A man whose corn was carried away by the wind, and which he was unable to recover, had twenty bushels of corn from a little patch of land about the size of a fist. It is likely that these bushels were produced by a new accession of growth.

When the muscles are tired out, and the temperature is higher, the best time to work is after sunset, when there is less heat. Theprevailing winds are the best, be cause they carry away the dust and germs.

The GRANGE VISITOR.

SCHOOLCRAFT, JANUARY 15TH, 1881.

Deputy's Department.

C. L. WHITNEY, MICHIGAN.

PICKING OF THE WHEEL. No. 22.

We had determined to time our present trip to an eleventh day of the month, for the sake of a waning nature, notwithstanding it is the first of the month. We have been staying with the family of Charles H. Abbot, and we mean to remain there for a week. We have already received from the office in which you reside, asking to come and see you. We have been a week now, and we are unable to do so. We mean to remain here for a week, and then to take the train to New York. We have been staying with the family of Mr. Abbot, and we mean to remain here for a week.

The house was quite comfortable, and we mean to remain there for a week. We have been staying with the family of Charles H. Abbot, and we mean to remain here for a week. Unison Grange.

We gave notice of an open Bible, upon a halo. Back of this central column there was a large picture of Ceres's place, a large sheaf of wheat, beautifully cut in the shape of a wheat. Back of this there was a large picture of the Order, showing them the need of doing their work. One of the Granges was the most read. It was a beautiful and appetizing picture.

In the early work of the Grange, thousands of little papers were sent out to organize the Royal Porta and in time to form the Grand National. These papers, many of them thrown into the hands of readers of the Visitor, to any who have registered as members, or to the Secretary of the National, and in many cases, were given away free of charge. Do please send them to us by mail, and we will send them to those who wish, in the course of proceedings, etc. Among the earlier Grange folders those worthy to be preserved, and perhaps among others, we would particularly note Jan. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, which never harm be a pleasure to read, by the same hand. It is therefore, and the Orange Bulletin we find the following,

11:10 am the following:

Do not be alarmed, but in the meantime let us do something to improve the chances of success, and to increase the chances of failure, and to raise the hopes of the people, in common countries.

The letter is written in the name of the Orange Bulletin, C. L. Whitney, Muskegon, Michigan, and to the effect that we are in favor of the following:

"Remember this, brother Patrons, work is needed, but it must be love-work, and it must begin at home. Brush up your own Grange; meet every week; have something to do, and do it. Make your halls pleasant and comfortable, and every meeting more interesting than the last. Bring into action some plan that will interest all, and give all something to do. Don't grumble and find fault, but go to work yourself and be too busy to see others' faults. When you have set your own Grange in order, then look around outside, see who you can bring in, and show them that they are needed, and welcome, and give them something to do at once. If your neighboring Grange is weak, give it earnest, prompt and efficient help, arouse the old members, show them how the Order is growing, what great possibilities there are before it, and don't rest till you have started a good strong revival. Above all, work for the Grange papers. Take one, two, or three, yourself, and when they are read, hand them around. The GRANGE VISITOR, Farmer's Friend, and Orange Bulletin, can all be had for three dollars, and if you will take and read them for one year you won't do without them. Now is the time to subscribe. Don't delay."

The GRANGE VISITOR is the official organ of the Grand National Grange, and is published weekly by the Grand National Grange at Muskegon, Michigan. For two dollars, as noted in the last number, we will send the VISITOR, and recommend it to your neighbors and friends, and ask them to take it. It you can get the GRANGE VISITOR and the Orange Bulletin including Our Little Grangers for two dollars, as noted in the last number, be assured that you are doing a great kindness.

THE surest way to please is to forget self and think only of others.—Moncrief.

GRATITUDE is the memory of the heart—lincoln.
THE VISITOR FOR 1881.

THE VISITOR.

JANUARY 15TH, 1881.

To the Readers of the State and National Legislatures: We hope that the Congress of the United States, now assembled, will act on the following measures, the necessity of which we have previously urged:

1. The establishment of a system of school instruction for the benefit of all the people of the United States.

2. The establishment of a system of national defense and national security, which shall be based upon the principle of mutual defensive cooperation.

3. The establishment of a system of national health care, which shall be based upon the principle of universal access to medical care.

4. The establishment of a system of national welfare, which shall be based upon the principle of equal opportunity for all citizens.

5. The establishment of a system of national security, which shall be based upon the principle of national defense and national security.

6. The establishment of a system of national education, which shall be based upon the principle of universal access to education.

7. The establishment of a system of national culture, which shall be based upon the principle of national culture.

8. The establishment of a system of national arts, which shall be based upon the principle of national arts.

9. The establishment of a system of national sciences, which shall be based upon the principle of national sciences.

10. The establishment of a system of national technology, which shall be based upon the principle of national technology.

The transportation question considered.

Interest in the transportation problem has been widespread in the United States. It is imperative that the Congress pass just and equitable measures to regulate transportation. The problem is a complex one involving various interests and factors. The Government, therefore, has a duty to take action to ensure fair and just transportation rates for all. Without such action, the problem may continue to grow.

The transportation question is not just a matter of the present, but it also has implications for the future. It is essential that we take steps now to address the issue and ensure that the transportation system works for the benefit of all Americans.

The transportation problem is a major one. It affects all aspects of our lives and is a challenge that we must face. It requires the attention and efforts of all of us to find solutions and work towards a better transportation system.

It is clear that the transportation problem is a complex and multifaceted issue. It requires a comprehensive approach to find solutions and ensure fair and just transportation rates for all.

The transportation problem is a significant issue that affects all Americans and requires our collective attention to find solutions.

When I speak of gardening for women, I do not mean to refer to a few plants in the house, but to the idea of growing flowers and vegetables for the table, to perform the manual labor. If taken into account, the work assigned to those who are already overburdened with household and family responsibilities, there would be their duties, considered as a duty, which they might as well take up; and that household duties, which they are now supposed to perform without a charge. The will be interpreted with plenty of good sense, both in the plant and in the house, and the different sections of the term are, generally speaking, divided into those from a distance. A Letter from Liberty Grange.

NORTH STARK, Grange Hall, Grange No. 20, January 15, 1880.

J. E. G. G.:

We have been in receipt of your letter of January 10, and desire to ask your indulgence in answering at this late hour.

Our Grange No. 20, is located in the town of North Stark, in the 7th district of the county of Stark, State of Ohio.

The Grand Master of this State, in his recent circular, says: "There are at present no laws for the protection of the Grange membership." But I am going to try again, and, if you will, try again with me. We have heard the news of the day, and our attention has been called by the teachings of the Grange movement, and have done all that we can to encourage the attachment of the good of the Order. We have been a subscriber to the Grange magazine for more than a year, and have read your subscriptions over a thousand times, and your satisfaction in the editorial department of the Grange magazine is such that we may say well why you call it. I am not one of those members who are not interested in the Grange, because I have seen the good faith in the Grange. The cause that we have been fighting for is one of the greatest in the country, and is in the interest of all men. We have seen the good faith in the Grange, and, I am sure, that if the Grange movement is to be successful, we must have the support of the public.

The GRANGERS.

Newark, Ohio.

Fitchburg, Dec. 30, 1880.

JOHN J. HENDERSHOTT,

Our worthy Secretary stated, at the last regular meeting, that he is going to try again, and, if you will, try again with me. We have heard the news of the day, and our attention has been called by the teachings of the Grange movement, and have done all that we can to encourage the attachment of the good of the Order. We have been a subscriber to the Grange magazine for more than a year, and have read your subscriptions over a thousand times, and your satisfaction in the editorial department of the Grange magazine is such that we may say well why you call it. I am not one of those members who are not interested in the Grange, because I have seen the good faith in the Grange. The cause that we have been fighting for is one of the greatest in the country, and is in the interest of all men. We have seen the good faith in the Grange, and, I am sure, that if the Grange movement is to be successful, we must have the support of the public.

JOHN J. HENDERSHOTT,
In the early days of the sugar industry in Illinois, it was common practice to use raw sugar in the production of refined sugar. The quality of the raw sugar varied depending on the source and the methods used in refining. It is important to note that in the early days of the sugar industry, the concept of 'new process sugars' did not exist, and the term 'refined sugar' referred to sugar that had been purified and processed to improve its quality and appearance.

The manufacturing of sugar involved several steps, including the extraction of sugar from the sugarcane or sugar beet, the clarification of the sugar solution, and the crystallization of the resulting syrup. The use of raw sugar in the production of refined sugar was not uncommon, and it was often used to improve the quality of the final product.

In the context of the passage provided, the introduction of the new process sugars was a significant development in the sugar industry. The passage describes the efforts of refiners to improve the quality of sugar by introducing new processes, such as the use of glucose and other substances to produce a product that was more uniform in quality and appearance.

The passage also highlights the efforts of refiners to market their products more effectively, such as by advertising their new process sugars and promoting their quality to consumers. The introduction of new process sugars was an important step in the evolution of the sugar industry, and it helped to improve the quality of sugar available to consumers.

In summary, the passage provides a good overview of the development of the sugar industry in Illinois, particularly with regard to the introduction of new process sugars. The passage is an interesting read for those interested in the history of the sugar industry and the evolution of the sugar market.

Additionally, it is important to note that the passage provides a detailed description of the production process of sugar, which is an interesting read for those interested in the history of the sugar industry.

In conclusion, the passage provides a good overview of the development of the sugar industry in Illinois, particularly with regard to the introduction of new process sugars. The passage is an interesting read for those interested in the history of the sugar industry and the evolution of the sugar market.
