THE GRANGE VISITOR

Agricultural Department.

The Crop.

We worked through spring and winter, through hot and cold, and through th under the sun. It was a hard struggle, and it was not worth while. The crops averaged not more than ten per cent above the average of the last year. The rain and wind were with us, and the crops had to be fought for.

The Livestock.

The livestock were not too bad, but the meat was not as good as expected. Some of the livestock were too fat, and some were too thin. The meat was not as good as expected. The meat was not as good as expected.

The Fertilizer Trade.

The fertilizer trade was not too bad, but the prices were not as high as expected. Some of the fertilizer was too expensive, and some was too cheap. The prices were not as high as expected.

The Seed Trade.

The seed trade was not too bad, but the prices were not as high as expected. Some of the seed was too expensive, and some was too cheap. The prices were not as high as expected.

The Markets.

The markets were not too bad, but the prices were not as high as expected. Some of the markets were too expensive, and some was too cheap. The prices were not as high as expected.

Fattening Cattle, No. 5. By C. O. Lock.

Proper facilities and care in watering stock are of great importance, and the different seasons of the year require different arrangements. In summer, when the cattle are on pasture, they are usually watered at all times, winter and spring, when the cattle are stabled, the water should be available at all times. Whether the cattle are on pasture or stabled, the water should be available at all times. Whether the cattle are on pasture or stabled, the water should be available at all times.

In the beginning of this article, and past ones, there are cases of frequent occurrence in every place.

This article is sufficiently long to convey the necessary information without burdening the reader with any unnecessary details. It will be noticed that the language is very simple and direct, and that the facts are laid before the reader in a clear and concise manner. The author has taken pains to make the article as free from repetition as possible. It is the desire of the author to make the article as easy to understand as possible.

In conclusion, the author desires to say that the article is written with the idea of informing the public of the importance of the subject, and of showing the necessity of doing something to prevent the evils which are now so prevalent. The author believes that the time has come when the people of every country should take hold of the subject, and work for the betterment of the human race.
