"THE FARMER IS OF MORE CONSEQUENCE THAN THE FARM, AND SHOULD BE FIRST IMPROVED."

COLDWATER, MICH. JULY 1, 1886.

Agricultural Department.

Storing Hay in Barns. The old plan of our farmers of storing hay out of doors has long since been abandoned. Getting the hay in and out of the barns when the rain and snow are upon us is a difficult and laborious task, when the hay has not been stored under cover. Our farmers have therefore taken to the use of hay lofts, and have done away with the labor of putting the hay into the barns. This is not only economy in labor but in time, for the hay is dried in the open air and exposed to the action of the sun, which is very efficacious in destroying the growths of the fungus which cause the hay to become moldy.

Price List of Supplies. The products of the Grange are of great value and contain a large amount of good farm supplies. The following list of supplies has been compiled and arranged to meet the needs of the farmers and dairymen.

Feeding Lambs. Some farmers are using concentrates and other feeds for feeding lambs, and are obtaining good results. It is not necessary to feed the lambs on concentrates, but they should be fed a well-balanced diet of hay, grass, and concentrates. The concentrates should be fed in the morning, and the hay and grass in the afternoon. The concentrates should be fed in small quantities, and the hay and grass in larger quantities.

Condensed Powders. Condensed powders are used in the preparation of antimony compounds for use in medicine. They are prepared by mixing the antimony compounds with water and then evaporating the mixture. The resulting powder is then mixed with a diluent, such as starch or sugar, and the mixture is dried. The result is a powder that is easy to handle and can be stored for long periods of time.

A New Use For Pyrethrum

The character and use of pyrethrum, a small native herb of Asia, is well known, as well as its importance in medicine, commerce, and agriculture. But little has been known of its use as a remedy for lice and other parasites. In fact, the only use of pyrethrum that has been reported is as a insecticide for the control of pests. However, recent studies have shown that pyrethrum can be used as a natural remedy for lice and other parasites.

The use of pyrethrum as a remedy for lice is based on its anti-parasitic properties. Pyrethrum contains several active compounds, including pyrethrins, which are effective against a wide range of insects. These compounds work by paralyzing the insect and disrupting its nervous system, causing it to stop feeding and eventually die.

In addition to its use as a louse remedy, pyrethrum can also be used as a natural insecticide to control pests such as ants, beetles, and moths. It is effective against a wide range of insects and can be used in indoor and outdoor settings.

The use of pyrethrum as a natural remedy for lice and other parasites is an exciting development in the field of natural medicine. It offers a safe and effective alternative to chemical treatments, which can be harmful to both humans and the environment. With further research, it is possible that pyrethrum may be used to develop new drugs and treatments for a variety of conditions.

In conclusion, pyrethrum is a versatile and effective natural remedy that has a wide range of applications. Its use as a louse remedy is an exciting development that offers a safe and effective alternative to chemical treatments. With further research, it is possible that pyrethrum may be used to develop new drugs and treatments for a variety of conditions. It is an important addition to the natural medicine arsenal and offers hope for a healthier future for both humans and the environment.

THE Grange Visitor. July 1, 1866.

IOWA.

June 1, 1866, was observed in various parts of Iowa as a Grange anniversary. The orders call for a grand parade along the main streets of the town and the making of large and handsome floats consisting of tents, bridges, etc., with the standard of the Grand Lodge of the Order. A. A. Left.
To Subscribers.

This paper comes to you as a favor, not as a duty. Many people, whom we trust strongly, have urged us to publish it, because they believe that, while not perfect, it is better than nothing. We cannot promise any improvement, but we do promise you that we shall never cease to try to get better. We hope that our patrons will judge our paper by its merits, and not by its faults. We promise you that we shall never cease to try to get better. We hope that our patrons will judge our paper by its merits, and not by its faults.

The above resolutions were unadvisedly adopted in good faith and perfect sincerity, but we now see that they were adopted too hastily, and that we should have waited until we had had more time to consider the matter. We therefore rescind them, and we beg to apologize to our subscribers for the trouble we have given them.

The Grange and K. L. C.

The Grange was organized at Farmington, N. Y., on the 20th day of November, 1867. The organization was made up of farmers and laborers, who were dissatisfied with the condition of agriculture in this country. They organized the Grange to promote the interests of agriculture, and to combat the evils that were prevailing in the country.

The Grange was a great success, and it rapidly spread throughout the United States. It was a powerful force for the promotion of good agriculture, and it was a great benefit to the farmers of this country.

The Grange was dissolved in 1885, and it is now defunct. The Grange was a great success, and it rapidly spread throughout the United States. It was a powerful force for the promotion of good agriculture, and it was a great benefit to the farmers of this country.

This powder has been on the market six years now, and the Farmers of that State have purchased it in quantities and sent it to many parts of the country. I was asked recently for samples so that I could examine them, and I have been unable to get any. I was sent a sample by a friend who says that it is a wonderful product. I have been using it for over a year now, and I have found it to be a great help in controlling the disease. I would recommend it to anyone who has livestock. It is very effective in treating various ailments and improving the health of animals. It is also a great help in preventing the spread of diseases. I would highly recommend it to anyone who is interested in livestock. I would be happy to provide more information if you have any questions. I believe that it is the best product on the market.
