We are pleased to be able to furnish our readers a picture of the University's old building. The work of demolition has been completed with walls barred with neatly trimmed evergreen hedges, and shaded by young maples, with a fine view of the surrounding country in Western Michigan—a model of workmanship anywhere.

Clove as a Fertilizer.

By under cultivation, and, in numerous other ways, we have been able to greatly better our condition, the rain, we could never have achieved anything like our present crop of potatoes. We need to draw manure from the farm, as well as to provide a large number of animals as to make our crop a success. It is true that this was the only way to bring about a larger crop. But it happened that a field was on the farm was to send a field, and this field was not able to be made until a few acres. A part of a clove field was used for the potato crop.

Clove has the power of bringing more into the soil.

Well, after a few years, the potatoes are coming back, and now we have to begin to work on the seeds. We must do this, and be very careful in doing it, for we will know best its value in the future.

Potato Soup.

How many farmers are preparing for the potato soup season? The potato soup is good food enough to curate the farmer's family. There are many who have prepared to find the potatoes and make a soup in the middle of the potato season.

At a recent Miller's Conference in Washington, a large number of millers read a paper on the crop situation. The millers report that the world's crop looks good, but the existing conditions show that the crop is not as large as it appears. In fact, there is a good deal of doubt as to whether the crops is as large as it appears. This report gives the impression that there is a good deal of doubt as to whether the crop is as large as it appears.

But what is a certain thing is that the same crop is reported as the world's crop looks good. This impression is given by the large number of millers who have reported the crop situation.

In spite of this, it appears that the world's crop is not as large as it appears. This report gives the impression that there is a good deal of doubt as to whether the crop is as large as it appears. This report gives the impression that there is a good deal of doubt as to whether the crop is as large as it appears.

THE GRANGE REVIEW

MICHIGAN GRANGE GOVERNOR AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Editor and Manager: E. Breck.

Chautauqua, Oct. 1, 1890.

Chas. T. H. Brown, a grower and monetarily successful agriculturist, was at Chautauqua on "Grange Day" and listened to the addresses of the various speakers. The New Yorker Grange has been in existence for several years and has had no trouble in securing the support of a large number of members. The late Peter D. Tach, a member of the New York Grange, was a member of the Wisconsin Grange, and the Genessee Grange. They are said to be making an extensive canvass in the state of Wisconsin, and will be able to make an effective appeal for the support of the Grange in the following elections. Finishing what you begin

Many people, and especially those who are in the habit of doing something that they never think in the least of finishing, will agree that it is a task or a heartache to begin a thing or to do a work which is not to be continued or to be finished in their lifetime.

It is not easy to begin a thing. There are always so many reasons why it should not be done, and the mind is apt to wander far from the task. It is better to do nothing than to do a thing half-way. It is better to be satisfied with a failure than to be defeated in the attempt.

There is always the fear that it may not be done or that it will not be done well. But this fear is unfounded. The mind is not so much influenced by the fear of failure as by the fear of the unknown. It is better to do a thing imperfectly than to do it at all, because it is easier to do a thing imperfectly than to do it well.

For the Visitor

Dear Sisters of the Visitation, as the task of organizing our Grange, I will say it is in a way a mission of mercy.

In the words of St. Francis Xavier, "for the love of Christ." The Grange is a society for the mutual improvement of agriculture and rural art.

There has been an aim to organize, and the members interest.

It has been the object of the Grange to accomplish all that was hoped for. The Grange will be a success, and no one ought to be discouraged.

It takes time to develop a new interest. The Grange must stand and be recognized.

The Grange will be a success, and the effort will be to the congruity of interest. In this way many will be led to support the Grange.

In the Grange we like to see the future, and the effort we will be made to do our best.

But of course we should be more broadminded and study the truth that thought would be in the Grange.

The thought of our time is not altogether new. We are only beginning to understand what we are capable of doing.

But the more we understand what we are capable of doing, the more we will know that we have been employed in the world.

Some time in the winter it was the custom of the Ecclesiastical Commission to have a love letter written to our property, and it was by the effort we have completed a little to our service, which is by an effort of our work, which is by a very small contribution, we are able to do good to the world.

I would add that in the kind of society which it was the custom of the Ecclesiastical Commission to have a love letter written to our property, and it was by the effort we have completed a little to our service, which is by a very small contribution, we are able to do good to the world.

We have also had our share in this kind of society which it was the custom of the Ecclesiastical Commission to have a love letter written to our property, and it was by the effort we have completed a little to our service, which is by a very small contribution, we are able to do good to the world.

The Grange has found 'the real measure of a farmer's success' in the life of the farmer himself, and in the life of the farmer's family. The Grange has been established for the advancement of agriculture and rural art.

But the more we understand what we are capable of doing, the more we will know that we have been employed in the world.

We have also had our share in this kind of society which it was the custom of the Ecclesiastical Commission to have a love letter written to our property, and it was by the effort we have completed a little to our service, which is by a very small contribution, we are able to do good to the world.

The Shropshire Sheep is a breed of sheep that is raised for its wool and meat. They are known for their hardiness and adaptability to various climates. The Shropshire is a dual-purpose breed, meaning they are used both for meat and wool production. They have a distinctive features, including a dark grey face, legs, and ears, with a white underbelly and legs. The Shropshire is a good choice for farmers who are looking for a breed that is hardy and easy to care for, as well as one that is well-suited to a variety of climates.
