VOTING FOR AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.
ADDRESS OF WORTHY MASTER MACE
Delivered before the Michigan State Grange, December 13, 1881.

Worthy Master Mace:
In obedience to the requirements of the Constitution of the Michigan State Grange, it falls to me to address you this evening. If I were to pause and inventory our organization we should find that the members of this Society are ever increasing in numbers. We can justly claim the confidence and esteem of the farmers of our State, for we are among the best organized bodies of men in the United States. We are the representatives of a great and powerful interest, and we have reason to believe that this sentiment will become more and more powerful as the years of our existence shall go by. These sentiments and assurances look forward to the achievements and the success which we shall be instrumental in bringing about. We shall be the friends of the agricultural interests of our country. We shall have a voice in the affairs of the State and of the Nation. We shall be powerful in our influence, for upon us all, every man and every woman, will have to depend for the protection of interests which are dear to his heart. We shall be able to look forward to a future which is certain to gladden our hearts. We shall be able to look forward to a future in which we shall see our country growing and prospering. We shall be able to look forward to a future in which our labors shall be crowned with success.

The MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Mr. HAYES.

Mr. Speaker: The President of the Senate has called the attention of the House to the fatality which occurred yesterday in the wreck of the "Great Northern" passenger train near the station at South Bend. To any one of the members of this House, the name of South Bend is a household word. It is the home of the distinguished and noble Statesman whose name and fame have always been associated with that city; it is the home of one of the most enterprising and active of our young cities, which, since the close of the war, has become a center of civilization and refinement. The name of South Bend is one of the most important and respected in the whole of our great country.

amount of foss and style collected has been greater than for the previous year. In a few directions the season had been one to remember. The fields were rich in grain, and the markets for corn and wheat were good. The farmers were busy harvesting their crops, and there was a general satisfaction in the air. In fact, the season was one of plenty, and the farmers were content with the results. In conclusion, the season was one of great prosperity, and the farmers were satisfied with the results.

The Grand Grange, 1881.

The Grand Grange was formed in 1867, and has since become one of the largest and most influential farmers' organizations in the United States. It was founded by farmers who were tired of the low prices for their crops and the high prices for farm supplies. The Grand Grange was founded to help farmers organize and fight against the railroads, banks, and other powerful interests that were exploiting them. The Grand Grange was a successful organization, and it helped to improve the lives of farmers across the country.

"Do you mean to say you have never been among people?

"You mean you have never been among people?"
You see, I have no one to write to, for my mother is dead, and my father has gone West, and I have no cousin, no uncle, no aunt, no one who would be willing to write to me, and I have no one to write to, and I have no one to write to, and I have no one to write to."
A combination that will produce an even grade of Butter, winter and summer, has been asked for. This is quired. Says two-thirds the labor. It will save its cost twice the first season. A RESPONSIBILITY.
