position was abolished after his retirement in 1988. This is a result of the passage of the FY2001 Agriculture Appropriations Bill. The new position will be located here at the Agricultural Research Center. The new scientist will work on improving genetic stocks of new and promising turfgrass species, as well as provide scientific support to the National Turfgrass Evaluation Program (NTEP), said Executive Director Kevin N. Morris.

Correction In the November issue of Landscape Management, the article on Person of the Year Terry Kurth referred to atrazine as a fungicide. It is not. Rather, it is a selective herbicide used for broadleaf weed and grass control in corn and sorghum. We regret the error.

Your dream may have started like many others' — a dream of independence, good work, profits and pride. Your dream to manage a landscape operation grew from the idea that you'd make your mark, put your own stamp on something worthwhile — and be rewarded for it.

Has that dream come true or has it been replaced by an organization that is out of control? Are those profits and rewards real or elusive?

Do you even know for sure?
