A VISTE TO LENAWEE COUNTY.

The name of many persons of Lenawee county, and the excitement which has been caused among the farmers of the county, and the interest which has been shown in the State Fair, is so generally known that it seems unnecessary to describe it. We believe if THE VISITOR can obtain credit on the same general principles, this work has been extended and improved for many years. OUR SUBLIMES.

It was a matter of surprise to us that every inch of space was filled to the utmost. But every day for all these years has been devoted to the action and determinations that attach to the position of an Executive. It was the occasion of the re-election of the Executive, which is saying a good deal for the State Fair, and the exhibits have been excellent.

The impossible.

We may say the following facts relative to the blue jay, the most familiar of the garden birds, who generally comes to the feeders during the winter months.

The blue jay is a bird of the family

Corvidae, and is found in North America.

The scientific name is Cyanocitta cristata

or the genus Cyanocitta, which means

"blue jay." The bird is about eight inches in length and has a blue head, neck, and throat, with a white breast.

The blue jay is a very intelligent bird and is often seen perched on the top of a tree, watching for its prey. It is also known for its loud and piercing cry, which is heard throughout the year.

In the spring, the blue jay builds a nest of grass and twigs, lined with

down, and lays about three to five white eggs. The young birds are fed by the parents until they are able to fly on their own.

The blue jay is a valuable bird to have in the garden, as it feeds on many pests, such as caterpillars and insects.

It is also a popular bird among

bird watchers and is often seen in parks

and gardens.
THE GRANGE VISITOR.

OCTOBER 1, 1891

The cranes might be a good thing; but they cannot say as much about the effects of their presence in a certain place as they can about what they will do if they are driven off. If such a thing as a "giant crane" existed, it would probably be able to fly, too! But it is not a crane, so it cannot fly.

No one knows exactly what the cranes do in Japan. Some say they eat fish, others say they eat rice. But nobody has ever seen a crane eat anything but its own food, so we must take the reports of others for what they are worth.

It is true that the cranes are very useful birds, for they help to keep the fields clean and free from weeds. They also do a great deal of good by spreading the seeds of various plants over the ground.

A bird that people call the "giant crane" is really nothing more than a large, ugly creature with long legs and a very long neck. It has a beak as long as its body, and it can feed on almost anything that it can catch with its beak.

The "giant crane" is not a bird at all, but it is very much like one. Its name comes from the fact that it is so large and its beak is so long that it looks like a giant crane.

The "giant crane" is a favorite pet of the Japanese people, who keep it in cages in their houses and feed it on all sorts of things. They believe that it will bring them good luck and happiness.
