The Farmer is of More Consequence than the Farm, and Should be First Improved.

Schoole, Mich., September 1, 1883.

[Article: "The Farmer is of More Consequence than the Farm, and Should be First Improved.

The harvest is full. The harvest of growing girls, growing boys, growing men and women, which is the great harvest of life. And who knows it better than to a boy who has had a farm?"

The article discusses the importance of farmers and their role in society. It contrasts the apparent insignificance of a farmer's work with the lasting impact it has on society. The author argues that the labor of farmers is not easily noted, but it is of immense value.

Other articles in the issue include:

- "The Sugar Cane: Its Use, Production, and Improvement" by Elihu Burrett, which focuses on the importance of the sugar cane and its production.
- "The Laboratory Work of the Sugar Cane" which delves into the scientific aspects of sugar cane cultivation.
- "The Future of Sugar Cane" which looks at the potential for sugar cane production and its impact on the economy.

The publication also includes articles on agricultural practices, scientific studies, and general information on farming and crop production.
TO OUR FRIENDS.

Since the paper was selected, on the 1st of December, we have been in almost daily correspondence with our friends, and have had, as we believe, a very lively interest in our success. The fact is, we have received much less encouragement than we had anticipated, and we have been, for some time, to the extreme disappointment of our friends, that we have not been able to raise the capital necessary to carry on the business. We have, however, been able to raise the necessary amount of capital, and we have been able to secure a sufficient number of subscribers to enable us to continue the paper. We are, therefore, now in a position to make a strong appeal to our friends, and we earnestly solicit their support.

We have received a large number of subscriptions for the paper, and we are now in a position to publish the paper. We have also received a large number of advertisements, and we are now in a position to publish the advertisements.

We are now in a position to publish the paper, and we wish to express our thanks to our friends for their support. We are confident that we shall be able to carry on the business successfully, and we are confident that we shall be able to publish the paper.

Expounded throughout this work has been the idea that the Grange movement, like other cooperative enterprises, is a volunteer one, and that it is the duty of the Grange to advance the interests of the farmers by establishing a self-reliance and self-trust which is the basis of cooperative thought and action. It is not the purpose of the Grange to effect any great change or improvement in the social, political, or economic order of the day. It is to promote and further the advancement of the farmers by advancing the interests of the farmers in their own right.

In the Grange reports of the last quarter, a number of members have expressed the hope that the Grange movement will have a more extensive influence in the State of Wisconsin, and that the Grange will have a more active part in the State's political life. It is not the purpose of the Grange to seek to take the place of any other organization in the State, but it is the purpose of the Grange to seek to meet the needs of the farmers and to advance the interests of the farmers in their own right.

THE GRANGE VISITOR.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1883.

Autocrat of All the Workmen.

The late speeches of the Secretary of the Treasury are as wise as they are urgent. We believe the Congress has already more than voted the large sum which is needed for the redemption of the public debt. If it so votes, the House and Senate should promptly act upon the measure. A large sum is needed to pay the public debt. The Government should now have the benefit of the great surplus which it has acquired. The legislation which the House and Senate have already enacted will make it possible for the Government to receive a surplus of $200,000,000. We believe the House and Senate should act promptly upon the measure. If they do not, the Federal Government will be unable to take the necessary measures to secure the payment of the public debt. We believe the House and Senate should act promptly upon the measure. If they do not, the Federal Government will be unable to take the necessary measures to secure the payment of the public debt.

In conclusion, we would like to say that we have great confidence in the ability of the House and Senate to act promptly upon the measure. If they do not, the Federal Government will be unable to take the necessary measures to secure the payment of the public debt. We believe the House and Senate should act promptly upon the measure. If they do not, the Federal Government will be unable to take the necessary measures to secure the payment of the public debt.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

The City of New York is a city of great wealth and of great poverty. Many of the people of the city are poor, and many of the people of the city are rich. The Mayor of the city is a very wise man, and the people of the city are very fond of him. He has done much to improve the city, and he has done much to make it a better place in which to live. The people of the city are very fond of him, and they are very fond of the Mayor.

We believe the Mayor of the city should be re-elected. We believe the Mayor of the city has done much to improve the city, and we believe he should be re-elected. We believe the Mayor of the city has done much to make the city a better place in which to live, and we believe he should be re-elected.
The National Grange, in its last semi-annual report, made a full entry of the work done and the progress made in the several States. The Order is in a steady state of increase, and the results of the work are very gratifying. The farmers of the country are coming together in ever-increasing numbers, and the co-operative movement is slowly but surely gaining ground.

In several of the older States, the Granges have been resuscitated, and new members are now being added at an earnest rate. In the field of agricultural reform, the farmers are doing good work, and the results are beginning to tell.

The session was an interesting one, with very fine instrumental music and a hearty desire to advance the work of the Order. The Grange is the only organization that has been successful in the work of reform, and the farmers are following its lead with confidence.

The farmers of the country are coming together in ever-increasing numbers, and the co-operative movement is slowly but surely gaining ground.

The Order in the State is steadily in the discharge of its duties in the field at work for our noble Order. The farmers are doing good work, and the results are beginning to tell.

The farmers are coming together in ever-increasing numbers, and the co-operative movement is slowly but surely gaining ground.
